CARRY-ALL

Cotton canvas has found a place in the world of fashion in a smart new carry-all bag, the Vendome. The National Cotton Council reports that the bag has a dual—or even triple—personality. It serves as a versatile town handbag, an overnight case, or a roomy brief case.

University Women

Announce Contest

For Historical Paper

The North Carolina Division of the American Association of University Women have announced the launching of an annual contest for the best paper on the history of a North Carolina county. The competition is planned to stimulate, among the people of the state, an interest in their local history.

A plaque, to be placed in the Hall of History in Raleigh, will be engraved with the winning author's name, the title of the paper and the year. The A. A. U. W. will also award the author with an engraved trophy cup at the December meeting of the State Literary and Historical Association of North Carolina in Raleigh.

The history treatises should be of literary as well as historical value, describing the customs and progress of the particular county from its beginning to the present. Any history written within the past 10 years may be submitted. All papers should be mailed to Mrs. Clyde A. Milner, Guilford College, before November 20. Miss Katherine Carmichael, dean of women at the University, is in charge of the local contest promotion.

H. Quinlan; Cutest, Dana Phipps and Bill Bland.

Pleasant Garden.—Bill Shroud and Mrs. Bill (Barbara), of Saturday Evening Post, finally topped any phrase the State News Bureau could cook up: From Oklahoma they brought "left ham" as a regular menu item—in North Carolina it would likely be "left-over ham"; in Oklahoma it's ham from just above the hog's left ankle, extra tender because he always uses his right foot to scratch with.

Episcopal Bazaar

Planned Next Week

By Chapel Hill Group

The annual Episcopal Church bazaar, arranged by the Women's Auxiliary, will be held in the parish house on next Wednesday, November 10, beginning at 2 o'clock. Special committees of the Women's Auxiliary have been working and planning for months, under the direction of Mrs. Tyn-dal Harris, with Mrs. E. K. Powe in charge of publicity and Mrs. Carl Pegg in charge of decorations.

All articles for sale to the public are donated by the auxiliary members, and the money collected from the bazaar will go toward church benefits. Mrs. John Couch will be at the knitting booth, and Miss Mary Henderson will be at the needlework booth. Other booths will be categorized as "food" with Mrs. C. T. Woolen and Mrs. Jim Westbrook; "used clothing" with Mrs. Clyde Carter; "book stall" with Mrs. Jim Godfrey; "fruit cakes" with Mrs. Henry House; "white elephants" with Mrs. Athol Burnham and Mrs. Roy Homewood; "stationery" with Mrs. W. E. Padgett, and "Christmas decorations" with Mrs. M. R. Alexander in charge. All articles should be turned in at the parish house by noon Monday, perishable foods by 1:30 Wednesday.
