Patrol Is Ready For Game Influx

Chapel Hill — Saturday will bring the first great crowd of football fans into Chapel Hill as UNC starts its fall football season with a home game against State College. Because of the expected influx of 15,000 automobiles into the town, the State Highway Patrol has designated that NC 54 from Raleigh will be a one-way road from 12:15 to 2:15 p. m. on this Saturday and every Saturday that UNC has a home game.

The area to be affected extends from the town limits at Country Club Road to the intersection of Route 54 and the Durham cut-off, Route 751, five miles east. For about an hour following each game the road will be a one-way thoroughfare going east out of town.

Sgt. R. H. Harris of the Highway Patrol appealed to all persons living in the Glen Lennox, Greenwood, and Rogerson Drive colonies to return to their homes before noon on Saturday, in order to prevent any delays in their plans.

A detour route has been set up to reach these sections during the ban, running through Victory Village on Mason Farm Road, coming out on Route 54 just west of Rogerson Drive at the Pines restaurant. A highway patrolman will be stationed at this junction to help traffic enter the highway.

Cars traveling east on NC 54 after the game will have to turn towards Durham at the intersection of NC 751 five miles out, if they are in the left lane. A similar rule will apply at the west end of town, where all traffic en route west towards Greensboro will have to turn onto NC 86 to Hillsboro, if they are in the right lane at the intersection of 86 and 54 west.

This AF ROTC Unit, which is a department of the University of North Carolina confers upon its graduates commissions in the United States Air Force Reserve. The quota for students has recently been increased, but the number of applications for enrollment has shown that there will be a great deal of competition for the number of openings available.

Cadets are required to maintain a high scholastic average in both University and military courses. They take elective courses in the University which when complimented by military courses enable them to graduate qualified to assume duties as Air Comptrollers or Public Information Officers depending on the course of instruction followed.

High Bids Again Stall School Plans

Hillsboro — Rising building costs continue to stall Orange County's school building program and the Board of Education has again been forced to reconvene higher-then-expected bids with money appropriated.

Latest case in point was the opening of bids last week on an 8-classroom addition and lunchroom for Central School, the consolidated Negro school at Hillsboro.

Aggregate low bids for the project plus architects fee totaled $129,425.00. Funds previously appropriated for the project under the Bond Issue and State School Construction programs were set at $100,000.00.

Since the bids were far in excess of available money, no contracts were made following their opening. The county has 30 days in which to accept or reject them.

Architect Archie R. Davis was requested to check over the plans to see if any items might be omitted. Meanwhile, the Board of Education will confer with the Board of County Commissioners as to possible steps to take in the situation.

Low bidders for the school project and their bids:

General Construction — King-Hunter, Inc., $98,410.

Plumbing — W. M. Hunt-Plumbing Co., $8,049.

Heating — J. R. Bagwell Company, $11,474.

Electrical — Durham Electrical Construction Company, $5,427.

TO INSTALL TELEVISION

Hillsboro — Members of Post 85, the American Legion, voted to equip the local Legion Hut with a television set at once for the convenience and pleasure of the membership.

Hillsboro — Orange County's 1950 tax assessment has been completed, showing an increased property valuation of over one million dollars despite a 40 per cent loss in automobile valuations resulting from deflated used car values as compared to the previous years.

Total property valuation, according to the just completed report of County Accountant Ira Ward, is $30,326,570 as compared to last year's $29,208,405. The new valuation, based on the new $1 tax rate adopted this year, should yield in excess of $50,000 more than last year.

All townships in the county contributed to the increased total except Cedar Grove and Little River, their assessments being slightly under the 1949 levy. Chapel Hill led the way with an increase close to one million dollars, and approximately one half the total property valuation is in that township.

Property of public utilities in Orange County were listed for $3,315,832 with Duke Power Company ($1,465,834) and North Carolina Railroad — Greensboro to Goldsboro ($1,322,323) being the biggest tax payers among them. Other major listers in this group included American Telephone and Telegraph Co., $326,738; Southern Bell, $55,373; Morris Telephone Co., $21,531; State University Railroad, $28,500; Public Service Company of N. C., Inc., $17,153 and the Bank of Chapel Hill, Carboro and Chapel Hill, $100,000.

The new valuations by townships are: Chapel Hill, $15,142,901; Hillsboro, $4,794,315; Bingham, $1,326,359; Cheeks, $1,720,849; Cedar Grove, $2,340,189; Little River, $962,855; Eno, $2,210,616.

Of the county's total valuation, $22,769,034 has been classified as real estate and $7,557,536 as personal property.

Moon Eclipse Will Be Visible In Carolina

Chapel Hill — The total eclipse of the moon of September 25, this year will be the last one visible from any part of the United States until January 29, 1953, according to Dr. Roy K. Marshall, director of the Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill.

There will be a partial eclipse visible on February 10, 1952, and there are two partial eclipses of the sun visible here in 1951, one on March 7, near sunset, the other September 1, near sunrise.

The eclipse begins at 9:31 P. M., as the lower left edge of the moon begins to enter the shadow, and a bite out of the bright moon begins to appear and to widen. A moment before 10:45 P. M., the eclipse is total, as the last bright part of the moon disappears, at the top of the moon's image. Totality lasts until about half a minute after 11:39, when the upper edge of the moon begins to emerge from the shadow. At 1:02, on Tuesday morning, Sept. 26, the bottom of the moon last emerges from the shadow.

During the eclipse, the moon does not disappear, because the Earth's atmosphere bends some light into the shadow, to illuminate the moon faintly. And this light, because it has traveled through the Earth's atmosphere, is reddish in color, just as a rising or setting Sun or Moon appears reddish when the light must travel by a long path through the air. It will be an interesting spectacle to watch, either with the naked eye, or through binoculars, if the sky is clear on Sept. 25 in the Carolinas.
