UNC Hospital Needs Discarded Magazines

The Woman's Auxiliary of the North Carolina Memorial Hospital of the University of North Carolina requests donation of magazines to be placed in the waiting rooms. Particularly needed are current issues of women's magazines and recent issues of Reader's Digest, Life, Look, Holiday, sports magazines and religious periodicals. These magazines should be left at the desk in the main lobby of the hospital or at the hospital library room.

The topography of North Carolina causes more diversity in climate than differences in latitude cause.

Memorial Hospital Auxiliary Plans Workshop Meet Oct. 4

A demonstration of exactly what a volunteer helper does in the hospital is the program planned for the first meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

On Thursday, October 4th, the Woman's Auxiliary will meet in the School of Nursing Auditorium. Following a brief business session, the meeting will be divided into Workshop, where on the job training in the six major fields of volunteer service will be demonstrated. This will show new members of the auxiliary how a new worker is instructed before she is sent out on her job and will give workers an insight into all the fields of service so that in an emergency they could volunteer to help in any of the services.

Consultants from other hospitals will also be on hand for the workshops and will help with explanations and suggestions which will make the volunteer program even more effective.

The Woman's Auxiliary is made up of women from the whole community—Chapel Hill, Carrboro and the rural communities of Orange and surrounding counties. There are many volunteer jobs to be filled by people of varying interests, and the success of this necessary and rewarding work depends upon the women of the community who find a way to give a few hours a week to hospital service. This first meeting will introduce volunteers, old and new, to these jobs they will fill in the hospital.

The six workshops into which the meeting will be divided will include the shop where volunteers will learn how to load the hospital cart and take it through the halls to the patients, the admitting office where volunteers assist in helping incoming patients to register and their families to become acquainted with the hospital, information desk and clinic, the library room and the library cart which is pushed to the patient's rooms, the pediatrics floor when volunteers help with the children's activities and the bandage room.

There will be ample parking space for the meeting in the hospital parking areas, and the auxiliary invites all interested people to attend the meeting to see how the volunteer program is put into effect. This workshop meeting will be longer than the regular meetings, and the auxiliary hopes that every woman in the community who is interested in volunteer hospital work will set aside the two morning hours from 10 a.m. until noon on October 4th to become well acquainted with the volunteer services.
