15c SUPPLEMENT TAX

By apparent general agreemen!, the Board of Commissioners Tuesday set the Chapel Hill district school tax supplement at 15c per $100 valuation for the next year, allowing an increase of 3c over last year.

No opposition was registered at this proposed figure Tuesday, but the formal levy will come on July 28 upon final approval of the new budget and setting of the 62c tax rate.

Chapel Hill school leaders, backed by strong lay forces. won their fight for appropriations to build the long-delayed gymtorium at Lincoln school, frequently described as that community's no, I need.

The Board of Commissioners by appropriating $53.593 from tax money for Chapel Hill capital outlay for schools and adding another $17,000 from a proposed bond issue of $34,000 to be issued by the Commissioners, provided sufficient funds funds to enable a call for bids on the addition to the Negro "High School, originally estimated to cost $100,000.

The Chapel Hill school administration had previously said it could provide $10,000 from money previously set aside and estimates given by several sources had indicated a 15-to-20 per cent decrease in bids is possible at this time as compared to the time of the original pro-

Commissioner Edwin S. Lanier, who at an earlier hearing had opposed the building of the gymtorium this year and said he wouldn't have "integration and a gymtorium both shoved down his throat in the same year," led the fight Tuesday for Chapel Hill's capital outlay request, which originally was $113,000 with $100,000 earmarked for the gymtorium. A majority of the board, however, refused to go along with the allocation of the entire amount of a proposed bond issue tothis Chapel Hill project, which he proposed following another last minute appeal from Board Chairman Carl Smith and Superintendent

No Salary Increases Allowed Pending Job Classifying System

The Board of County Commissioners wrestled with a new county budget for a month, held a dozen regular and special meetings to study requests and hear department heads and boards. Tuesday placed its okay on the tentative docu-

This, however, did not come without a split vote as the wrangling continued to the bitter end.

The new budget contained the following salient features:

1. The tax rate remains at 62c per $100 valuation. 2. Total budget, based on a property valuation of 74 million dollars, and other miscellaneous revenues, is $869,720.50.

3. Compared to last year, the new budget represents an increase $36,755.50 in proposed expenditures.

4. All salary increase requests were denied, pending the adoption of a complete job analysis and classification system, which will remain in effect as permanent policy.

5. $34,000 will be issued in bonds to augment the school capital outlay appropriations and will be divided equally between the Orange County and Chapel Hill administrative units.

6. Schools were given a total county appropriation of $340,532.50; 371% of the 62c rate, or over 6000 of the total appropriation from ad

Lanier, which died for lack of a second. Lanier tied in his tax increase motion with the proposal to issue $34,000 in bonds allowed the commissioner without a vote of the people, to supplement the Chapel Hill school capital outlay appropriation to build the Lincoln School gymtorium.

> Lanier later made the motion which was passed successfully embodying the 62c rate, the equal split on the bond money between the two school units. Commissioner Henry Walker provided the second and Ray voted aye. Commissioner Sim Efland abstained from voting, as did the Chairman R.J.M. Hobbs.

> Prior to the passage of the budget, Chairman Hobbs argued vigorously for the increased rate and the appropriation of the entire issue to the Chapel Hill capital outlay fund. Efland plugged for economies in every fund, while Walker strongly opposed any salary increases during the coming year. Making reference to the current drought and the previous year's experience of farmers. Mr. Walker said, "I am against any salary increases this year." In view of the proposed classification system authorized Efland joined him in this stand. Commissioners Hobbs and Lanier proposed the placement of an additional $2,500 to take care of any increases considered appropriate when the new system is adopted, probably next December or January,
