Douglass Junior 4-H Meeting

The Junior 4-H Club of Douglass held its regular monthly meeting Monday evening, February 19, in the auditorium, with Riddick Wilkins Jr. president, presiding.

The meeting opened with a short program.

Riddick Wilkins presented the goals for the year in the business part of the meeting.

Mrs. Inez B. Hodges, the county nurse, was presented by the president. She gave an interesting address on "Winter Enemies" placing special emphasis on Common Colds and Influenza. She closed her remarks by giving these rules for healthy living: Eat the foods you know you need; get enough sleep to awake refreshed; enjoy the kind of recreation that keeps you mentally and physically fit; avoid unnecessary exposure to stormy weather; shun over-indulgence.

Do these things for a healthier and happier life, but do not expect them to ward off your winter enemies. A short discussion period was held.

The following members and leaders were present: James E. Lowe, Larry Lowe, Jacqueline Underwood, Byron Underwood, Riddick Wilkins Jr. Tommy Wilkins, Ronnie Rogers, Mrs. Alberta Newkirk, and Miss B. L. Beaty.

Paratrooping Is Adventurous

It takes a real man to be a Paratrooper in the U. S. Army. Airborne training offers a variety of adventures and it is this spirit of adventure that makes Airborne Soldiers what they are today - a group of high-flying action men whose combat history can't be matched.

Training lasts three weeks and is as rugged as it is complete. Only the toughest training can condition a man to parachute from 1200 feet and land safely on the ground - ready to fight.

A Paratrooper is one of the most valuable combat Soldiers in the Army. His fighting assignment is usually a critical one. So his training is as comprehensive as the Army can make it. Training is tough - but not reckless.

You'll be introduced to all the techniques which will enable you to perform your duties with absolute confidence. You'll jump five times while in school polishing your jump technique and learning to land with weapons, ready for combat. The day you graduate from school will give you the biggest thrill of your life. That's the day you pin on your silver wings and have the right to call yourself

END YOUR CONSTIPATION WORRIES

Now you can end your constipation worries once and for all. Put aside chemical laxatives, oils or bran-like roughage that may upset your system. Instead, take SERUTAN in a glass of water every day.

SERUTAN is an all-vegetable laxative aid that provides the proper moisture, bulk and peristaltic stimulation you may need as you grow older - to promote daily regularity. This is entirely different from chemical laxatives. Prove it to yourself. Take SERUTAN as directed for at least one week. You must be well on the road to daily regularity or your money back from the maker.

Check ignition wiring and cables. Adjust idle mixture. Set engine timing to correspond with fuel used. Adjust fan belt.

Check cooling system for leaks and hose restriction.

Finally, as recommended by automotive specialists, if your engine starts hard, seems to cut out when you press down quickly on the accelerator, or does anything else that seems wrong, tell your mechanic about it before he starts your tune up. He won't expect you to use technical terms - and often your description will give him just the clue he needs to find the trouble and correct it.

Sudden Thaw - A puzzle of the English language is economy - which means the large size in soap and the small size in automobiles.

Could Be Bless that government of ours. It's given me a clue to the hi-way safety problem. What I'm talking about is the current catalog of pamphlets and what-what-what published by the Government Printing Office. There's one straight faced listing with the intriguing title, "Guidance For the Underchiever With Superior Ability." Now maybe that's our trouble - too many "underachievers" on North Carolina roads.

Nothipe relieves and ventilates the mind like a resolution.

Free Wheeling

By Bill Crowell

Not long ago one of the country's top auto builders turned out an engine worth 60 million dollars.

It wasn't diamond studded nor gold plated. Research, planning, incredibly complex precision tools, testing and a host of other preliminaries added to the cost of producing the engine. One of the engines that followed the expensive prototype may be in your barn right now.

And you know it is a complicated package of many parts and systems that must work together to give you power and reliable motoring. Keeping your auto engine at peak efficiency depends largely on a term grown familiar by usage - the tune up.

But what precisely is a tune up? Basically, it involves a single goal: to renew sagging performance. Mile upon mile of driving steadily whittles away at the precision, power and economy built into your engine. The change is gradual, of course, and many drivers say their car responds as well as when it was spanking brand new.

But that's not likely because in each 5000 miles of driving, here's what's going on inside your engine:

- Spark plugs fire about five-and-a-quarter million times.
- Distributor points snap some 42 million times.
- Valves, of course, open and close the same number of times as the plugs fire.
- Inside the carburetor 20 or more parts move every time you nudge the accelerator.
- At average speeds the fuel pump pulses about 1000 times a minute.
- Every mile driven causes some departures from new engine specifications. A car can still run fairly well despite many things wrong with it. But the hard fact is that regular tune ups are necessary if we are to get our money's worth in performance and economy.
- An engine tune up begins with a compression check. Compression in each cylinder is measured to indicate excessive wear in valves, cylinders and piston rings. An engine showing poor compression usually money spent for one man's waste.
- If compression, on the other hand, is okay then plugs should be removed and checked. They should be cleaned and regapped to specifications. Or if they are fouled, replaced. At the same time the distributor points and condenser should be serviced with replacement parts.
- The electrical system should get
