Welfare Policies Tightened for Older Children

vised State-wide policies established by the State Board of Public Welfare to carry out the assistance statutes are now effect in this county, according Annie Strowd, superintendent of the Orange County Department of Public Welfare.

Under the new policy," said Annie Strowd, "older children in families receiving public assistance must be able to show evidence that they have made an effort to find employment to help their way in the home.

If these children, 18 years of age and older or between 16 and 18 and not in school, are unemployed they must be registered with the Employment Service as evidence of their efforts to secure employment."

Miss Strowd pointed out that the only exception which would be made in this policy would be in the home situation of the child is such that his services are essential because of the incapacity of the parent.

As the case workers of the county department of public welfare make their periodic visits, they will review the employment status of all children in this age group. If such children are unemployed and cannot furnish evidence of having made an effort to secure employment, the parent must be determined to be in need," Miss Strowd said.

the Presbyterian lay leader.

The Wyatts, leading Baptists, run the Job P. Wyatt Co., while the Hudsons—and principally Karl, Jr., operate Hudson-Belk.

Question here is which denomination will win out: Presbyterian or Baptist? Until we hear otherwise, we will tag along with the Baptists on this one.

OPTIMISM . . . With the Primary only a few days off, a remark made by O. Max Gardner in May of 1927 may prove interesting at this time.

Angus W. McLean was Governor. O. Max Gardner had been beaten for Governor seven years earlier when Senator Furnifold Simmons quietly but powerfully edged his power over Cameron Morrison.

Gardner said in 1927 that folks who thought he would be the next Governor were guilty of "audacious optimism."

Well, he went in with nothing to bother him in 1928 and pretty well controlled politics in North Carolina for the next 20 years.

Not since Gardner, who was Lieutenant Governor in 1916-20, has one of our Number Two men been elected Governor.

NOT REGISTERED . . . For two or three weeks now we have been writing here about each person's participation in Government by the simple act of registering. But you can't vote unless you are registered—and in North Carolina in 1950 there were 711,000 people—or considerably larger than the number which voted—not even registered to vote.

In South Carolina, whose population is much smaller than ours, non-registered voters numbered 601,000.

In Texas there were 3,076,000 non-registered voters in 1950.

TO PARIS? . . . We can't get the lowdown on the rumor, but reports persist that Kerr Scott's private secretary, John Marshall, will soon go to Paris as personnel man for Jones Construction Company. May be nothing to it, but stranger things have happened

Jaycees Win Two State Honors At Convention

Chapel Hill—Chapel Hill's Jaycees came away from the state convention of the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce in Charlotte last weekend with two honors.

The club won the Geissenbier Memorial Award for being the most outstanding Jaycee group in the state during the past year in town of under 10,000. About two-thirds of the 90 Jaycee clubs in North Carolina come in this category. William Sloan, new president of the local group, received the award at the inaugural banquet Saturday night, in the absence of past president William M. Alexander. The award was made on the basis of a scrapbook and digest of the past year's activities, which were compiled by President Alexander, Marvin Lipman, and Roland Giduz. The club is now eligible to enter the national awards competition, to be held at the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce convention next month in Dallas, Texas.

The second honor the Jaycees received was the election of Charles Phillips, a past president of the club here, as a state vice-president of the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce. As one of eight vice-presidents for the 5,000 Jaycees in North Carolina, Phillips will sit on the group's executive board and be directly responsible for the activities of 14 Junior Chamber groups in this area. A member of both the Chapel Hill and Durham Jaycees, Phillips is ice cream sales manager for Long Meadow Farms and Chairman of the Chapel Hill Recreation Commission. He has been active in Jaycee projects over the state for five years.

Members of the local club attending the Charlotte convention, in addition to Phillips and Sloan, were Cass Johnson, Roland Giduz, Richmond Sloan, and Bill Alexander.

Cookbook By Church Women Off Press

The Hillsboro Presbyterian cookbook, "Selected Hillsboro Recipes," is here!

They came off the press last weekend. Their bright yellow plastic covers, that will enhance any kitchen color scheme, are cropping up all over town right now. One man was overheard yesterday saying, "I won't know what to expect for supper from now on; my wife got her new cookbook today!"

The new cookbooks are full of tried-and-true recipes, according to the Presbyterian ladies, both old and new. The first section of the books contain choice recipes of all sorts—cakes, breads, meats, and relishes—that have been handed down from mother to daughter as cherished prizes. Syllabus, Beaten Biscuits, Ida Beasley's "Sally Lunn," the famous Lincoln and Douglas cake, as well as Miss Bessey Kirkland's green tomato pickle are included here. After this unusual section, the book carries us through a complete meal, (or many), beginning with appetizers, beverages, and sandwiches (sandwiches for parties, lunch-box, or high tea) on through meats, salads, vegetables, breads, pies, and heavier sweets to pickles and even how to use what we couldn't eat today tomorrow!

There are three sections of this book that besides the old recipe section are rather unusual and useful. There is one section devoted to cooking game. This is not the kind of food that can be cooked everyday, but is an invaluable aid when the opportunity arises. Then the section of casserole dishes brings the book quite up-to-date on one of today's favorite methods. There are some excellent "meals-in-one-dish" that can save time and drudgery in meal preparation here. The last section of the book called "second-day cookery" deals most appetizingly with the leftovers problem.

There are so many quick, easy recipes in this book. Modern day food preparation is getting more and more away from long, involved procedures, and the need for simplicity was recognized in this publication. There are basic recipes for the beginner, such as plain biscuits and pastry; and then more ambitious and toothsome delights, such as the Colonial Inn's orange rolls, easy spoon bread, salt-rising bread, and a variety of reliable pies.

The excellent meat section includes the Schley Grange gilet gravy, recipes for a chicken-brunswick stew, barbecued spareribs, among many other unusually good ideas are all sorts of delicious salad and dessert recipes as well as outstanding cakes, cookies, and candies. With over 375 recipes included, the book is well-rounded in the kinds of cooking presented. It is not top-heavy with any one kind of food, but has attempted to cater to the well-balanced diet. The out-of-town recipes included were especially requested because they were known to be outstanding and would help round out a good book.

The Presbyterians have an added feature to their book for which they are quite proud. Each section is introduced by a sketch of one of the historic homes and buildings around town. Since Hillsboro is such an old town and one that has seen so much history made throughout its almost 200 years' existence, there are many very old places that could have been used to set off the book. From the nature of its origin therefore, the sketches were limited to homes of Presbyterians and three public buildings. Much appreciation is expressed to those good people who did the sketches for the book: the Presbyterian pastor, Mr. Birdseye, a Methodist friend of the church, Mrs. George Gilmore, and four of its members: Sue Fryer, Bill Lynch, Edmund Strudwick, and Mrs. Ben Johnston.

"Selected Hillsboro Recipes" may be secured from Mrs. Robert Copeland, Mrs. Allen Walker, Mrs. Irving Birdseye, or Mrs. C. D. Jones. The price is $2.00, and they are available right now!

Special Tax To Finance Courthouse Is Studied

Road - Politics Issue Brings Statements

The revelation last week by this newspaper that Governor Scott had held a meeting with Orange County citizens, promised to apply $75,000 from the surplus fund to the improvement of Old No. 10 highway, and called upon his visitors to support Hubert Olive for governor has stirred up considerable controversy and brought forth varying statements as to just what occurred.

The variation, however, appears to be strictly of the minor variety and the color of remarks generally based upon which side of the political fence the witness stands.

These four facts apparently are not contested:

1. The meeting was held.

2. The road improvement was promised.

3. Voting for Olive was discussed in connection with the promise for roads.

4. The Olive literature was handed out in the Governor's home.

Approximately 60 or 70 persons living along and on roads leading off Old No. 10 from West Hillsboro to Cheeks Crossing attended the meeting about 7 o'clock Saturday May 10. Invitations were extended by Howard Neese and Andrew B. Lloyd after the Governor had indicated he would have the road graded and gravelled "if they could get enough people to come up and show interest in it."

The governor was the first speaker, made his promises without any prompting or petition by any of his visitors during the meeting and according to one version, a signed statement by J. M. Oakley, said "at least 12 or 15 times" that "I am going to help you out and fix your road and I want you to help me out and vote for Mr. Olive for Governor."

David L. Blue said the Governor promised to grade and gravel the road and "after that, he said he would appreciate any votes that could be given to Mr. Olive."

Another version, a statement entitled "Let's Be Fair," was released by Howard Neese and signed by H. A. Wilson, C. R. Bowman, Ellis

Lewis, Truitt Lloyd, A. W. Lloyd, Dan Tapp, Coy Andrews, Steve Riley, J. C. Johnson, J. G. Pender and A. B. Lloyd. It said: "We called on him as a friend and a neighbor seeking advice and assistance in getting our road improved . . . the Governor agreed to help us on the basis of need and merit. There were no 'ifs' or 'contingencies.' There was no pressure. There was no trade."

The three statements are presented below:

LET'S BE FAIR

"We, the undersigned citizens of Orange County, were members of the delegation which visited Governor Scott on Saturday, May 10 at his Haw River farm.

"We called on him as a friend and a neighbor seeking advice and assistance in getting our road improved. We presented our request on the basis of need and merit. The Governor agreed to help us on the basis of need and merit. There were no 'ifs' or 'contingencies.' There was no pressure. There was no trade."

"Later, in a friendly session, we were discussing the Governor's race. The Governor said he was supporting Olive because he felt he would continue the road, school, rural electrification and telephone programs in the interest of the rural people.

"We, the undersigned, resent the efforts of those who have misrepresented these facts in an effort to aid any political candidate.

"We appreciate a Governor who has kept faith with his people and has time to sit down with his neighbors and discuss their problems. We appreciate the Governor's counsel and assistance. It is our belief our road will be improved on the basis of merit. However, we do not appreciate the efforts of those who imply 'political trading', whether they are trying to stop our road, smear our Governor, or aid the cause of a gubernatorial candidate.

"We are proud we have a Governor who stands by the rural people, understands their needs and is willing to help, despite the efforts of those who are willing to sacrifice us and our community in the selfish interest of any candidate."

BLUE'S STATEMENT

"I was invited to attend the meeting at Governor Scott's farm on Saturday May 10 by Mr. Andrew Lloyd, who saw me at a ball game that afternoon.

Officials of the Exchange Club of Hillsboro announced plans today for a salvage coat hanger drive. A house to house canvass to collect coat hangers will be staged on Tuesday, May 27th and Wednesday, May 28th. Club members will call on each house in the assigned block beginning at 6 p.m. Tuesday evening. All metal coat hangers in good condition will be accepted.

The Club has made arrangements to sell the hangers and proceeds received will be applied on the remaining debt of $275 on the recent Exchange Club project of installing a fence around the High School Athletic Field and Playground area.

CHALLENGE DAY

Saturday will be challenge day at the County's 16 polling places when the right of anyone to registration can be protested.

Registration books were closed last Saturday for the Primary to be held next Saturday, May 31. Close to 1,000 new voters were placed on the books during the period May 3-17 when they were open.

A total of 502 new names were put on the books at Chapel Hill Northside precinct and 249 at Chapel Hill southside. Ninety five were added at Hillsboro and 46 at Efland. Reports have not been received from other registrars.

The new registration brings to well over 10,000 the number of registered voters in Orange County.

Hillsboro—The Board of County Commissioners is studying the possibility of additional taxation to finance the building of the new county courthouse.

The commissioners delayed for many months any action on the courthouse, using the bonds voted by the people for that purpose in 1949, because of the greater urgency of the school building program, the increased demands on contractors and the rising spiral of costs which seemed to preclude the building of the structure with the money available.

Then, plans struck a snag in the form of government restrictions on building. This ban on the local project was lifted last month. Bids are scheduled to be opened at the courthouse next Wednesday.

Last Monday, W. E. Easterling, secretary of the Local Government Commission which advises counties and municipalities on their financial problems, met with the Board advising them that additional taxes to provide funds above the amount available from bonds are legal. The attorney general, he advised, has ruled that the 15c constitutional limit on taxation except for special purposes would not apply because of the general act of the General Assembly giving special approval for a tax for the special purpose. He said the building of courthouses has been ruled to be both a "necessary expense" and a "special purpose."

No action has been taken by the commissioners, but a scheduled sale of a bond anticipation note on the $250,000 in courthouse bonds, scheduled for next Tuesday, has been postponed until after the opening of bids.

Following this special meeting, the commissioners visiting various property on which the owners had protested as being too highly valued for tax purposes.

Presbyterians Announce Family Night Program

Hillsboro—The plans for another Family Night program were announced this week by the Presbyterian Church with a welcome to all to attend.

A year ago a very successful program was conducted on this annual occasion. Everyone liked the way it was done so well that it is to be repeated again on Friday night beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the local church.

Following a covered-dish picnic supper—the sound film "Appreciating Our Parents" will be shown. The group will then be divided into smaller discussion groups of various ages who will discuss the problems of family living presented by the film. Competent adult leaders will direct these discussions and the findings of each group will be shared to all the others.

The nursery will be open for preschool children but the other children will participate in the discussion groups.
