

Reds Not Likely To Try American Blitz Says Hart

Chapel Hill — "Although the Soviet government is extremely unlikely to accept any of the current plans for preventing the aggressive use of modern weapons, there is considerable reason to expect that the Soviet rulers would be able to launch an atomic blitz against American cities," said Dr. Hornell Hart, Director of the Co-operative Concensus Project for World Law and Order and professor of sociology in Duke University Monday night.

Dr. Hart's speech was sponsored by the Chapel Hill and student chapters of the United World Federalists. He was introduced by Dr. N. J. Demerath, professor of sociology in the University here.

Assenting that world democracy, though impossible immediately, is attainable within the reasonably near future," Dr. Hart said "peace-loving nations probably have enough time to achieve world security by consent, if organized collective intelligence is fully and systematically applied to the problem.

"The beginnings of world democracy already exist," Dr. Hart said. "Twelve nations have demonstrated, during the past 135 years, that democracies can work out their international relations without warring against each other, and to their mutual prosperity and security. These countries are the United States, Great Britain, Canada, New Zealand and Australia; Sweden, Norway and Denmark; France, Switzerland, The Netherlands and Belgium."

World cooperation by consent can be explained, if the United Nations is developed with sufficient vigor, Dr. Hart said. He remarked that collaborators in the Concensus Project, including many of the world's most distinguished leaders toward international cooperation, are almost unanimously in favor of working united to thus increase the effectiveness of the United Nations.

"Most of the collaborators believe also in having our delegation in the UN explore with the other delegations the agreements which exist or which can be developed as to world federal government. They agree that this new world order should be based on justice and, to the utmost practical extent, upon the free consent of the peoples of the world," Dr. Hart Concluded.

MISS REBECCA RICE

Raleigh—The seventh annual "Spring Dance Concert" presented by the Folk Dance Group of Meredith College, which includes Miss Rebecca Rice of Hillsboro, is scheduled for Saturday evening, April 1, in the new College Auditorium.

Fifty-four dancers from advanced and intermediate folk-dancing classes in the physical education department will present five groups of dances from European, classic, Colonial, Mexican, and American folk dance collections. Some 700 pieces of costuming will be used, which with a few exceptions were all made by students and staff of the college.

CANDIDATE JONES

Chapel Hill—Graham Jones, former Chapel Hill reporter for The News of Orange County, has declared as an independent candidate for editorship of the Daily Tar Heel, student newspaper at the University of North Carolina.

Jones, a journalism major, said he was resigning as president of the local chapter of the Young Democrats Club. He is also Legislature floor leader of the Student Party, one of two active political groups on the campus.

Two other candidates are Chuck Hauser, Fayetteville, present editor, and Bill Kellam, Chapel Hill.

SUNRISE SERVICE

New Hope — Easter Sunrise Services will be held at the New Hope Presbyterian Church at six o'clock on Easter morning.

Comedy at School

The Othello Club of Lincoln High School presented the Sedalia High School players in the one-act comedy "The Perfect Gentleman" in the school auditorium last Thursday morning at 10:36, the Activity Period.

The fine performance of Alease Miller in the role of Margaret brought forth prolonged applause. The whole performance provoked much praise from the students, teachers, and visitors from the village. Mrs. Hubert Robinson and her little one of the Day Nursery seemed to enjoy the production.

"The Perfect Gentleman" was given first rating in the District Drama Festival held at Dudley High School, Greensboro, and was sent to Raleigh to be rated

Farm Questions

Question—How many cows were bred artificially in North Carolina last year?

Answer—Final reports show that the State's 50 artificial breeding units bred a total of 27,123 cows during the year, says J. F. Brown, extension dairy specialist at State College. The Forsyth unit, oldest in the State led with a total of 1,949 cows bred. Other leading units were Union, 1,276; Iredell, 1,156; Davie, 1,109; Randolph, 1,089; Buncombe, 1,061; Mecklenburg, 1,044; and Alamance, 1,002. Brown says the breeding efficiency of technicians has continued to climb. Non-return percentages for September, October, and November, 1949, ran 65, 66, and 64 per cent respectively on a 60-to-90-day basis. That is, rows first bred during these months were not rebred during the following 70-90 days. Several new associations were formed during 1949 and operated during only a part of the year.

Question—Is side placement of fertilizer recommended for cotton?

Answer—Yes. Results from the North Carolina Experiment Station over a nine-year period show an average yield increase of 17 per cent where side placement was used. It is recommended that the fertilizer be placed three inches to one or both sides of the seed and two inches below the level of the seed. Proper placement prevents injury from fertilizer and results in better stands. For efficient use of fertilizer, it is essential that seed and root injury be prevented. Fertilizer attachments are available for tractor equipment which will place the fertilizer in either one or two bands to the side and below the level of the seed. Such equipment should be carefully set up and checked to assure correct placement of fertilizer. Where side-placements equipment is not available, mix the fertilizer with the soil in the row and bed on the fertilizer. This should be done about 10 days before planting.

The play is being directed by Mrs. M. D. Turner, teacher of English and French at Lincoln High School. Mrs. Katie Tinnin is chairman of the program committee.

FHA Entertains At Pre-School Clinic

By Dot Halthcock

The Future Homemakers turned the home economics kitchen into a circus on Tuesday, March 21, during the pre-school clinic. Colorful balloons with designs of circus animals were hanging from the lights. The centerpiece for the table was a tent surrounded by circus dolls and animals.

After each child received an examination, at the clinic, he was carried to the circus where he was served punch and animal cookies by girls dressed in clown suits. Each child was given a colorful clown hat which had been made by the first year home economics girls. The children were
