

Hillsboro Future Homemaker Makes Furniture Her Project

By Miss Helen Sorrell
HHS Home Ec Teacher

Kathleen Dickey, second-year home economics pupil in the Hillsboro high school department, with the aid of her mother built and slipcovered the studio couch, shown in the accompanying photo, for her spring and summer project.

They began the project by making a studio couch frame from rough lumber. This frame was made the size of a pair of double bed springs that folded in the middle and was used for the back seat of the studio couch.

The seat, back and arms were then well padded before the slipcover was fitted. The slipcover was made from a very good quality material bought from a mill state at a low cost.

This piece of furniture is not only attractive, but very comfortable. The total cost of the entire job was only $5.

Kathleen, during the summer months, designed and made the dress she is wearing. She has also made and painted with textile paints five pairs of attractive curtains for her home. These, too, she slipcovered a chair in the living room to match her studio couch.

Sales, Prices Decline On Weed Marts

Characterizing the first week's sales of the 1947 crop of Eastern North Carolina flue-cured tobacco were lower prices and extremely light volume of offerings. The United States and North Carolina Departments of Agriculture report practically all grades ranged from $1 to $17 below averages established during the first week of sales last year. The general average was $43.34 per hundred—$9.02 under that paid during the same period in 1946. The chief reason for this lower average was the declines in averages by grades.

Another main factor in this week's marketing was the large amount of tobacco delivered to the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization corporation. Receipts were estimated at 18.5 per cent of sales. Loans were available last season but prevailing prices were considerably above the advance and deliveries were negligible. This year much interest was manifested by the growers and most eligible producers have taken advantage of the support program. The majority of the grades turned over to the stabilization corporation were top cutters and lugs and a few of the lower lugs. Other grades ranged from $1 to $8 over the Commodity Credit corporation support level. Most leaf and medium lug and priming grades were around $5 above the loan rates.

Limit For Fire Department Answering Calls Established

The Hillsboro fire department will in the future observe strictly the ruling of the town board that the fire department not answer requests for assistance to locations over one and one-half miles from the town limits, Fire Chief George Gilmore said this week.

The ruling has been on the town books for several years, but in recent months has not been observed by the fire department. Last fall the department answered several calls to fires in the county and seldom were the members able to do much toward saving the buildings. Often, they were able to prevent the fire from spreading to other nearby buildings.

Limits established by the department are: J. L. Brown residence on the Danville highway; Fairview on highway 70; furniture plant on highway 70A; West Hillsboro; Roy Crawford's home on the St. Mary's road; and Bonner Sawyer's home on the Chapel Hill road.

FIRE SYSTEM
Under the new telephone system installed and placed in operation in Hillsboro this week, the fire station can be reached by dialing 2222. The fire siren control has also been moved from the old telephone office to the fire department and will be controlled from that point.

Caldwell Here For Laymen's Meet Sunday

In a short Labor day meeting, the Orange county board of commissioners Monday approved the nomination of Clarence Hall Hines of route 1, Hillsboro, to be fire warden for the county, replacing P. H. Johns who recently resigned his position.

The nomination of Hines, a veteran of World War II, was made by the state forest fire system, and approved by the board after several other applications were made.

A representative of the fire system said that Hines, who lives three miles from Hillsboro, was believed qualified for the job and would make an able successor to Johns.

He said that as soon as was practicable the state would construct a private telephone line to Hines' home in order to make it possible for him to be reached at any time for reporting fires.

Hines comes to the county fire warden job at a time when the fire tower—a tremendous steel structure near Hillsboro—is getting under construction and one of his first responsibilities will be to man the tower with efficient help and personnel.

Hines is a former sergeant in the army.

JAIL INSURANCE

Insurance on the jail in Hillsboro was increased from $28,000 to $56,000 and the fire insurance policy with the Citizens Insurance Agency in Hillsboro renewed.

Alonzo Kenion, veterans' service officer for the county for the past 15 months, submitted his resignation to the board, saying that he plans on returning to school September 15.

No successor was appointed, he said.

No successor was appointed, the board delaying the appointment until the October meeting in order to determine from a special committee if the office should be continued in the county.

A couple of road petitions were received—one asking for the reopening of an old road in Eno township near the Duke Power plant and the second for a better entrance to Merritts school, a Negro school off the Chapel Hill-Pittsboro highway.
