

KIDD BREWER'S Raleigh Roundup

LATE... Well, the campaign are about over. As this outpouring move out of it is less than a week until primary.

...were all to do over, as we times say, the candidates have fought a different being human, like the rest hardly a seeker for office is with the campaign he has tested.

...instance, Insurance Commissioner Charlie Gold says if he had to do over, he would have had printed with no reading, except possibly the words: "Insurance Commissioner."

...badges would have been of a pale orange—or golden color. He says he figures that would be sufficient to get over his ego.

...slogan is "Keep the Commission of Insurance office on the standard."

...there will be many a campaign on Saturday night as the start pouring in will say: "I have worked harder."

...general-candidates will be heard in words to the effect that waited too late to start swinging. Procrastination is not only a chief of time, but frequently it is a chief of victory.

...OWN EAST... The oldtimers here—and there are fewer here than the time—are saying the race for the U. S. Senate is decided in about 30 counties east of Raleigh. There is a battleground, they say, and a Lennon and Scott apparatus believe it, for they have a lot of time and money on advertising in the east.

...y is the east so important in the big votes are in the Piedmont. It has been so in recent years the Piedmont mountain counties general-candidates themselves out. They a lot of votes, yes, but with and Johnson in 1948 they about even. The same was except with Forsyth—in the Graham battle in 1950 and the Olive-Umstead battle of ...the other hand, the east generally slugs one way or the other. Its big strength in 1948 came in those big counties down east. Since Senator Lennon is from the east, he is conceding nothing.

...lot of things have been happening in the senatorial thing in the past two weeks. It is doubtful that there will be a second primary. Watch your boys, for only the careless bet on this one. Our main reason for thinking there will be no off is that the "other" candidates have not been able to get up much steam as we thought they did three or four weeks ago.

...URHAM FOR SCOTT?... We are hearing that Governor William B. Umstead's home county of Durham is one of the weakest for him in these parts. Reports we insist that it is one of the hottest Scott counties going.

...could be—despite the fact that Governor Umstead has a lot of votes there. In 1948, Senatorial candidate Umstead beat Wake County Native J. M. Broughton in all but took Broughton's precinct here in Raleigh.

...SEARCHERS... Since I wrote three or four weeks ago that public is entitled to know all facts regarding candidates for office—and facts regarding individuals holding public office—Raleigh daily has had at least one of its top political reporters the beat investigating me and making inquiries in at least three departments.

...since this has come to my attention within the past ten days, it will be imagined that the reporter—if there are any unoccupied—are also devoting time on me.

...it might be well, from the standpoint, if this newspaper (See ROUNDUP, page 2)

Outbreak Of Army Worms Hits Grain Crop In Part Of County

HILLSBORO — An outbreak of army worms is attacking small grain in the southwestern section of Orange County and some of the fields have been completely destroyed, County Agent Don S. Matheson reported yesterday.

In a communication addressed to all farmers of Orange County, Matheson said "On the farms of William Morrow and Grady Lloyd some of the small grain has been completely destroyed by army worms and there are millions of them present in most of their grain fields. These worms are very voracious if allowed to live, but can be controlled by dusting with DDT or Toxaphene. The most practical way is to dust by airplane," he continued.

Matheson said arrangements had been made to provide airplane dusting for any field in the county where the outbreak occurs for $4 to $6 per acre, depending upon the amount of insecticide used. For this service he said farmers could notify him or Nathan Simpson at the Alamance Airport, telephone Burlington 6-6788.

Matheson said the big danger is not knowing you have the worms present until they have done a lot of damage. "I would advise each of you," he told the farmers, "to look over your small grain each day until this danger passes. These worms are hard to see in the day time because they burrow in the ground close to the stems and come up the stalk at night. If you can find these worms present in the field when they are small and dust the field immediately not much damage will be done. Look over your fields carefully and let us know if you have any damage."

The county agent said the worms can be heard chewing at night with a "distinctly audible" sound. He said the worms would not only attack small grains but also clover, alfalfa, corn and tobacco.

Vote Estimate Of 6,000 Seen For County

Saturday will bring the climax to a wide-open Democratic Primary campaign which began locally early in February.

A vote in excess of 6,000 is predicted by election officials.

Polls in the county's 19 precincts will be open from 6:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m.

Heaviest voting will likely occur at Hillsboro which, since the recent split of Chapel Hill precincts, has the largest registration in the county. No changes in other precincts have been made from previous elections.

Eighteen local candidates will be vying for the voters' ballots in hotly contested fights for three offices.

Democrats also will vote on candidates for United States Senator, two State offices and the sixth district congressman.

There are no township nominations at stake in Saturday's election.

Greatest interest locally is in the county contests for sheriff, county commissioner and register of deeds, a total of seven positions in which only two incumbent commissioners are seeking re-election.

Four candidates are running for Sheriff: Odell H. Clayton of Hillsboro, a former deputy; Charles Johnston of Chapel Hill, a service station operator; Frank Maddry of Chapel Hill, a deputy sheriff, and veteran police official, and Willie M. Laws of near Hillsboro, businessman and farmer.

This race became a wide-open affair when Sheriff S. T. Latta decided not to run. During the campaign the retiring sheriff has given strong support to Maddry, but the latter experienced a serious blow to his chances when, a month before the election, he suffered a series of heart attacks and is still confined to Watts Hospital. All candidates have campaigned intensively for the job.

Twelve men are running for five seats on the Board of County Commissioners. The list includes: Edwin S. Lanier, R. J. M. Hobbs and Donald M. Stanford of Chapel Hill; H. Broadwell of Hillsboro; Dwight Ray of Carrboro; Henry S. Walker of St. Mary's; Sim Efland of Efland; Hugh M. Wilson and G. P. Sykes of the Orange Grove section; N. B. Berry of Cedar Grove; Lloyd T. Hopkins of Caldwell; and Fred T. Reitzel of Cedar Grove township.

Hobbs and Efland are incumbents. The revaluation program has been a point of issue for some candidates while others are campaigning on their records or on their experience and desire to serve the people of the county.

Miss Betty June Hayes, the county's first woman candidate for public office, a 24-year-old Hillsboro woman, is running for Register of Deeds, an office in which she now serves as assistant, as is Archie G. Williams of Efland. Both have conducted strong campaigns for the job, which the present office holder, J. Ed Laws, did not seek again.

For Sixth District Congressman, the voters will support the veteran Orange County native, Carl T. Durham. His opponent is H. C. Sprinkle who is given no chance of defeating him.

The biggest interest on the State front is the senatorial race between W. Kerr Scott and Senator Alton Lennon, but there has been little activity in this county on the part of either candidate. Scott is apparently depending upon his long-time support in this county, but the Lennon campaign has been picking up steam in the past two weeks. Also on the ticket are W. M. Bostick, H. L. Sprinkle, A. E. Turner, Alvin Wingfield Jr., and Ola Ray Boyd.

Joshua S. James and Edwin S. Gill are candidates for State Treasurer, and Charles F. Gold and John F. Fletcher are running for Commissioner of Insurance.
