RALEIGH Round-up

CHANGES

We have good authority that the Republicans, starving for patronage long years away from the job, will begin moving in on the big jobs held by Democrats in February.

This new brooming is not expected to reach down into the lower brackets—sometimes referred to as echelons—for several months. However the best advice Democrats holding jobs other than janitorial and stenographic for Democrats holding jobs other than janitorial and stenographic seems to be as follows: After start looking around, save money, and enjoy life while you can. It's later than you think. Naturally, if you occupy one of the Federal positions, you are fully thinking that Civil Service will protect you. Don't figure on it. The Democrats played Civil Service, drew hundreds of thousands of additional employees under its protective wing, and thus in two decades paved the way for Careers in Government.

What the Democrats did the Republicans can undo. And the Republicans are hungry.

Around a dozen North Carolina postmasterships should be available for filling by Eisenhower by spring. We have it there are at least nine right now, including a 3d class post office at Oxford; a second class, Kenansville and Wake Forest; and third class jobs at Pine Level, Toeaga, Bridgeville, Salemburg, and Ansonville.

MUST BE "RIGHT"

Anyone who has had experience in attempting to secure a position for himself or a friend under the opposition party, be he Democrat or Republican, knows the applicant must be what is known as "right". If he isn't "right", and another applicant is "right", there are at least 50 various tried and true methods which can be followed in counting him out.

IN THEORY

In Theory, at least, postmasters have been under Civil Service and lifetime (to age 70) appointments since the misunderstanding Of Hunting Laws Causes Trouble For Several In County

Hillsboro—The general hunting season opens Thanksgiving Day and continues through January 1, except for squirrels which close on January 15.

Thus, the long awaited day approaches for thousands of hunting enthusiasts in this county, but an apparent misunderstanding of the game laws has already caused trouble for several persons.

Area Wildlife Protector Robert Logan of Chapel Hill points out that hunting licenses are required and open season regulations are also applicable in the training of dogs by hunters in this state. This apparently has been misunderstood and several persons have been apprehended during the past week who claimed they were out "just training their dogs" before the season opens.

Logan points out that all hunting license requirements must be met while training bird dogs or beagles. Under Chapter 113 of the General Statutes, Section 95, "No person shall at any time take wild animals or birds without first having procured a license as provided by this article."

Section 83 of the Chapter defines the term "take" as: "pursuing, shooting, hunting, killing, capturing, trapping, snaring and netting birds or animals, collecting birds' nests or eggs, and all lesser acts, such as disturbing or molesting birds or animals, or placing or using any net or other device for the purpose of taking birds or animals, whether or not they result in the taking of such birds or animals."

"Therefore," Logan points out, "in order to train bird dogs or beagles in the fields where game is disturbed, molested, or otherwise used in affecting the training, a license would be required since the definition of 'take' includes such acts."

The open season beginning on Thanksgiving is for wild turkeys, rabbits, squirrels and quail. The season will open also for trapping of mink and muskrat but no trap-early days of the New Deal. As a matter of cold, hard fact, the Civil Service requirements are so geared as to give each appointment political overtones.

Theoretically, too, Federal jobholders are under the Hatch Act and must not indulge in out-loud political opinion.

TURNOVER

Some postmasters in North Carolina pay good money. In Raleigh, for example, the base salary is $9,875 per year. It has been estimated that the turnover in postmasters in between 10 and 13 per cent annually.

At this rate, the Republicans without being mean about it can staff approximately 50 per cent of the top post office jobs in North Carolina and the nation in the next four years.

COLLEGE TROUBLES

With colleges almost as numerous as cotton mills in North Carolina, seldom a week passes that one or a dozen isn't marching across the headlines or getting comment in editorial columns. Last week, Wake Forest, the University, and Duke were in the act.

TRIEBLING

Wake Forest alumni are muttering that President Harold Tribble is shooting at their football team in that he has reduced scholarships for ditto from 35 to a flat 20. They further charge in behind-the-door conversation that the athletic bosses had little to offer this year's newcomers in the way of financial inducement, and declare that the future for football looks dark indeed at Baptist Hollow.

Other rambblings are to the effect that President Tribble, while undoubtedly choosing able assistants in the huge project pointed toward the Twin City, is reaching out and finding too many non-Wake Forest men. Also, that the move to Winston-Salem is exceedingly slow; and literally millions—some say 10, others as high as 15—must be raised before the school can begin operating in full swing at its new campus at Reynolds.

Presbyterians Honor Strudwicks In Naming Assembly Room For Them

Hillsboro—Members of the Hillsboro Presbyterian Church paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Shepperd Strudwick by naming the assembly room of the educational building "Strudwick Hall."

Mr. Strudwick has served as an elder for 48 years and Mrs. Strudwick has taken an active part in all activities of the church for many years, in addition to playing the organ and directing the choir for a long period.

At last Sunday's morning service, L. E. Beard, speaking for the officers and the Women of the Church, presented a resolution naming the building and calling for the placing of an identifying plaque. Mr. Beard's remarks were as follows:

"This church has been richly blessed by many able and devoted members who have in consecrated leadership given of themselves in her service. We have two such leaders with us in the dean of our officers and his wife. This church has been blessed and nurtured by their service over a long span of years. He has served as an Elder for 48 years and as superintendent of our Sunday School for about 33 years. She played the organ and directed the choir many years in addition to taking an active part in all other church activities particularly the Women of the Church."

"Now the services of this consecrated couple, Mr. and Mrs. Shepperd Strudwick, and of his family before him in this congregation are such that we desire to permanently associate their name with this church in such a way that it may continue to serve as an inspiration to us and those to come."

"Therefore, be it resolved that from this day forward the assembly room of the educational building be known as 'Strudwick Hall' and that an appropriate plaque be placed in the room to so identify it."

County Sells Final Issue Of Bonds As Interest Up

Five Contractors Will Work To Repair Old Courthouse

Hillsboro—While contractors a few hundred feet to the south are busy pouring concrete footings for its successor, the long awaited improvement program on Orange County's old, history-laden courthouse got underway this week.

No less than five different contractors will handle phases of the work which will follow in succession in the next few weeks.

George W. Kane, the Durham firm, began repairs Monday to the roof and chimney on the Southeast corner which was damaged several months ago by the falling tree and will do other repair work needed to the eaves all around the building. Estimated costs will be approximately $600 under the contract given on a time and material basis, as are all the other contracts for the various repairs planned.

This job is expected to be completed this week and went to the Kane firm by virtue of the inability of any local contractors to obtain the necessary labor to do the job.

Following this work, the entire exterior woodwork and stucco will be painted. Archie Graham of Efland has this job.

Upon completion of the painting, new gutters will be installed all around the building by R. M. Kennon, the Cheeks township tin-smith, after which the Young Roofing Company of Durham will repair weak places and paint the roof.

On the interior, plans and specifications are already being drawn for a complete re-wiring of the courthouse after which fluorescent light fixtures will be installed.

Meanwhile, as work on the new courthouse progressed, the contractor digging holes for footings for the foundation struck a large reinforced concrete slab and had to bring in the pneumatic hammers to discover a large rock-walled, concrete covered septic tank which they had not known existed. A pumping firm had to be brought in to drain the tank before construction on the footing could be continued.

Church Speaker

Dr. Bernard Boyd, Gray Professor of Biblical Literature at the University of North Carolina, will speak at the Hillsboro Presbyterian Church Monday night at 8 p.m. Dr. Boyd's topic will be "The Holy Spirit of Today". An invitation has been extended to congregations of all the churches in the county to attend.
