

Rose Hill Poultry Diagnostic Lab Serving Southeastern N. C. Well

By Paul Barwick
The Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory at Rose Hill is now in full operation and is serving the growing poultry industry of Duplin and surrounding counties.

The need for such a laboratory in southeastern North Carolina became acute when poultry farming jumped in less than 10 years to the largest source of income to farmers, second only to tobacco. Duplin County now leads North Carolina in poultry farming, which includes broiler, egg and turkey production.

Dr. Hugh Powell, veterinarian in charge of the work at the Rose Hill laboratory, said today approximately 5,000 turkeys in breeding flocks are being tested each week. Also, an average of six farm flocks of broilers are tested daily and an average of five laying flocks checked weekly through the facilities at Rose Hill.

"We are checking more and more flocks," Dr. Powell said, "but we are still not doing as much work in diagnosis as we would like to do. Prevention is one of the greatest ways of fighting diseases in turkeys, hens and broilers. As soon as any slight sign of disease is detected, a farmer should contact us." Dr. Powell stressed the need for preventive disease through having flocks tested before any sickness is detected in a flock of birds.

"Good management is necessary on farms with poultry operations," Dr. Powell said, "and disease prevention is a part of the good management."

DIAGNOSTIC LAB - The Rose Hill Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory was completed August 8, 1960 and since then has been serving a fast growing poultry area, Southeastern North Carolina. The building was constructed at a cost of approximately $14,000. Equipment for the laboratory cost about $10,000. Services rendered the poultry industry are free. (Photo by Paul Barwick).

Since the laboratory was opened August 8, 1960, the use of facilities has continued to increase monthly. In addition to Dr. Powell, Mrs. Bobby Lee Jones, a registered nurse, is employed as a technician.

Four counties have been named finalists for the "County of the Year" award in the 1960 North Carolina Rural Progress Campaign, with special reference to Negroes.

Bertie, Duplin, Orange and Person counties emerged as winners in district eliminations which were conducted during December. Dr. William E. Reed, dean of the School of Agriculture at A&T College and chairman of the North Carolina Rural Progress Committee, announced the winning counties.

Dr. Reed said the four had won out in a competition in which more than 70 counties in the State were in competition. The contest, sponsored at A&T College, has been conducted annually since 1952. Former winners include: Hertford, 1952; Orange 1953; Sampson, 1954; Nash, 1955; Person, 1956; Duplin, 1957; Bertie, 1958; and Guilford, 1959.

Lt. Gov. Philpott & Joe Hunt To Appear On Program At District School Bd. Meet

Lieutenant Governor H. Cloyd Philpott of Lexington will appear on the afternoon program at the annual meeting of the Fifth District State School Board Association which is to be held at Wallace-Rose Hill High School in Duplin County on Wednesday, February 1.

In announcing plans for the program, Howard Holly of Burgaw, district president, stated that another participant would be the Honorable Joseph Hunt, Jr. of Greensboro who has been nominated by the Democratic representatives-elect as Speaker of the N. C. House of Representatives.

Since 1961 is a legislative year and as much consideration is expected to be placed on education when the General Assembly convenes a week following the district meeting, senators-elect representatives-elect from Brunswick, Duplin, New Hanover, Pender, Sampson and Wayne counties have been invited to attend the meeting. They will be introduced during the afternoon program.

Following a period of registration which begins at 3:30 p. m., the business session is to start at 4:00. A large number of educational leaders and interested citizens from the six county units and the three city units in District Five are expected to be present for this annual meeting.

Discussion Leaders

A feature of the afternoon program will be ten discussion groups consisting of approximately thirty persons in each group. Two leaders will be in charge of each group. Included among the twenty leaders are: E. C. Funderburk, E. A. Laney and Allen Cobb of New Hanover County; Addis P. Cates, I. J. Sandlin and R. L. Pruitt of Duplin County; Braxton L. Davis and Clarence E. Dodgens of Pender County; R. G. Herring, Leland Lee, Martin Denning and S. W. Caruso of Sampson County; R. S. Proctor, S. Moseley Davis, O. V. Harrell, Dr. N. H. Shope, Mrs. W. A. Shepherd, Jr. and James L. Bruton of Wayne County; and Neil Singletary and J. B. Ward, Jr. of Brunswick County.

The theme of the discussion groups will be centered on "Quality Education - Our First Concern for Youth." Prior to the group discussions, Raymond A. Stone of Raleigh, executive secretary of the N. C. Citizens Committee for Better Schools, will present a brief address. Stone is a former member of the Wallace High School faculty.

The highlight of the meeting will be the concluding banquet which begins at 6:30 p. m. Principal speaker is to be the Honorable Terry Sanford, North Carolina's new Governor, who is expected to deliver a major address on education.

KENANSVILLE: Coach Billy Bostic's basketball team came to Kenan Auditorium last Friday night and ran rough-shod over the James Kenan team in an important conference clash. It was the third straight win for the Panther boys and the second win for the Lady Panthers.

Bostic's girls jumped off to a 12-5 lead in the first quarter and increased the lead to 29-9 at the half. Rita Sumner, the Panthers shooting ace, collected 21 points for high scorer. Sue Horne added 11 more points to the winning cause. The James Kenan girls scored only five points in the second half, getting only one point in the final quarter. Sylvia Brown, the big spark all season for the Lady Tigers, had a total of 8 points high for James Kenan. Jean Chambers scored the other 4 points as Beulaville took an easy win 37-14.

In the boys game, it appeared that the Tigers were going to really come into their own. In the first minute or two James Kenan lead 6-0, but then the roof caved in and the big-red-and-white stormed back to take the lead 14-6 at the quarter. Beulaville's big Larry Herring put the Panther team way out front at the half with his rebounding. Herring collected 26 points to lead the unbeaten Panthers. Playmaker Jerry Simpson added 13 for

Miss Kathryn Bowen To Join Staff Of Congressman David Henderson Monday

Miss Kathryn Bowen, of Warsaw, has accepted a position on the Henderson staff from the third Congressional District.

Miss Bowen has been employed as Deputy Clerk of Duplin County Superior Court since June, 1957.

She has tendered her resignation to Clerk of Superior Court R. V. Wells effective January 11, 1961.

She will assume her duties in Washington, D. C. on Monday January 16.

Miss Bowen is a graduate of Warsaw high school and attended East Carolina College, in Greenville. She also attended the High School of Commerce, in Raleigh, for one year.

In commenting on Miss Bowen's resignation, Superior Court Clerk Wells said, "We are losing a very efficient person in our office, not only I, but the people of the County are going to miss her services and devotion to the office."

Wells said he did not wish to be named as replacing Bowen as Deputy Clerk.

Three Men Bound Over To Grand Jury In Brunswick

The three men who have been charged in connection with the $14,000 holdup at Leland in December, were bound over to the Brunswick County Grand Jury on Monday Morning at the preliminary hearing in Brunswick County.

Virgil Sanderson and John Calvin Whaley of Beulaville were ordered held on a $10,000 bond each by Southport Recorder's Court Judge W. Earl Bellamy. They both waived their preliminary examination in the Recorder's Court.

Judge Bellamy ordered a $15,000 bond on Troy Brown, 45, charged with conspiracy for armed robbery and receiving stolen goods. He did not waive the preliminary examination.

They were all bound over to the grand jury which will meet January 23.

Much of the money and bonds taken from Mrs. Willetts Store, still remains unfound, according to Sheriff Leonard.
