New Hope Story To Appear In Saturday Evening Post

The building of the new New Hope Presbyterian Church will be featured in a color photo-illustrated story to appear in the Saturday Evening Post in late February or early March.

The story, centering around architect H. H. Haines of Durham and his work with small country churches, will stress the advantages of the build-it-yourself program for churches and what it does for the congregation. Members of the New Hope Church, in joining to help build their own building, expect, to save about one-third on their approximately $75,000 plant, scheduled to be completed in time for the 200th anniversary of the church this summer. A photographer from the Post staff in Philadelphia spent last weekend at the Church here and took quite a lot of pictures of the congregation doing various jobs on their "work party" last Saturday. The story has been written by Booton Herndon, freelance writer of Charlottesville, Virginia, who has visited here twice in compiling data for his
