A full-grown demonstration of ten or more measures for conservation of soil and water will be installed in full or in part March 17 on the farm of Milton Latta, five miles northeast of Hillsboro, with an anticipated throng of 2,000 expected for the first soil conservation field day ever to be held in North Carolina.

During the field day, a complete farm soil and water conservation program, developed with assistance from the Neuse River Soil Conservation District, will be applied on the farm insofar as seasonally practical. The program is designed to put every acre on the farm to its best use and treat every acre in accordance with its needs.

ly this time," he explained, "while the spectators are there to see." Ed Barnes, assistant county agent is helping to work out the details of construction work and over-all planning for the day.

The jobs will include:

1. The conversion of an old field ditch into a broad meadow outlet.
2. Terrace building.

Cooperative Endeavor

All the Agricultural Agencies in Orange county are cooperating in the field day to make it an outstanding demonstration of a complete farm conservation program based on sound land use. The demonstration will include application of all needed conservation practices on cropland, pasture, and woodland areas of the farm.

3. Pasture establishment.
4. Relocation of pasture fence.
5. Treatment of old pasture sod and alfalfa stand.
6. Establishment of contour strip farming with and without terraces.
7. Putting in a sericea lespedeza field border.
8. Timber stand improvement.
9. Crop tree selection and harvest.
10. Leaving off the trees...

H. S. Hogan, chairman of the board of supervisors of the Neuse River Soil Conservation District, said he thought this was wonderful opportunity for farmers in Orange County and the other counties in this district to see the application of the type of program the district is seeking to establish. He expressed the opinion that it would greatly speed up the progress of Soil Conservation work.

"More than 900 farmers in Orange County are carrying out similar plans on their farms, but this will be the first time the farmers of the county have had an opportunity to see the entire program applied on one farm in a single day. Ordinarily, we expect a farmer to take five years to do what will be accomplished in a few hours during the field day," Mr. Hogan said.

Vets Class To Help

Approximately 200 veterans from farm training classes in four high schools will assist in the actual application of conservation practices on the farm. They include veterans from Hillsboro, Aycock, and Chapel Hill High Schools, and Orange County Training School.

Jimmy Dunn of the Efland Club, Jack Dunn, Ronald Kennedy, Van Kenyon, III, and Heen Moler of the Hillsboro Club.

The judge will be E. U. Dillard, Anima Ihusbandry, Specialists of North Carolina State College. Also exhibited at the show will be the young boar, "Style Prince," son of the $4,400 champion of the breed, "Grandview Supreme."

Plans are also being worked out

"This type of demonstration should be held in a large number of communities throughout the south and other sections of the country. The unusual feature of the demonstration in the Schley Community is that the idea was developed and has been promoted by farmer members of the Schley Grange, who recognize the urgent need of a sound program of soil conservation in their community. The effects of the demonstration are expected to extend far beyond the local area," according to Don S. Matheson, County Farm Agent.

Need Is Seen

"There is widespread need for a better understanding of what is necessary to conserve the few remaining inches of topsoil in Orange County," said G. O. Reitzel, master of Orange County Pomona Grange, and past master of Schley Grange. "We need to do a complete job of soil and water conservation such as will be demonstrated to get really effective results."

Chapel Hill—J. B. Johns of Strowd Motor Company was elected president of the Kiwanis Club at the March 2 meeting. The new vice-president is H. C. McAllister, the secretary is J. B. Linker, and Lloyd R. Roof is the new treasurer. C. H. McGregor was chosen as the sergeant-at-arms.

A new board of directors was also elected by the Kiwanians composed of R. W. Bost, M. R. Evans, Fred G. Patterson, W. W. Pierson, Jr., and W. G. Chrisman.

Fred Reitzel, Master of Schley Grange, expressed the opinion that the event should be an outstanding success, since it has 100 percent support of the entire Grange. A large attendance is expected, including delegations from every section of the state.

In order to assist visitors to find the farm easily, road markers will be put up along the highways and at nearby road intersections to direct them to the farm. The State Highway Department will be requested to furnish assistance in handling the traffic during the day.

neighborhood Orange county and its income is chiefly from the sale of milk, poultry products and tobacco. It is considered an average Orange county farm and the jobs to be undertaken in one day usually require from three to five years to be completely installed. R. L. Mohler, soil conservation service representative, estimates.

Mohler emphasized the fact that, while heavy equipment will do most of the earth moving on the Latia farm, most of this sort of work can be done with the farm equipment on the average farm. "It is just necessary to do it quick-

Two members of Hillsboro American Legion Post No. 85 were awarded life memberships in the post at special exercises last week. On Tuesday night, March 5, Miss Mae Marris, a Hillsboro native, was making her home in Durham, presented with a life membership certificate by Ray Galloway, C. Department commander of the American Legion, and the award was re-presented to her on Friday night, March 5, by National Commander James F. O'Neill at a reception of the Durham American Legion Post in Durham. A number of Hillsboro Legionnaires attended the meeting. On Sunday afternoon, a group of Legionnaires from the Hillsboro post visited Legionnaire Earl Ridge in West Hillsboro and presented him with a life membership in the post.

The Orange county P-T. A. council has chosen the subject, "Orange County-Today and Tomorrow" for study this year.

Mebane Group Breaks Sod For Church

Mebane—Formal ground breaking rites were held Sunday during the regular hour for the morning worship service at the site of the proposed new Central Methodist Church on Fourth Street.

An appropriate scripture was read by the pastor, the Rev. T. B. Hough, and special music was rendered by the choir. The two oldest members of the church, Mrs. A. M. Cook and John W. Nicholson, lifted the sod that broke the ground for the new building.

The Board of Stewards, Trustees, Building Committee and Charter members of the church were represented at the rites which was witnessed by an estimated crowd of three or four hundred.

The new church is being built where the old Central Methodist Church stood until torn down recently to make room for the new building.

Duplex Building Permit Granted By Town Group

Chapel Hill—A special meeting of the Board of Aldermen was held last Friday to hear the request of Brody Clark for a permit to build duplex houses on Church Street, contrary to the zoning ordinance of that section. The board granted Mr. Clark's request.

An off-premises beer permit was granted to Ed Katson and Marvin Miller, who hope to open a business in the storeroom next to the Carolina Cab offices.

Two different parties appeared before the board to request the permit to run four additional taxicabs in Chapel Hill. There appears to be no public need for additional cabs at this time, and therefore the board refused to issue the permits.

The Board of Aldermen, headed by City Manager Gilbert Ray, studied further the pending ordinance for a planning and zoning board, which would plan streets and make new or rearrange old zones.

Grocery Opens In New Quarters

Chapel Hill—The West Franklin Street Grocery, formerly located in the Scarborough Building, opened its new colonial-type store Monday morning. It is now located by the Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture Store.

Sales will be held every Monday thereafter. Indications are that this sale on the 15th will be one of the largest in the six-year history of the market. Buyers from Durham, Oxford, Raleigh, Roxboro, Greensboro, Danville, Va., and many other points are expected to be present for the sale.

Loading and unloading ramps have been constructed conveniently on the south side of the building. These ramps are of truck height and lead directly to the loading and unloading pens.

The building measures 60x140 feet and is constructed of solid oak, coming from Chatham County.

Auction System Used

The auction system of selling is used at the market. It has proved to be the most satisfactory and efficient system over the past sev-

Good Prices Seen

March and April have nearly always seen good prices paid for livestock and it looks as these months this year will be no exception. Beef and pork should bring reasonably good prices, but probably not as high as some of the pork prices paid at some points during the last three years.
