County Commissioners State Views On $1,045,000 Bond Election Vote

This is a statement of facts bearing upon the proposed bond issue:

1. REASSESSMENT OF PROPERTY: Under State Law a regular reassessment was to have been made in 1945. The legislature of 1945 postponed it two years because of the war. It is obligatory this year.

2. THE BONDS will not be sold and the money will not be spent until building costs come down.

3. FINAL PLANS for the remodeling of the interior of the court house will be developed with the advice and counsel of an architect whose special field is Colonial Architecture.

4. FOR MANY YEARS the financial policy of Orange County has been conservative. The county commissioners do not intend to change that policy. We believe, however, that the time has come to lay the groundwork for some of our urgently needed improvements. The tax rate of Orange County is lower than that of most counties in the state. We estimate that the increase necessary to carry the proposed bonds will not be over 12 cents on the $100. With this addition made, the resulting tax rate of $1 will still be low as compared with most other counties.

Collier Cobb, Jr., Chairman; Ben F. Wilson; Hubert G. Laws; Board of County Commissioners.

Six Less Teachers Assigned Orange In Tentative Report

Tentative teacher assignments for Orange county gives the county schools, both white and Negro, six less teachers than served in the school during the year just ended, Superintendent R. H. Claytor announced this week.

According to the tentative allotment received by the superintendent, 67 white teachers and 41 Negro teachers have been assigned the county next year. This compares to 68 white teachers and 46 Negro teachers this year.

Decrease in the allotment was because of lack of attendance at the different schools, he said. He expressed the opinion, however, that the county would probably be able to convince the state that the Negro teachers were needed to continue the many small Negro schools in the county.

Loss of one high school teacher and one elementary teacher from the Hillsboro district will probably stick, he indicated.

Allotments by districts are: District No. 1—Hillsboro, West Hillsboro, Murphy—24 elementary and 9 high school; Eiland—six elemen-

Combine, Threshing Machine Operators Must Have Permits

The following information on 1947 combine and thresher operations in North Carolina has been released by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service from the Agricultural Building in Raleigh. It is published as public service by this newspaper.

Operators of combines and threshing machines are reminded that they are required to obtain permits to operate their machines in North Carolina. The permits are to be obtained through the Register of Deeds Office in each county of the State. There is rarely any charge for these permits, although handy daily record books are provided along with forms on which to report the acreage threshed and bushels obtained from this acreage.

Farmers and businessmen need information resulting from these records to make their plans for better and safer farming. Also, county agricultural leaders need county totals and averages for their general program planning. The State Threshers' Law is the means for getting such information on small grains.

The purpose of this law is for information and not for revenue. It seeks cooperative aid and interest and not compulsion or resentment. Reliable plans must be developed from information at the farm; thus, the threshers' records provide the best basis for county grain statistics for program planning usage. The source and usage is within the county itself. Operators must obtain from the Register of Deeds: (1) Permit of license card; (2) Daily record book; and (3) Report blanks upon which to report their entire operations for the season. Private and public machines, alike, are no exception or exemption, even for those outside the State if they operate inside North Carolina.
