BETTY SUE COLE HONORED BY CO-HOSTESSES

Miss Betty Sue Cole was again honored when Misses Sue Walters, Emily Stone and Mrs. Horne entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Walters.

The living room was decorated with attractive arrangements of flowers.

After several games were played by the group prizes were awarded to Mrs. Foy R. Cole and Mrs. R. C. Minnis Jr.

The dining room featured a table arrangement with a miniature bride and groom before a miniature candle-light altar and the table was covered with a arrangement of evergreen and white flowers.

The hostesses served a dessert course of bridal tarts and cake squares with mints, nuts and gingers to the following guests: Madames Melba Compton of Durham, Madison Cates, John E. Hawkins, R. C. Hawkins, R. C. Minnin Jr., Foy Cole, Nat Ellis, Clarence Walters, Dwight Walters, H. G. Coleman Jr. and the honoree.

PTA Hears Panel Discussion On Kellogg Program

The Hillsboro Parent Teacher Association held its November meeting in the High School Auditorium on November 18, at 7:30 p.m.

An interesting panel discussion on "The Kellogg School Improvement Program" was held with Superintendent G. Paul Carr as moderator. The following took part on the program: Dr. W. E. Rosenstengel, Sidney Green, Mrs. Donald Standford, the Rev. John Ensign, Mrs. Clyde Roberts, Van Kenyon and G. C. McBane.

The Rev. Irving Birdseye conducted the devotional from Psalm 102.

A report from treasurer gave a balance of $412.17 in the treasury. This increase in P.T.A. Funds was due largely to the Halloween Carnival, and appreciation was expressed to all who had a part in making this project a success.

Mr. Vance Isenhour gave a report from the County Council which had chosen as its project, School Bus Transportation. A motion was made and carried to appoint a committee to work with other P. T. A.'s on the problem.

Mrs. Dowdy's seventh grade won the attendance prize.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. E. T. Campbell's home room presented a very interesting play—"Sally and the Villian."

In 1951 the loss and damage on approximately 15,000 carloads of peaches was one-half million dollars, or $30 per car.

Of every 100 pounds of tomatoes picked by the farmers, only 57 pounds reached the housewives in 1951.

T B Seals, A Christmas Tradition

The red Double-Barred Cross, emblem of the people's 20th century crusade against tuberculosis, is traditionally featured on the Christmas Seal. Adapted from the historic Cross of Lorraine, it is the registered insignia of the National Tuberculosis Association and the 3,000 affiliated state and local associations in the annual Christmas Seal Sale to support their year-round programs for the control and prevention of tuberculosis. This year's sale began on November 17 and continues until December 25.

This year the red Double-Barred Cross is more prominently displayed than ever before, occupying nearly half the Seal's surface and lighted by a candle set in an old-fashioned brass candlestick. There's a special reason. This is the 50th anniversary of the Double-Barred Cross as the international symbol of the war against tuberculosis. It was adopted as the world emblem on October 23, 1902, by unanimous vote of the first International Conference on Tuberculosis, held in Berlin and attended by medical and lay leaders from 20 nations, including the United States.

On May 17, 1906, the National Tuberculosis Association formally adopted the Double-Barred Cross as its official emblem, and, in 1920, in order to identify it unmistakably with the voluntary associations' war on tuberculosis, the NTA registered the Double-Barred Cross as its trademark.

To millions of American families the red Double-Barred Cross means life and hope and knowledge. It means that tuberculosis, killer that it is, can be defeated: Under the Double-Barred Cross, it is estimated that 6,000,000 lives have been saved in half a century. But TB today kills more Americans than all other infectious diseases combined. It kills more persons between 15 and 35 than any other disease. It kills at a rate of 34,000 persons a year, and at least 115,000 new cases are reported every year.

Yet tuberculosis can be cured and it can be prevented. Toward this end the NTA and its affiliates are fighting tuberculosis in every part of this country through case finding, including wider use of chest X-rays to find unsuspected cases of TB, through health education, medical research, and rehabilitation of the tuberculous, including special services in meeting their social, economic, and employment problems. Under the Double-Barred Cross, the NTA and its affiliated associations work with the people, the medical and nursing professions, and the official health agencies to carry the crusade forward, for this is a people's crusade made up of millions of Americans working together in their home communities.
