It is thrilling that three recent graduates of our high school are majoring in Home Economics. They are: Gladys Miller at W. C. U. N. C., Carolyn Strayhorn, Meredith College and Mary Elizabeth Kenyon, Mans' Hill.

There are many interesting careers from which these girls may choose, but perhaps the most familiar ones are in the field of education, especially in high school and college teaching.

There are more jobs available than there are trained applicants, and every Home Economics Organization is making a special effort to interest qualified young women in entering the field of Home Economics.

Teaching is a challenging career. Following are a few questions and answers concerning high school teaching taken from a bulletin published by the N. C. Home Economics Association:

A B.S. degree in home economics from an accredited four-year college or university is required. A vocational home economics teacher position requires a vocational teaching certificate.

What Will You Do On the Job?

As a high school home economics teacher, you'll help girls and boys through the study of homemaking to help themselves. You'll help them to gain knowledge and develop skills in the areas of housing, foods, clothing and management. You'll guide them in preparing for marriage and parenthood; and most important, you'll help them to discover their own special talents and interests and become better adjusted members of their communities and families.

As a vocational home economics teacher, you'll work an additional one or two months beyond the school term. During this out-of-

28-Member Development Body Appointed By Board

Board Follows Through On Action In May

The 28-member Orange County Agricultural and Industrial Development Commission, four members from each township, was appointed by the Board of County Commissioners.

The list includes prominent names in all sections of the county and many who have been active in the county's development for many years.

The new commission was set up on May 2 at the instigation of Commissioner Edwin S. Lanier with the following major objective: "to encourage and promote in every way feasible and legal the location of additional industrial and agricultural enterprises in Orange County; the improvement and expansion of such enterprises now located in Orange County; and to promote understanding among the people throughout Orange County of the need for such growth and development in Orange County."

Bulging Schools Open Without Incident Here

Schools opened in Orange County yesterday with bulging rolls and more parent visitors than could be remembered, but without incident involving the segregation issue.

All students, according to preliminary reports to Superintendent Paul Carr, attended schools to which they had previously been assigned. An increase in enrollment was expected throughout the county, but exact figures were not expected for several days.

One new development which went into effect at Hillsboro with the opening of this year's term is expected to gain widespread approval of parents and friends of the school.

Principal G. A. Brown announced that with the approval of the Board of Education and the endorsement of the Executive Board of the P.T.A., he had instituted a policy of not allowing any child to go downtown during school hours for any purpose. If it's necessary for a child to go to town, he will be taken by a teacher or the principal. Thus, the appearance of any Hillsboro student downtown unescorted by school personnel will be prima facie evidence of a violation of regulations.

A note to this effect was dispatched to all parents yesterday.

Definite Date For Completion Of School Set

The Cameron Park elementary school now under construction will definitely be completed and ready for occupancy after the Christmas holidays.

This was revealed yesterday by Superintendent G. Paul Carr upon the advice of officials of the Haynes Construction Company.

Other building activities reported to the Board of Education Tuesday included:

(1) The breaking ground for the classroom to be built at West Hillsboro on Monday of this week.

(2) The forwarding of specifications on the new Aycock lunchroom to the school committee and the instruction of architect Archie R. Davis to begin drawing plans for the structure.

(3) The changing of specifications for glass in the Cameron Park school to 1/4" plate at an additional cost of $860 at the request of the architect to prevent a delay because of short supply of the type first specified.

Action Of Orange Board Paves Way For Contracts

The Orange County Board of Education, acting Tuesday afternoon, paved the way for the acceptance of bids to build the much discussed gymnasium at Lincoln school in Chapel Hill.

Both the Orange County board and the Chapel Hill School Board held meetings Tuesday to request the issuance of the $34,000 in bonds for school improvements and passed formal resolutions on the Commissioners for initiating the formal procedure with bond attorneys and the Local Government Commission.

The membership of the commission will serve until December 31, 1956. No plans for an organization meeting have been formulated.

The membership includes:

turn this money should State funds later be allocated to Chapel Hill or in the event this does not occur to agree to a replacement of this amount in next year's capital outlay allocation from the county.

A public hearing on the sale of bonds has been set for Sept. 19 at 10 a.m. and publication of first official notice appears in today's newspaper.

Misenheimer Accepts Call

The Rev. K. M. Misenheimer has accepted a call to the Siler City and Mount Vernon Springs Presbyterian Churches.

Now pastor of the Eno, Fairfield and Little River Presbyterian Churches in Orange County, the Rev. Mr. Misenheimer will move to Siler City and begin his work on Sept. 12.

A native of Asheville, he is a graduate of Kings College, Bristol, Va., and the Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va. He has been pastor of the three Orange County churches since his graduation from Seminary.

Town Orders Advertisement Of Unpaid Tax

The Town of Hillsboro board of commissioners Tuesday night authorized the advertisement of property for delinquent taxes.

This is the first time delinquent taxpayers of the town have been advertised in many years. The list appears on another page of this newspaper. The sale will be at noon on October 2 at the town hall.

In other actions the board voted $175 to participate in a beautification project in front of the local library in cooperation with the Hillsboro Garden Club, and contracted with the Alamance Asphalt and Paving Co. of Graham, owned by W. V. Fryer of Hillsboro, to remove an estimated 3,000 cubic yards of dirt located behind the new dam site. The town will pay 70¢ a cubic yard to the contractor for excavating and removal of the dirt plus $1 per load for which the commissioners want hauled to the cemetery for reclamation here. Other dirt not needed by the cemetery project will be dumped in fills along the road, said Mayor Ben Johnston.

Foreign Youths Visit Seen Profitable For All

By E. P. Barnes
Assistant County Agent

The people of Orange County have very much enjoyed the visit of two young men from the Middle East, during the past month.

Isam Yaktin, a graduate student in Sociology at the American University of Beirut, Lebanon, and Basheer Khawaga, an agricultural teacher from Tulkarm, Jordan. During his visit here Isam has lived on the farms of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Roberts, and Mrs. and Mrs. Jesse Martin, both of the St. Mary's community. Basheer's host-families have been Mr. and Mrs. Winston Strayhorn, and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cates of the New Hope community.

This experience in international relations has been profitable, both to us and our visitors. During their stay here they have shared in the home life of our people, have participated in community activities, and have spoken to numerous civic, farm, and church organizations. They have also expressed their views through the media of newspaper and television. Through personal as well as group discussions, we have arrived at a better understanding of some of the problems of the Arabian people, and they in turn have learned a great many things about our way of life. They have made many friends while in Orange County. All wish them a pleasant and happy experience during their month of visiting in Chowan County, and then a safe return to their native land.

Flood Relief Quota Is Met By Red Cross

The Orange County chapter is well over the $250.00 flood relief quota asked by the American National Red Cross.

The final total is not available as reports from various committees are still coming in.

Quentin Patterson received a telegram from national headquarters Saturday stating that over $10,000,000 has been raised by the flood relief operation. This is sufficient to meet the needs of the Red Cross in the disaster areas.

The Red Cross thanks those who have given freely of their money, time, and effort to make the goal a reality. It is only through the generosity of many such people that the Red Cross is able to carry on its vital work.

The Spring drive was $135.00 below the quota and it is hoped that the surplus from this latest drive will be sufficient to bring our quota of the year to 100%.

They Write ...

By Isam Yaktin, Lebanon

As I am on my way to Chowan County, I want to extend my deep gratitude for your warm hospitality. If I forget, I will never forget the huge number of chickens we had been fortunate to taste. Never in my life, in such a short period of time, I have eaten so much chicken.

But more than anything we have been much impressed by your friendliness, warmth, and love to human beings. I can assure you that our people have sent us with the same feelings — a desire to work together to build a world of friendship and peace. At this time people all over the globe look with a greater confidence to the

It is my greatest pleasure to visit North Carolina and to live one month in a New Hope community of Orange County. I am extremely glad to get in touch with people who have surprised me in many things. They are friendly. They don't pretend to be friendly, but they really are. The American people are always in a hurry. They don't sleep enough. In other words, the people who never sleep.

The people in North Carolina are famous in hospitality which differ from South Dakota, and the women here are famous in cooking. I will report that North Carolina is famous for pretty, smart, sincere girls, and I observe from experience.

Gilmore Closes Garage Here

George W. Gilmore, for the past 11 years operator of the Gilmore Motor Company in Hillsboro, has closed the business because of his health.

In auto-mechanical work for 33 years, Mr. Gilmore said yesterday he was closing up on the advice of his physicians who say he must do less strenuous work.

A native of South Carolina, Mr. Gilmore came to Hillsboro in 1928 and served as service manager at the Ford Agency here until 1942. During the war he operated the Chevrolet franchise and in October 1944 he opened the establishment which he has operated until this time.

He has been Fire Chief of Hillsboro since the organization of the Fire Department here in 1937. He will continue in this capacity.

Circus Had Trouble With Weights Here

The circus made an unscheduled stop in Orange County yesterday, and the performance was all interrupted.

By noon yesterday most of the difficulties which the King Brothers Circus was having with the Department of Motor Vehicles Weight Station on Highway 70 just west of Hillsboro were about cleared up but the congregation of circus vehicles had lasted some eight to 10 hours, according to Assistant Superintendent J. M. Knight of the Weight Station.

He said most of the trucks of the circus, which had a scheduled 2 o'clock showing in Durham, were held briefly for overloads and improper registrations, on which penalties were collected. He declined to say how many circus trucks were involved, but onlookers indicated the area was filled with them for several hours.
