Carrboro Health Center Dedicated To Civic Association In Sunday Ceremony

Carrboro—The Carrboro Health Center building was dedicated to the Carrboro Civic Association in an impressive ceremony last Sunday afternoon in the Health Center building at 5 o'clock, when the deed was presented by Mrs. M. R. Evans, president of the Carrboro Civic Association, to Mrs. W. R. Williams, president of the Carrboro Civic Club. Both the League and the Carrboro Club have worked on a 50-50 project to procure funds to finance the building. Mrs. Williams in accepting the deed expressed sincere thanks to the league in its untiring efforts to make the project what it is today. She expressed deep appreciation to the many persons and organizations who have helped in any way in the work. "So many have helped, that I could not possibly read all their names in these few minutes," she said. Other speakers on the short program were W. Madry, mayor of Chapel Hill; I. A. West, mayor of Carrboro. Approximately 75 persons were present for the dedication ceremony including Dr. W. P. Richardson, Dr. Fred Patterson, Dr. O. G. Garvin and David E. Arthur, president of the Carrboro Woolen Mill, who gave the building through Mr. Arthur to the Junior League of Chapel Hill. The only condition was that the building be moved from the property. This was in 1945. The league bought a lot near the Carrboro school two years ago, and with the help of the Carrboro Civic Association, has had the building moved to the new site and completely done over. The health center will be used for well-baby clinics, pre-school clinics and dental clinics held, as before, on the first Wednesday in every month. Dr. Fred Patterson of Chapel Hill is the physician in charge and nurses in charge will be Mrs. Ashewell Harward, Mrs. N. and Raymond Andrews, both registered nurses of Carrboro. Lower arrangements for the dedication last Sunday were furnished by Mrs. J. W. Fessler of the league, and members of the league served refreshments to the guests present. A telegram of congratulations was received at the dedication hour from Mrs. Donald Klais of Arizona, a former president of the league in Chapel Hill, whose name had been to see the Health Center a reality.

Choral Club To Present Mozart's "Requiem Mass"

The Chapel Hill Choral Club and the University Symphony Orchestra will perform Mozart's "Requiem Mass" at the annual commencement concert here Sunday, June 6, in Hill Hall at 8:30 p. m. Paul Young, associate professor of music, will conduct. The soloists will be Mrs. Harriet Keen, soprano; Miss Virginia Johnson, contralto; John Brinegar, tenor; and Rufus Norris, baritone. Miss Johnson, Brinegar and Norris are assistants in the Music Department, and Mrs. Keen is a former student in the music department. The "Requiem" was composed by Mozart at the request of an anonymous commission which so affected his imagination that he grew to believe himself commissioned by death to write his own requiem. The work is among Mozart's last compositions and was left unfinished at his death. The finishing touches were done by Francois Sussmayer, a pupil of Mozart. The Chapel Hill Choral Club is a volunteer organization composed of University students and faculty members and citizens of Chapel Hill, and has been performing standard and modern oratorios and choral works for nearly 20 years.

Mrs. L. R. Sturdivant Completes 48 Years Of Teaching School; 34 In Carrboro

Carrboro—"Aunt Josie" Sturdivant's curiosity almost got the best of her before she learned Tuesday night the reason for all the extra hustle around Carrboro School the past few weeks. The secret of the mysterious activity unfolded that night as Mrs. Sturdivant, who is retiring this spring after 48 years of teaching, was crowned May Queen in a colorful festival on the school ground. The community turned out en masse to witness the festival and among the spectators were scores of former pupils of the beloved woman who has been teaching here for 34 years, 18 years as principal. 250 Pupils Participate The festival was participated in by some 250 pupils of the school. Brightly costumed fairies and spring flowers, Robin Hood and his jaunty band, tumbling clowns, dancers, heralds, and a rhythm band made up the cast. After the festival the Carrboro P. T. A. paid tribute to the retiring principal. Mrs. Jessie West, president of the P. T. A., and a former pupil of Mrs. Sturdivant, presided as P. T. A. officials, town officials and community leaders praised the veteran teacher. A large portrait of Mrs. Sturdivant which has since been placed in the school lobby, was unveiled, and Mrs. Sturdivant was presented a watch from parents, teachers and pupils. "Aunt Josie" was only 16 years old when she did her first teaching—in a six-weeks school with only an eighth grade education. When she was 18 she taught a two-months school in Georgia. She considers that she did her first real teaching when she was 20. Received Her Degree In 1909 Determined to complete her education Mrs. Sturdivant attended Grand View High School in Tennessee where she completed her high school work in 1905. While going to high school she taught in summer schools. She entered Carson-Newman College in the winter of 1905 and was graduated in 1909. After teaching in several places she married Luther R. Sturdivant, and they moved to Carrboro, where he opened a store which he is still operating. That was in 1913. Mrs. Sturdivant's first teaching experience in Carrboro was with an overflow of pupils from the public school. She taught 40 children in her own home, and she recalls that they had to be seated on boxes and stumps, and at a few double desks. A new room was added to the Carrboro school the next year, and Mrs. Sturdivant has been there ever since. In 1924 Mrs. Sturdivant completed work at the University of North Carolina for her master's degree. The next milestone in her life was when she was named principal of the Carrboro School in spite of her statement that she did not want the job. Teaches Community Leaders For several years Mrs. Sturdivant conducted night school in her home for pupils in the community. Several community leaders, including the town manager and a department store official, attended these classes. Mrs. Sturdivant has been active in church and community affairs, and few people know the needs of the neighbors better than she. Incidentally Mrs. Sturdivant attended Baptist Training School in Louisville, Ky., in 1911 and 1912 until her health forced her to withdraw. "Aunt Josie" believes that a teacher should get out of the profession when she thinks more of herself than the children. She holds to the idea that the child should come first in the life of the teacher. Mrs. Sturdivant's geography book is traditional in the community as a device for classroom punishment, and many a former pupil looking on Tuesday night recalled personal encounter with the geography book. Among Mrs. Sturdivant's ideas about punishment is that of occasionally letting the children decide how they should be disciplined. But she also believes in seeing that such punishment is carried out properly. "Aunt Josie" has said that she considered it unfair to a child to permit him to think he could get See Mrs. Sturdivant, Page 8

Orange County voters—tripping to the polls in the largest number for a Primary election in many years—overwhelmingly returned the incumbent board of commissioners for another term, gave Carl T. Durham a majority of 1,963 votes in his race for Congress and approved Kerr Scott for their governor.

The present board of commissioners—who had filed as a group and who had sought re-election as a unit—ran up a large majority in the two Chapel Hill boxes to sweep the three places on the board. Saturday night—when the returns were coming in—it appeared until the Chapel Hill precinct reported their votes that two members of the old board had been swept out with Steve Allison running high, Ben F. Wilson second and T. J. Wilkerson. The returns from the Chapel Hill boxes, however, jumped the three incumbents into the lead and back on the board.

Scott High Man Heavy voting in Orange County's rural precincts—coupled with a larger than expected Albright support—pushed Kerr Scott into the forefront in the county's balloting. Albright ran second with Johnson third. Scott polled 1,569 votes, Albright 989 and Johnson 899.

Orange County gave "Bill" Umstead a heavy vote for his return to Congress, but in the state-wide returns Umstead ran behind former Governor Broughton who unseated Umstead as North Carolina's junior senator.

Thomas Turner polled 635 votes to run way back of Carl Durham in his unsuccessful attempt to secure Durham's seat in Congress. The Sixth District—Orange, Durham, Alamance and Guilford—returned Durham to Congress by a good sized majority.

For the other officials, Orange County voted with the state and went down the line for successful candidates.
