Kenansville Church Hosts Conference

Kenansville Methodist Church is famous for its hospitality among Methodist people. In 1954, Kenansville Methodist Church entertained the Wilmington District, J. M. Daniels being the presiding elder. The local Methodist church did it again Thursday, January 19. This time she entertained the Goldsboro District. The Goldsboro District is supervised by M. W. Lawrence, a native North Carolinian whose family has given over one hundred years of unswerving service to Christ in the North Carolina Conference. There are more than 104 churches in the Goldsboro District. Kenansville Methodist Church is one of the churches which serve these churches with a total membership of more than 20,000 laymen. Evangelism has been especially strong this year-more people having been taken in the church at the half year than all of last year. The host church served more than two hundred and forty people who stayed over for the afternoon services. Reports were made that great advancement had been made in all fields of service. Rev. T. H. House, pastor of the local Methodist Church received a letter of appreciation from Rev. M. W. Lawrence, District Superintendent, in the letter Rev. Lawrence said: "I want to express to you my personal gratitude for the part that you had in the preparation and please convey to your Official Board, your Women's Society of Christian Service, and others the appreciation of all of us. You made preparation for all of our needs and the conference ran smoothly. Thank you for everything that you did. There are only five months left in this Conference year and I am sure that each of our ministers and our people will make the most use of these days that our District will have one of its best reports."

Heart Sunday Workers Named

Duplin Heart Association needs many volunteers to carry on the Heart Sunday canvass which is the high point of the 1962 Heart Fund drive. Mrs. John Goodson of Mount Olive has been named chairman of this year's Heart Sunday drive for Duplin County. An appeal to the residents of Duplin to volunteer their services for the door-to-door collection throughout the residential sections of the county has been made. Applicants may register in person with their community leaders. When its ranks have been filled, the Heart Sunday army will cover all of the residential sections in the county, each volunteer visiting neighbors in his or her immediate vicinity. "Service as a Heart Fund volunteer is a rewarding experience," Mrs. Goodson declared. "A few hours of effort enables each one of us to make a lasting contribution to the fight against the Number One Health Enemy of this county and the nation. Volunteers may be sure that their neighbors will welcome them warmly, for they will appreciate receiving health-saving information and having an opportunity to make a Heart Fund contribution in person. Contributions are confidential. Contributors are merely asked to insert a gift in the Heart Sunday envelope presented by the volunteer, seal the flap and return the envelope," she continued. Mrs. Goodson announced that the county has been divided into 25 communities with leaders having been recruited for all areas except Sarecta and Chincquapin. If anyone is interested in representing this area they should contact Mrs. Goodson. Trial & Error

My young friend and Sun. School boy was watching TV the other day. He had his air rifle in his hand and it is a rule in his house not to have the air rifle cocked. An elephant walked across the television screen. So said Julius, "I believe I will shoot the elephant." And he did. The gun was loaded and now Julius has no television glass. Chris Vest, a paper salesman, was in the office this week. Chris said that his wife had fallen and was in the hospital for fifteen days. He said that he thought that she was a pretty good cook until he had to cook. He was telling about scrambling eggs. Chris said, "Have you ever tried to get egg shells out of an egg? It is the worst job I have ever had. Just about the time you get the shell in the top, it slides back to the bottom." Try it sometimes. It's a very hard job. I told Chris the best thing to do is not to get the shell in the egg. Local politics seems to be real quiet now or maybe we just haven't heard any. It is time now to hear a few whippers. Margaret Tucker, a former employee of the Duplin Times, is in town. Margaret now lives in New Orleans. She says Kenansville looks good to her but she hasn't seen the "whippers" away her time in the Duplin Times office. Ruth

Special Courses In Agriculture At Goldsboro Education Center

Special courses in technical agriculture for Duplin County farmers are being planned in the County Vocational Agriculture Departments. The groundwork for providing instruction to meet the needs required by modern farming methods was laid in a meeting called by Supt. O. P. Johnson on Jan. 17. The meeting was held at the James-Kenan School and was attended by County Principals, Teachers of Agriculture Guidance Counselors and Advisory Committee Member, Hal Plunk and Phil Beamon of the Goldsboro E. I. Center. Basically, the plan calls for teachers of agriculture and their advisory committees to study technical training needs of farmers. Then, if special instruction help is needed by the teacher of agriculture in providing the training, application will be made through the Goldsboro Ind. Ed. Center for state aid for special instructors. Highly qualified instructors will be employed on an hourly basis to teach technical agricultural subjects when the need is justified by surveys conducted by agriculture teachers and their advisory committees. The content of the courses and references needed in teaching the courses will be selected and developed with help from the Vocational Materials Laboratory of the State Department of Public Instruction. Courses may be offered in farm management including analysis of the farm business to determine its economic possibilities, farm mechanization, poultry, swine, dairying, and farm chemicals. The minimum length of the courses will be ten instructional hours. Administrative procedures will be developed by Supt. Johnson and the Goldsboro Ind. Ed. Center to bring about this cooperation of the County departments of Vocational Agriculture and Goldsboro Center. Agriculture teachers are now working with State Department of Public Instruction consultants in surveying needs of farmers.
