SENClad Area Awards Program To Be Held In Duplin County On December 1

The first time the SENClad Area Awards program has been held outside Wilmington since its organization will be this year in Duplin County.

Jim Bunce, Duplin Assistant County Agricultural Agent, has been named Chairman of Arrangements for the annual event.

Bunce said today the exact location has not been determined but that it will be held in Wallace at either the National Guard Armory or the Wallace-Rose Hill high school. The program has been scheduled for Friday, December 1.

Douglas Peacock, of Wallace, who is chairman of the Duplin County Directors on the SENClad Board, is assisting with arrangements. Plans are for one of the biggest events ever staged in SENClad's Award Program to be held in Duplin this year.

Awards are made for progress in the six-county area in industry, tourist trade, agriculture, business and community development. The six counties in the SENClad Area Development are Duplin, New Hanover Brunswick, Columbus, Pender and Bladen.

Bunce pointed out today that LeRoy Simmons, or Albertson, in Duplin, is chairman of the SENClad Agriculture Committee and plans are now to have ready for release by December 1, a booklet which has been compiled on agricultural importance to the SENClad economy and how it can be enhanced.

Dr. E. P. Roy To Be Speak At Mass Meeting Of Broiler Growers

Dr. Ewell P. Roy, Agricultural Economist at Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, La., will speak to the Eastern North Carolina Broiler Growers, Inc. on Thursday, August 17.

Dr. Roy, who has studied for several years broiler contract farming will talk to the members of the broiler growers on contract arrangements and what the future appears to hold for producers.

The meeting will be held in the Wallace American Legion Hut at 8 p. m.

L. J. Sandlin, Jr., president of the Broiler Growers, said today, "We feel indeed fortunate in securing such an outstanding person as Dr.

Roy to be our speaker. The Board of Directors of the Broiler Growers has felt the need to hear discussed what is happening in the total broiler industry from the standpoint of the contracts being offered."

Sandlin added, "I would like to encourage every member of the Broiler Growers to be present for this meeting. We feel that it will be an eye-opening experience for the producer and that he will benefit greatly from having the information available on a personal basis."

The Eastern North Carolina Broiler Growers, Inc. was organized in April this year after new contracts were sent producers who put them on a no-profit or low-profit contract.

The new contracts were sent producers when broiler prices started their decline.

In Eastern North Carolina, most of the broiler producers are on a feed conversion contract while there are some producers still on a per-head contract with feed conversion not a factor in the price the producer receives.

Mrs. Etta Williams Miller Receives Bruises In Freak Accident Wednesday

Mrs. Etta Williams Miller, 68, of route 1, Kenansville, received bruises in a freak accident Wednesday around 10 a. m. at Northeast River Bridge on the Beaulville-Kenansville highway.

Mrs. Miller was struck on the leg by a heavy-duty hose which was dangling from a truck, knocking her to the ground. She was walking along the shoulder of the highway at the time of the accident.

Edison Hayward Norris, 26, of Dublin, told Highway Patrolman T. A. Bryan that he did not know Mrs. Miller had been hit by the hose and did not know the hose was dangling from the truck until after he reached his destination. The truck was the property of Black Tree Experts, Inc., and was being used in a spraying operation along highway 24.

Norris was charged with failure to secure the truck load properly, according to Patrolman Bryan. Although he did not stop at the scene of the accident when it happened, Patrolman Bryan said Norris' action did not constitute hit-and-run because he did not know any.

thing about the accident at the time it occurred. Norris told Patrolman Bryan that he does not even remember seeing Mrs. Miller.

Pulpwood Products Show Increase In Valuation In Results Of Research Facts

Pulpwood produced in North Carolina last year totaled $45,472,000 in value, a gain of 6 per cent over the $2,916,000 reported for the 1959 crop, according to H. J. Malsberger of Atlanta, general manager of the Southern Pulpwood Conservation Association.

The figures were based upon the results of a 12-state pulpwood production survey made by the U. S. Forest Service Experiment Stations in Asheville, N. C., and New Orleans, La., in cooperation with SPCA.

North Carolina's share in the production of raw material for the pulp and paper industry, Malsberger explained, was part of an all-time high pulpwood harvest for the South as a whole. The value of the region's total for 1960 was $415,020,000, a gain of 4 percent over the $415,020,000 reported in 1959.

Among the 97 counties in North Carolina where pulpwood is produced, leading were Columbus, Onslow and Brunswick with pulpwood crops valued at $1,541,080, $1,335,820 and $1,283,380, respectively.

The South's pulpwood harvest last year was also greater than that of any other area of comparable size in the world.

He emphasized, too, that figures from government surveys show a continuing favorable ratio of far-

Hurricane Season Here

These Simple Precautions May Avoid Serious Hurricane Damage For You

Nine hurricanes wrecked havoc in North Carolina during 1953-1960. The hurricane season is here again. Loss of life and property may be avoided if a few precautions are taken.

Take these precautions, at first warning of an approaching hurricane:

1. Put loose material and movable objects such as garbage cans and porch and lawn furniture where they cannot be blown against the building or through a window. Raise and secure or remove entirely movable awnings.
2. In seriously threatened areas, board up windows or put storm shutters in place, at least on the sides exposed to the most violent winds. Shutters should be securely fastened several hours in advance of the expected arrival of the storm. They are difficult to handle in high wind.
- Use good lumber and attach it firmly to the building. Marksheet boarding or insecure shutters may blow loose and do more damage than none at all.
3. Garage and other doors having large exposed areas should be secured particularly well.
4. Leave a window partially open on the side opposite that from which the wind is coming, to provide some ventilation and, may help to prevent wind damage.
- If wind or windborne objects make an opening on the windward side of the building, wind pressure will build up within the building. The open window on the lee side will allow the pressure to escape, minimizing the interior forces tending to lift the roof or push out the walls.
- If windows or walls are broken on the windward side, open more windows on the opposite side to help equalize the pressure.
5. Have handy flashlights in working order, extra food that would require little or no cooking and fresh water in sterilized jugs, bottles or cooking utensils.
- After you have ridden out the storm, be careful to:
  1. Boil or sterilize water until otherwise advised by your local health department.
  2. Don't touch dangling or loose electric or telephone wires.
  3. If driving, watch out for fallen wires or tree limbs and for washouts and undermined pavements.

2 Duplin Girls In N. C. 4-H Honor Club

During State 4-H Club Week, which was held July 24 through 28 at N. C. State College, Evelyn Wilkins of Rose Hill and Joyce James of Wallace were selected into the North Carolina 4-H Home Club Membership into the Honor Club in a reward for outstanding service to 4-H Club work for those boys and girls who through their leadership, moral standards, and 4-H activities and records have been the most outstanding in the state.

Twenty-one 4-H Club Members from Duplin County participated during the exciting week in Raleigh. These individuals were part of a group of 1400 4-H boys and girls from throughout North Carolina.

During the week-long program, classes were held each morning ranging in subject matter from "The Community 4-H Club" to "Food for Fun and Happiness." The afternoon program on sewing and were conducted by the 4-Hers themselves. The demonstrators were competing for state honors, and represented one of the six districts in North Carolina. Owen Jones, from Faison represented the Southeastern District at the Beekeeping Demonstration.

On Friday afternoon the Club Members elected the State 4-H Officers for the coming year. For the first time the electoral system was used to elect the State 4-H Club Officers for the coming year. Each county had a certain number of electoral votes depending on its 1960 4-H Club Member enrollment. This change in the method of electing officers proved to be both educational and exciting for the 4-H Club members.

Each evening a well planned program was presented. On Monday evening R. W. Shoffner, Director of Extension, spoke to the group and a Band Concert was presented by the Marine Corps from Camp LeJeune. On Tuesday evening new members were tapped into the State 4-H Honor Club.

The Dress Revue was held Wednesday evening, at which time Mary Alice Thomas of Magnolia represented Duplin County and the Southeastern District. The Health Pageant was held Thursday evening. Each County participated in the event by having its County King and Queen of Health to enter. Gail Grady of Route 2, Mt. Olive and Glenn Williams, of Pink Hill represented Duplin County. Both of these individuals were selected as blue ribbon winners.

On Friday evening, Evelyn Wilkins of Rose Hill and Annette and Jeanette James of Wallace performed in the Talent Parade. Annette and Jeanette did a dancing number together while Evelyn performed by giving a recitation entitled "I Ain't Going To School Today". The week was brought to a close Friday night by installing the new State 4-H Club Officers in a very inspiring Candlelighting Ceremony.

Olive; Glenn Williams and Melvin Williams of Pink Hill; Martha Bradshaw, Cathy Mattocks, Patricia Rouse, Stella Wells, Evelyn Wilkins, John Steve Wilkins, and Tony Wilson of Rose Hill; Annette James and Joyce James of Wallace.

Trial & Error

Everything, except the hot weather, is beginning to look and feel like fall. To ride along on the country roads and see the tobacco stalks almost empty, the corn turning brown, and the fields edged with the uncut weeds which have gotten ahead during the busy tobacco season, reminds one of fall. Though his start wandering off to the pleasant "Indian Summer" days, and winter fashions in the magazines are beginning to look charming and chic, after the summer of wilted cotton dresses. The changing seasons make us more appreciative of the one to come. I imagine there is many a teenager who will tuck the memory of the past summer in a corner of his mind as having been a most romantic, exciting summer, but now with a faded summer love, must turn their minds back to school and books.

A sign seen on T. J. Turner's desk in Pink Hill, "Usher Department."

Does anyone have a suggestion as to how to get rid of Martins in a chimney. We have a family of about 200 Martins nesting in our chimney. We have tried smoking them out-it doesn't work. Are there other suggestions?

This has been such a busy and interesting week that there seems to be no time to write. So I will see you next week.
