Veterans Can Now Determine Date Of Checks

Orange County veterans can now figure about when to expect their national service life insurance dividend checks, according to the newspaper Vet Times. In a copyrighted story the paper said that the number in the left-hand corner of the acknowledgment card returned to veterans told the story. According to the paper if this number is AO 1 or AO 2, checks should begin arriving the first two weeks in January. If the number is AO 3 or AO 4, the checks should be in the mails by the last two weeks in the month. AO 5 and AO 6 are due by the middle of February and so on according to the paper, which said that all veterans should have their checks by the end of April next year.

Rotarians Set Up $300 Fund For Scholarship

Chapel Hill—The Chapel Hill Rotary Club voted at its meeting last week a $300 scholarship to be awarded an outstanding Chapel Hill High senior who plans to enter the University of North Carolina.

The scholarship, effective next Fall, will be awarded to the graduating boy or girl who has attended the high school here at least three years, has a scholastic record ranking in the upper fifth of the graduating class, and has an excellent record in conduct and leadership.

The stipend will be paid in installments of $100 a quarter during the freshman year in the University. The scholarship probably will become an annual award.

Purpose of the award, it was said, "is to encourage scholarship and leadership." Selection of the recipient will be made by a committee of six persons composed of the Superintendent of the Chapel Hill schools, the president of the Rotary Club, and four members of the faculty appointed by the Superintendent.

Y. Z. Cannon is chairman of the Club's Community Service Committee which drew up plans for the award.

Hillsboro Map Restoration Aid At Williamsburg

Hillsboro—An accurate geometrical layout of 18th Century Hillsboro, one of the four now famous maps of the Colonial period drawn by the French engineer Sauthier, provided authentic references for use in the Restoration of Colonial Williamsburg.

So stated Alden Hopkins, resident landscape architect for the project, in an address here before members of the Eighth District of the North Carolina Garden Club in their meeting here last week. He described the maps as important documents because "not only were the streets and buildings indicated but the garden design details were clearly outlined."

Mrs. Walter Willard of Raleigh was elected new director for the district, succeeding Mrs. Roy Homewood of Chapel Hill. A total of 18 state officers and chairmen were present for the meeting.

Speaking on the subject, "Garden Restoration," Hopkins pointed out that authenticity must always be the first consideration in garden restoration and ornamentation should contribute to character and period atmosphere. Garden design has followed many fashions and sometimes fads, he continued.

NEW FLOUR MILL

Efland—John Efland and son have almost completed a new flour and feed mill near Efland on the site of the old one which burned last year. This mill will have complete flour making facilities and a large hammer mill and mixing plant for making feed on a custom basis. It has separate fire proof grain storage facilities.

The Need Is Real

An Editorial

(Editor's Note: This week, The News asked the Rev. Charles S. Hubbard to prepare a discussion of the issues involved in the forthcoming bond election. His clear, forceful presentation of the problem so coincided with the newspaper position that it is offered herewith in editorial form, denoting our complete endorsement.)

On November 22 the registered voters of Orange County will be asked to decide two questions: 1—Shall Orange County borrow $1,000,000 to improve its school facilities; and 2—shall Orange County borrow $250,000 to construct a new Court House building? In order to vote intelligently concerning these bond issues, citizens need the answer to a few definite questions.

Is the need real?

The enlargement and improvement of our school facilities is not just a good thing—it is a stark necessity! There has been almost no work done on the schools in the county for the past twelve years. The number of pupils has increased greatly in many schools. Many of our sixteen small Negro elementary schools are in such condition that they are now being operated in direct violation of state law. All of the white Chapel Hill and Hillsboro schools are so crowded as to make effective teaching of its pupils impossible. Here, as well as in other parts of the county, white and Negro children do not have proper classroom, library, lunchroom or toilet facilities. The need is real.

The county courthouse was built to serve the needs of the county 100 years ago, but today it simply will not do. Courtroom facilities have been the mark of judges and grand juries for long years past. Irreplaceable records can no longer be protected against damage or possible destruction. Business efficiency cannot be expected in the office space available. This need is real, too.

What improvements will the bond issues provide?

The school bond money will be added to $401,000 made available to this county from state funds. The full amount, $1,401,000 will be apportioned on a strict basis of need. New elementary buildings for Negro children will be erected at Cedar Grove and Efland, as well as a new Negro high school building in Chapel Hill for use of the southern part of the county. The Hillsboro Negro school will be enlarged and repaired. For white children, a new elementary school will be built in Chapel Hill. There, the high school, serving the southern part of the county, will be completed. Additions, renovations, or both, are planned for the white schools at Aycock, Caldwell, Efland, Hillsboro, West Hillsboro, White Cross and Carrboro. All planned improvements will barely meet minimum requirements for present school needs.

The $250,000 courthouse bond issue will make possible a new fireproof building for offices, courtroom and record storage. Not one cent of this money will be spent on the old courthouse. The old building, designated for additional office space, will be renovated from current funds.

What will the bond issues cost the taxpayer?

The combined bond issues, if carried, will cost the county taxpayer 15 cents per $100 valuation. Since our current assessment is 85 cents, the future assessment will be $1. This will add only $1.50 yearly tax for a $1,000 assessment, and only $7.50 yearly tax for a $5,000 assessment. It is expected that, on this schedule, all bonds will be retired within 25 years. At the present time (exclusive of utilities) 52 per cent of our county tax money is paid in Chapel Hill township. This township has a property evaluation of over $14,000,000. Hillsboro is second with less than $5,000,000, and Cedar Grove third with slightly more than $2,000,000. Eno, Cheeks, Bingham and Little River follow in order.

Is there any other solution to the problem?

Insofar as the schools are concerned, there is no other decent solution. The urgent school situation will not and cannot be ignored. If the school bond issue is defeated, it is certain that Chapel Hill District will vote its own bonds and build its own schools under the Cleveland County Act, and irreparable damage will be done to any future cooperation between northern and southern parts of the county. What is left of the state funds will have to be spent entirely on Negro schools in an effort to forestall a just suit on the part of our Negro citizens, or a crackdown from the State Board of Health. And the rest of the county will remain as it is now—in an impossible situation. The school improvements must be made. They will be paid for out of current revenue, and without the help of Chapel Hill school district. And this will mean a tax increase very much greater than the one called for by the bond issue. The proposed school bond issue is the only effective and decent way to do the job.

The alternative solution to voting for the courthouse bond issue is to be content with ridiculous courtroom conditions and inefficient county government and business. This, too, is no solution.

Orange County is in a backward in the midst of progress. It is not expected that Orange County values the health, comfort and training of its children so lightly. It is expected that, on November 22, our citizens will vote overwhelmingly for both bond issues and for an ever better community.

Contracts Let For Two Projects In Orange County

Hillsboro—The rural roads paving program continued to hold the spotlight in the county's seven townships this week as community committees in each wound up preliminary work prior to presenting their selection to the county-wide steering committee here Monday night.

In many townships meetings were held this week to complete recommendations while in others, notably the smaller ones with smaller paving allotments, committees had already completed their work. No announcement was forthcoming as to any specific recommendations pending their presentation to the steering group and action by that body.

Monday night's meeting is at 7:30 o'clock at the courthouse and the heavy interest in the road program assures an enthusiastic attendance for those interested in the location of the 60 miles of paving passed to the county committees for their selection.

Meanwhile, announcement was made late last week of the letting of contracts for the paving of the first two stretches of road under the $200,000,000 program.

They were an approximate two mile section from Cheeks Crossing to Buckhorn and an approximate seven mile extension to the county line of the Carrboro-University Lake road. Paving on this latter road is being completed from the University Lake to Aubrey McLennan's farm with current funds of the Highway Department. The extension for which the contract was let to the Nello Teer Company last week will be from that point to the Alamance County line, from where an approved Alamance county project will extend the paving from the Orange line to Highway 87 through the Eli Whitney community.

The Cheeks Crossing-Buckhorn paving will extend the paved road already reaching from Highway 70 to Cheeks.

While no announcement has been made to that effect, it seems highly probable from previous statements by Highway Commissioner James Barnwell that the nine miles of paving already allotted will come from the 20 per cent of Orange's total mileage reserved by the Commissioner to use for connecting links, inter-county projects, etc.

Legion Post Goes Over Top In Membership

Hillsboro—Back from a membership meeting of the North Carolina Department at Goldsboro, Commander Jerry B. Stone of the Hillsboro American Post No. 85 this week paid tribute to Legionnaire John Simpson and other members of the local membership committee for their work in putting the post over the top of the quota set by the state organization.

"Where other posts is the state have had a lag in membership, the local committee by hard work was over the top when the Goldsboro membership meeting was held," Stone said. He described Simpson as one of the state's leading "go-getters," the term the Legion uses to describe its leaders.

Attending the Goldsboro meeting with Stone were Owen S. Robertson, A. H. Graham, Sim Efland, and Allen Watkins. Both Stone and Graham spoke on the membership record of the Hillsboro post.

Walter G. Wrenn and J. Martin Crabtree serve on the membership committee along with Simpson, Efland, Robertson and Rosemond.

Tentative plans for annual Bingo Party on November 22 and an Armistice Day program have been made but details have not been released.
