This Week's ORANGE MAN

A. H. POE

Mr. A. H. Poe, joint owner of the Poe-Mangum Auto Service in Chapel Hill, remembers the days in World War I when he had cream for his coffee every morning in France.

At that time he was with the 113th Field Artillery in the 30th division of the Headquarters Company. Mr. Poe had been fighting in France for some time when he and his buddies ran into a dug out and captured its contents—of which the prize possession was a cow.

The cow was affectionately named Sookie and was taken along with the company as standard equipment, providing fresh milk every day. Then a crisis arose. Sookie became tenderfooted, and the men were afraid they would have to sell her. But Mr. Poe came to the rescue with his knowledge of blacksmithing which he had learned back on the farm. He made Sookie four iron shoes, and she travelled in comfort with the company for four months.

Mr. Poe was born in Chatham county in 1885, the son of the late Mr. G. R. Poe and his wife who is still living. He was raised on the farm with his four sisters and six brothers. After attending the school near by, he went to work on the farm until World War I when he served twelve months of active duty in France.

After the war he went into the automobile business, working first in Pittsboro and then in Salisbury. In 1920 he came to Chapel Hill and was employed with the Strowd Motor Company thirteen years. Then he became an independent dealer for Plymouth and DeSoto until 1939, Mr. J. Marvin Mangum coming in at that time as a partner. Now in wartime the Poe-Mangum Auto Service on Franklin Street has its hands full, taking care of sick cars.

In 1939 Mr. Poe married Louise Copeland of Chatham county. They have two children, Watts D. Poe, 20, has been in the Marine corps for two years, taking his training at Paris Island. He is now sergeant of the guard at Boyuge Field. Elouise Poe Jones lives in New Haven, Conn.

Mr. Poe is a member of the Junior Order and the Kiwanis club. He also serves Chapel Hill by belonging to the fire department. He is a Baptist. His main interest outside of his work is collecting antiques, having obtained many fine pieces in old places around North Carolina, in Tennessee above Asheville, and in New Haven, Conn.

Orange County Soldier Nabs Hitler's Own Tailor

Of all the soldiers who boasted before sailing for Europe that they, personally, were going to shoot Hitler right between the eyes, Sgt. Roy Strowd of Chapel Hill came nearer making good his boast. Thomas Strowd, proud uncle of Sergeant Strowd, has been relaying this tale which came to him in a letter from Germany.

Sgt. Strowd was on guard duty one night when he noticed a fellow whose feline movements aroused his suspicions. Strowd ordered the man to halt and proceeded to search him. The going-over revealed a twenty-two pistol which the man under arrest had taken great care to conceal. When the G. I. team arrived Strowd learned that his captive had been Hitler's personal tailor for the past ten years.

The parents of the man who "almost caught Hitler" are Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Strowd of Chapel Hill.

A Sure Sign It's Plenty Hot!

Chapel Hill, July 3—Instead of khaki blouses with their long sleeves and high collars or squeezing tight jumpers, marines and sailors in the V-12 unit here are now wearing "T" shirts. The marines in bright green slip-overs and olive green breeches look like boughs from one of the trees in the arboretum. Giving an even greater appearance of comfort are the white trousers and white shirts of the sailors. Usually dressed-to-the-teeth cadets in the pre-flight school have bowed to southern sun by discarding ties and blouses. They march to classes, but they've lost that military look. Whoever could be "militarily correct in a skimpy undershirt? But who wants to be militarily correct when it's 95 in the shade?"

One Third Million Dollars Gleaned By Orange Farmers From Poultry Sales In 1944

Wounded 3rd Time

According to County Agent, Don S. Matheson, the preliminary figures of the 1945 farm census indicate that Orange county poultry farmers sold $336,244.00 worth of poultry products in 1944, which was nearly three times the amount sold in 1930, the figure for that year being $131,947.00.

The greater part of this income came from eggs, while broiler raising is increasing in popularity and several new dressing plants make it easier to market them. The commercial production of eggs has proven to be the most profitable poultry venture. It is interesting to observe that the annual poultry income now in the county is six times the income from cotton.

S-Sgt James C. Jones, husband of Mrs. Phyllis Ray Jones of Route 3, Hillsboro, was wounded for the third time in Germany, March 30, according to a telegram received by his wife from the war department. Sgt. Jones' platoon was assigned to take a German town and to follow the tanks in. They had almost taken the town when one of the Jerries got Jones in his hip with a rifle bullet. He was carried to a battalion aid station where he was placed in an ambulance to be carried to a hospital. The ambulance was captured en route and Jones was a prisoner of the Germans two days before being liberated by allied forces. Since that time he has been convalescing in a French hospital.

Arriving in France Sgt. Jones was attached to the first army but was later transferred to the third army. He has four campaign ribbons for participation in the Normandy, Belgium, Rhineland and German invasions and wears the purple heart with two oak leaf clusters, combat infantryman's badge, the combat aviator's badge and the ETO ribbon.

Sgt. Jones has been overseas for one year. He expects to be sent to an army hospital in the United States sometime in the near future. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jones, also reside at Route 3, Hillsboro.
