Did you know that an expert is like the bottom part of a double boiler? It gives off a lot of steam and hot air, but doesn't even know what's cooking.

Went to the A. S. C. — W. E. C. T. Awards banquet in Wilmington with the farm family of Duplin County, Mr. and Mrs. Faywin Shaw of Beaufort, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Elka, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Holland of Kenansville and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Best of Warsaw. Even if our farm family from Duplin did not win top spot from the twelve counties, I am sure that they really crowded the winners, as they are a farm family of which Duplin can be very proud, and have done outstanding work in their community and Duplin County. Ben McDonald, farm reporter for W. E. C. T., was Master of Ceremonies, and did a wonderful job. You could actually feel the pride that Ben took in this first awards program of its type which has ever been held in the United States. Incidentally there were some pretty good jokes told at that meeting, and I can't remember any of them to pass on to you.

There have been so many activities going on this week that it is hard to tell where the week begins or ends. But you should have attended the 4-H awards program held at the Kenan Auditorium last Saturday. Those children are doing a marvelous job, and their exhibits were wonderful. Their cakes, cookies, donuts looked so tasty and pretty. They had an exhibit on most any item you can name, leaves, bugs, paintings, clothes, scrap books, etc., etc. The young officers presided with such ease, grace and capability, that it gives you a warm feeling inside to know that they are the type boys and girls who will have America in their hands within a few short years. Hats off to Lawrence Reese and Lois Britt, they are doing a wonderful job as advisors to the boys and girls.

Wonder who it was in Warsaw who got so excited about the ball game at Rockingham, that they got on the wrong road and went to South Carolina? However they discovered their mistake in time to get to the ball game on time. I suppose just about half of the James Kenan school district will be in Goldsboro Friday night to see our boys play Ayden. It will be an exciting game and we are all "rooting" for you, boys!

November 20 Is "DDD Day" In Duplin

Sunday, November 20, is to be "D. D. Day" in Warsaw, Beaufort, Faison, Kenansville, Rose Hill and Wallace. "Direct Distance Dialing Day," that is. On this day an exciting new service will be inaugurated enabling telephone subscribers in these six exchanges to dial most of their own station-to-station long distance calls without placing them with an operator.

W. Y. Vann, Warsaw, local mgr. for Carolina Telephone, said that beginning at 2:01 a. m. Sunday local telephone subscribers may dial their own distance calls to points in North Carolina and across the nation. A special direct distance dialing directory has been sent to telephone subscribers in these towns. This directory contains instructions for using customer long distance dialing, places that may be dialed, and codes for dialing them. In addition, a special instruction folder concerning this service has been sent to subscribers.

The manager said that starting Sunday local telephone users for the first time will be able to span the nation with a few spins of their dials. The establishment of a standardized, nationwide telephone numbering system and intricate new equipment has made D. D. Day possible and marks an important milestone in communications progress, the manager pointed out.

Judge Algeron L. Butler, Jr., Federal Judge, sentenced him during the opening session of Eastern District Federal Court in Wilson.

Charges grew from man investigation conducted following an audit of the bank's records earlier in the year. Holt confessed to mishandling the bank's funds, when he was faced by the FBI agent, according to the agent's report. John G. The money was used to cover notes that were due from friends of Holt and checks for which there were insufficient funds. Holt is alleged to have forged 26 notes, withheld 14 savings account ledger sheets, and withheld cash in five instances. During the period from October 25, 1959 to March, 1960 he was charged with misappropriating $96,533.71; with making false entry in the bank's record involving $500 on January 20, 1960; and with making false entry on the balance sheet and savings account ledger sheets involving $10,283.61 on March 23, 1960.
