Grange Moves To Set Up New Organization To Guide Rural Roads Program in Orange

Mass Meeting Called For Monday Night At Courthouse; New Group Would Assume Responsibility For Approval

Hillsboro—A move to place responsibility for approval and allocation of Orange County roads to be paved under the $200,000,000 rural roads program in the hands of a citizen's committee from all sections of the county was begun here this week by the Orange County Pomona Grange. The action followed similar movements which have been placed into effect in Guilford and Rockingham counties. A mass meeting of citizens from all parts of the county has been called by the Grange for next Monday night to be held at the county courthouse at 8 o'clock. Highway Commissioner James Barnwell, and probably members of his staff, will be present to outline the current plans for the huge road building program and possibly indicate the extent of responsibility to be allotted the new committee in assignment of roads to be paved or improved. State Grange Master Harry Caldwell will also be present, as will officials from Guilford who are familiar with the operation of the proposed program in that county.

Under the plan worked out in the other counties, citizens attending the organization mass meeting nominated and elected fellow citizens from their own townships for the central county committee, which would be representative of the entire county. Such a move would relieve the county commissioners of their present responsibility for approving or disapproving road petitions as intermediary for the State Highway and Public Works Commission. Petitions and requests for road improvement would be handled by the new committee, should it be set up following the plan proposed by the Grange and adopted by the citizens of Guilford and Rockingham.

Opposition to being relieved of their responsibilities under the road program may come from the Board of County Commissioners although definite comment to that effect was not forthcoming yesterday pending further study of what the plan involved and a meeting of the board scheduled for last night.

Chairman Collier Cobb, asked for comment, said he believed the responsibility for the road program should be with the duly elected officials of the county. "Our board has taken this road business rather seriously," he said, "and is willing to assume responsibility for it."

"If something constructive can be worked out," he continued, "the commissioners will be delighted to have any help it can get." He emphasized the belief that it is most important to deliberate a sufficient time to decide which roads should be paved or surfaced to the benefit of the greatest number of people. He saw "no big hurry" in jumping into the paving program inasmuch as Orange's share of the money will be available anyhow, having already been set up by law and could possibly purchase more paving later than now.
