RALEIGH Round-up

WITH THE WINNER . . . Although North Carolina's older Georgia's bachelor Senator Richard Russell some of the younger Democrats are leaning hard to and apparently more cautious elements of the Democratic party will be found looking westward and over the mountains to Tennessee and Conskinner Estes favored between now and the national Democratic convention is summer.

Governor Kerr Scott and National Committeeman Jonathan Daniels are keeping mum. They want North Carolina to be with the man who is eventually the winner, who ever that might be. It is rather obvious that they have a hunch it will be Senator Richard Russell.

BUSTING OUT . . . Spring is busting out all over. See where the young vigorous males at a college invaded the co-eds' dormitory a few days ago. Not to be undone, the girls soon invaded right back and surrounded and took over the swains' domicile.

David Buckner, a candidate for editor of the student newspaper at the University of North Carolina, persuaded a local businessman to try out the idea of beer for five cents a glass. The proprietors agreed and last week began serving nickel brew at his two establishments in Chapel Hill. Buckner made the move a part of his political platform.

Best sign of spring here is gambling on the green of Capitol Square by high school students from throughout the State. They began their trek last week, and were welcomed with open arms by State officials and local merchants who see them not only as bringers of spring but as items of Easter business.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY . . . Among the many conventions scheduled to be held in Raleigh this spring is that of the N. C. Merchants Association. Founded in 1902, the organization will thus be observing its 50th birthday. Featured speaker will be J. C. Penny, one of the great merchants of the world, whose first store was established the same month the N. C. Merchants Association was founded.

The merchants will meet in Raleigh on Monday and Tuesday, May 19-20.

OUTSTANDING . . . Spgaking of merchants and annual meetings, the Durham Merchants Association, year-in-year-out, probably has the most entertaining held in the whole U. S. A.

They have had in years just such entertainers as Bob Hope, Arthur Godfrey, Bing Crosby, Perry Como. This year Durham merchants will have as stars of their annual meeting Como, Edgar Bergen and his sidekick, Charlie McCarthy, and Peggy Lee.

For this, the merchants owe a debt of gratitude to Executive Secretary William A. Kirkland, and the cooperation he has secured from Chesterfield cigarettes.

Candidate . . . We never were able to figure out what happened to Dr. James R. Parker of Lumberton in his race for Congress in the Seventh District a couple of years back. Anyway, he didn't make it.

Speaking of Dillon, S. C., radio station one night last week Dr. Parker announced he would be a candidate for President on an independent ticket. They have radio stations in and around Lumberton but we suppose Dr. Parker went over into South Carolina for his address in order to make his candidacy more national, more interstate in character. No use just messing around merely with Robeson County folks in this presidential thing, for they wouldn't even send him to the Legislature.

LET HIM GO . . . Anyway, it's all right. Let Dr. Parker run. This is a free country. We doubt that this new candidate will be able to make it, but if he wants to run more power to him. Let's hope, however, that Dr. Parker is an above-average or below-average fellow. We have had the "average man" type in the White House for seven years now, come Saturday, April 12, an there is some inkling the people would like to try another variety of President during the next four years.

FOREIGN POLICY . . . The foreign policy of this country more deeply affects the future of all of us and of our children, than anything else now on the horizon. We hear one day that we are loosing the could-ya, the next, that it may turn hot. The Near East simmers and the Far East boils. What should we do? Where should we turn.

Recently, Dr. Eugene E. Pfaff, professor of history at Womans College of UNC, spoke in High Point on foreign policy. I felt he had a real message for the American people. With his permission, here are five points for the conduct of our foreign policy. Look them over and see what you think. Remember we are in a long race. Militant belief, as Professor Pfaff says, not military muscle, may be the final decisive force.

1. Develop a plan for peace through which universal enforceable disarmament under law is practical. Make clear to the world

ADD RALEIGH— that it is Russia, not the U. A. A. which prevents all men from being freed from the scourge of war.

2. Develop the pilot plant operation of worldwide cooperative program of economic development and social reform aimed at liberating all mankind from hunger, poverty, disease, and oppression. This would demonstrate in action that democracy mean more than mere anti-Communism. This is the functional approach to peace. In many places in the world a play is a more effective weapon than a machine gun.

3. Be sure that cold war expediency does not cause us to betray at home or abroad the basic principles of a free society.

4. Build military power in such a way as to combine the maximum deterrent effect with the minimum of provocation and appearance of aggressive intentions.

5. Be sure that rearmament does not undermine the economic strength and political stability of a free world.

DAVIS . . . You good Scott people and many of the supporters of Charlie Johnson in 1948, will remember the editorials from the Zebulon Record. Excerpts and whole columns literally saturated North Carolina. They were written by Ferd Davis, Wake Forest alumnus and son of Baptist Minister Theo B. Davis, salt of the earth in these parts.

Well, Davis probably got in more good licks for Kerr Scott than any of the other in the pure laymen class. Subsequently, he was considered for several top brass positions in the Scott administration. Eventually he was appointed membership on the board of Conservation and Development.

A few weeks back a resolution instructing Conservation Department employees not to support actively any political candidate was introduced by Member Davis and unanimously adopted. Board Chairman Miles Smith of Salisbury said later that the resolution was not directed at Governor Scott.

Smith apparently didn't know what he was talking about, for Davis stated flatly that the resolution as directed at the Governor. He said that Governor Scott's support of Olive prompted the resolution. Wrote Davis: "Mr. Scott is for Hubert Olive and I am for William Umstead, but that gives neither of us the right to

Rural Zoning Hearing Ends On Softer Note

Chapel Hill—Rural zoning got another rough going-over at a hearing of the Chapel Hill Zoning Commission Enlarged this week but a softer note appeared to prevail at the conclusion.

Commission Chairman L. J. Phipps, following a compromise suggestion by Louis Sparrow of the Mt. Carmel section that more rural residents be brought in for consultation on the controversial proposed ordinance, welcomed the idea and announced that another meeting would be held on April 21.

No formal action was taken by the Commission and there has been no indication when the proposal will go back to the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen, who will also have to hold an advertised public hearing before taking final action.

As at previous meetings Phipps explained the provisions of the measure and handed out a 7-page digest and interpretation of the proposed law. Many of the rural residents continued to express bitter opposition to the proposal.

Among the speakers during the hearing were Chancellor Robert B. House of the University who emphasized that the University by virtue of its location in Orange County has a tremendous stake in the preservation of the best features and the promotion of orderly development of the surrounding area. He said the institution and its leadership had a tremendous interest in the problem and explained how values and economic advantages improved with the expansion of the University.

Rep. John W. Umstead explained the background on the passage of the enabling legislative act and promised that equal representation of rural residents on the Commission would be accomplished as soon as the next legislative session convenes. He had previously been proposed by the Commission itself at its last meeting.

School Board Picks Sectional Route For Paving

Hillsboro—School officials of the county have a conference with Highway Commissioner James H. Barnwell in Burlington today to present the Board of Education's recommendations for the construction of an all-weather road between Aycock and Caldwell sections.

The board Monday decided on the following recommendations after careful study of the three proposed routes:

1. That the Northern route, which is 7.1 miles long and serves 69 families, be surfaced as far as possible with the funds presently available.
2. That the central route of 7.8 miles which serves 43 families be given second preference if the Northern route cannot be surfaced.
3. That the board does not recommend the surfacing of the Southern route which is 6.3 miles and serves only 16 families.

Appearing for the county will be School Board Chairman C. W. Stanford, Superintendent G. P. Carr and Aycock School Committeeman John Hawkins.

Commissioners Study Tentative Bond Program

Hillsboro—Higher finances occupied the attention of the Board of County Commissioners this week as they tentatively laid the groundwork for additional bonded indebtedness for the county in the fiscal year 1953-54.

In addition the Board found time to re-appoint L. L. Conner for a new term on the Chapel Hill Zoning Commission Enlarged, the group now concerned with the proposition to zone the four-mile area around Chapel Hill, excluding the Town of Carrboro. Conner was appointed two months ago as one of three rural members to fill out an unexpired term. The Board also heard several requests for road improvements but took no action because of the small allotment of mileage given the county by the Highway Commission for adding to the highway system during the current year.

In the financial field, the Board tentatively agreed to sell the remainder of the voters-approved school improvement bonds, $265,000, before June 3 and to obtain a temporary loan for the $250,000 approved for the new courthouse in order to create a larger financial liability before the close of the fiscal year in order that additional bonds may be issued later without the requirement of a vote of the people. North Carolina laws permit governmental units to issue in any fiscal year only two-thirds of the net amount of bonded indebtedness reduced during the previous fiscal year. Should Orange County, therefore, not sell any bonds in the next fiscal year, then the county indebtedness would be reduced in excess of $200,000 during that year.

Favorable interest rates and the opportunities for investment of the surplus funds preclude any substantial loss by virtue of obtaining the monies now.

Quartet of Burlington and a Union Choir of sixty voices which is composed of choir members from the participating churches. This choir will be directed by Jimmie Mangum with Louis Thompson as accompanist. The following will also participate: Rev. J. F. Kernode, Rev. Walter Feltman, George Smith and Rev. Frank Petrucci.

Although this service is being promoted by the Laymen's League of the West Hillsboro churches, the public is invited. People are invited and expected to come not only from Hillsboro, but from all surrounding towns and cities as well.

Visitors and all attending are requested to meet at 5:30 a.m. at the West Hill School. The people will go in a group from the school to Eno Mountain, the place of the meeting. In case of rain, the service will be transferred to the West Hill School.

Contract Let For School Renovation At Caldwell

Hillsboro—The Board of Education Monday awarded a contract for the renovation of the Caldwell School and reappointed district school committeemen whose three year terms expire this year.

The action was taken at the regular meeting of the board, as during the past several months attended by Chairman C. W. Stanford and Kemp Cate.

The $14,960 contract for the Caldwell School went to the Bowles Construction Co. of Durham and calls for the removal of the six classrooms on each side of the old auditorium at Caldwell, the construction of brick side walls and other renovations to the auditorium building. The work will begin at once.

The construction is one of the final items on the proposed improvement program for which bond money was approved, other than the proposed new elementary schools at Hillsboro and Chapel Hill.

Re-appointed for new terms which expire in 1955 were the following: District 1, Bonner D. Sawyer; District 2, John Eiland; District 3, L. J. Rogers; District 4, D. M. Ray; and District 5, Flint Hamlin.

Superintendent G. P. Carr reported to the board that approximately two thirds of the money requested by the University for the Kellogg Foundation school administration improvement program had been approved by the Foundation. This county is committed to two years participation at $1,000 per year and it is anticipated that some $4,000 will be spent from the Kellogg fund during that period.

Also reported by the superintendent were details of the sale of abandoned school property: the resale of Morris Grove and Hickory Grove on Saturday, the Sarah School building to Charlie Pope for $300 and the Fairfield School to J. L. Pople for $675.

Woman Files For Board

Hillsboro—The first woman to enter this year's primary race for a county-wide office announced her candidacy this week for a seat on the Orange County Board of Education.

She is Mrs. J. E. Adams, who lives on the outskirts of Carrboro and has been active in PTA and other civic activities in Chapel Hill for several years.

Mrs. Adams' candidacy brings to three the number of persons who have announced for nomination to positions on the County Board of Education. L. O. Kattsoff, University Philosophy professor, of Chapel Hill and Clarence D. Jones of Hillsboro have also filed with the chairman of the County Elections Board. At least one or two other candidates are expected to enter the race.

Mrs. Adams has lived in the southern part of Orange County, in the vicinity of Chapel Hill, for the past 15 years. She is the author of two books for children on religious subjects and a native of the state of Georgia. She has been active in the County Council of the Parent-Teachers Association of Orange County for a number of years, having served on the council's executive board, first as vice-president and then as president, for the last four years. She has two children in school and her husband is a professor of botany at the University.

In announcing her candidacy she issued the following statement:

"As a member of the County School Board I should endeavor to work for a long range plan for all the schools of the county; a plan which would look to meeting the needs of each school as rapidly as possible. This plan should cover not only present needs but also such future needs as can be foreseen at the present time. Only through long range and comprehensive planning can the needs of all the children in the county be met at the least possible cost to the taxpayer of the county. Spending without an overall plan is always more expensive in the long run.

"Planning of this type must be done by the administrative officers and the teachers of all the schools of the county. When such a plan is once adopted, however, it is the responsibility of the County School Board to see that it has an opportunity to be put into effect. Only through the support of the general public is this possible. As a member of the County School Board I should endeavor to keep the public informed of and therefore interested in school needs and plans."

Patrolman Smith Speaks To Grange

Hillsboro—T. P. Smith, highway patrolman, talked to the St. Marys Grange members in an informal discussion April at their regular monthly meeting.

The Grange members asked questions about traffic laws, regulations, registration of automobiles and farm machinery; also causes and remedies of highway accidents. An interesting point discussed was what was the first thing to do in case of an accident. Said Smith: First, call the Mayor's or Sheriff's office. A two way radio system with Chapel Hill is located here, they in turn call Raleigh and Raleigh calls the patrolman nearest the position. All this transaction is carried on in a few seconds.

Another important point discussed was when to call a patrolman. Any accident costing as much as $25 must be called to the attention of some patrolman.

Business discussed were telephones, results of the blood bank, PMA program, and Democratic Rally.

Afterwards the meetings was adjourned and everyone enjoyed recreation and refreshments.
