In a progress report on Scout activities in the District this year, District Executive Frank Vandell said there were now 637 boys in 30 units, as follows: 258 boys in nine Cub packs, 305 boys in 15 Boy Scout troops, and 74 boys in 6 Explorer posts.

An Important Opportunity

To put it crudely and in the vernacular of the streets, it is time for Hillsboro folks with money "to put up or shut up" relative to tangible support for the program to obtain new industry for the community and expand local income sources.

The Reverie Lingerie Company has demonstrated it can produce a product which is in great demand, as evidenced by its acceptance by major sales companies and commitments for still further production increases. It has shown its own good faith by agreeing to advance a substantial share of the costs to get adequate quarters in which to expand and provide the payroll which so many of our farm and town women so urgently need. It has shown faith in this community by agreeing to continue operations here in the face of numerous attractive offers from more aggressive communities both in North Carolina and Virginia.

It is now up to local citizens to meet this challenge and provide the $25,000 needed to assure the continuation of this local industry, which will benefit the entire community. Failure in this project, it seems assured, will bring to Hillsboro an oblivion in the new industry field from which it will not soon recover.

$25,000 Loan Being Raised For Building

The campaign to raise $25,000 from local citizens to help finance the construction of a building to house Reverie Lingerie Co. operations in Hillsboro was well past the half-way mark yesterday.

The plan under which a new building would be financed jointly by the citizens of the community, the Reverie company and North Carolina Business Development Corporation was explained at a public meeting at the courthouse last Friday night attended by about 50 citizens.

Pledges of loan funds have been turned in by volunteer solicitors all week and sponsors of the plan are confident the amount needed can be raised. The total had reached about $16,000 yesterday.

The plan, as outlined by Don S. Matheson, chairman of the Orange County Industrial and Agricultural Commission, called for the construction of a 15,000 square foot building for the Reverie company, manufacturers of ladies lingerie, which was victim of a fire and explosion last September following a six-months long strike by workers seeking union representation. A large number of the former strikers and employees attended last Friday's meeting.

The building which it is estimated will cost $75,000 will be financed $15,000 by the Reverie management, $35,000 by the N.C. Business Development Corporation and $25,000 by local loans. The building will be owned by the Reverie company subject to a first mortgage held by the Business Development Corporation and second mortgage held by elected trustees of the local lenders. The first mortgage will be amortized during the first 10 years and local lenders of the $25,000 will be repaid after that time, according to the plan. Each individual loan which goes to make up the local $25,000 will be evidenced by a note bearing 5% interest. The agreements to subscribe to the loan will be binding until June 1 and 30 days notice will be given before the money is collected. Trustees of the local lenders elected at Friday's meeting were Don Matheson, R. O. Forrest and Wilson Cole.

Under the plan as outlined by Matheson, temporary operations will begin in the Midway Building Supply building of Bobby Roberts, west of Efland on Highway 70-A, almost immediately upon reaching the goal of $25,000, to assure the new building when needed. The new building will enable doubling of the working force of the company at the time of the recent disastrous fire and a similar doubling of the payroll coming into the community.

The new building, if the plan goes through, will be constructed on land across from the town water plant. A six-months option has been obtained from Ira Ward and John Clayton, the owners.

Matheson, in explaining the proposed plan to the citizens Friday night, expressed "high regard for the management of Reverie," and told of the warm relationship between the employees and the company as evidenced by the offer of employees to contribute $1 per week from their wages to provide the housing needed by the company to start operations again and provide them jobs.

Chairman Bob Forrest of the Industrial Division of the county development commission, which has spearheaded plans to get the company to remain in Hillsboro, said Reverie Lingerie has had attractive offers from many other places since the fire. "The time has come for the community to express itself, financially and otherwise, regarding their continuation in our community," he said.

The efforts of the commission have been directed toward obtaining the temporary quarters and providing assurance that an adequate permanent building will be available when needed. The company has orders and commitments to insure full operation and expansion to double its former size, it was said.

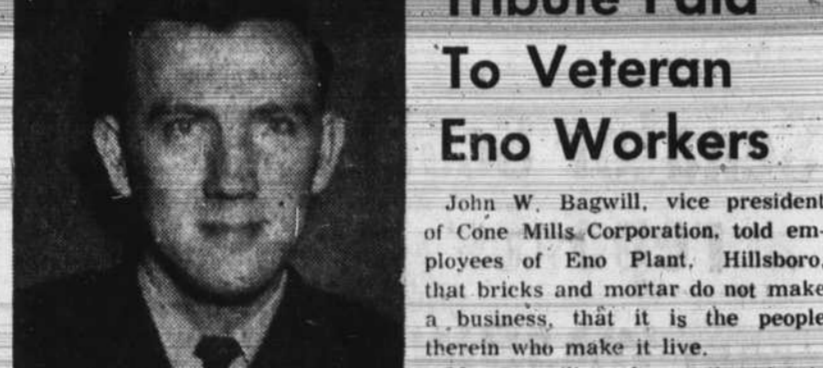

Sheriff Asks Voluntary Censorship Of Obscene Mags By News Stands

Sheriff Odell H. Clayton said this week he plans no immediate censorship of magazines and periodicals being offered for sale on Orange County newsstands but is beginning a program aimed at voluntary censorship by the dealers.

He said he had appointed Deputy Sheriff Burch Compton of the Hillsboro staff as the officer in charge of his department's program designed to fulfill his obligation under the state's obscene literature act.

He said his office is preparing lists of those publications which have been placed on the objectionable list by a committee of the North Carolina Sheriff's Association and placed in his hands. House Bill No. 505, passed at the 1957 session of the General Assembly, vests in the Sheriffs of the counties and duty of preventing the sale of obscene literature on newsstands and otherwise. The wording of the act gives such officers wide latitude in administering the law and determining what is obscene.

This list, he said, would be taken as a guide to each newsstand and the voluntary cooperation of the operators will be requested in eliminating both those of the list (See SHERIFF, Page 4)

When General Season Opens Today

Good weather permitting, hundreds of nimrods of Orange County will take to the woods and fields this morning with the opening of the general hunting season.

Doves, Turkeys Look Good Here

The hunter may expect to find improved prospects for some game, while others will likely just be holding their own in this vicinity, according to early season reports.

The supply of doves is said to be looking better, what with the increased planting of State-supplied wildlife cover by conservation-minded Orange County residents.

A new bird on the woods scene this year will be the Coturnix quail—a Japanese bird just introduced in the state by the Wildlife Resources Commission, and now being grown by several Orange County sportsmen.

Good Prospects For Hunters Seen; Appeal For Courtesy, Warning Aired

According to information from the Wildlife Resources Commission and Orange County Game Protector Bob Logan, the outlook for sportsmen this year will continue quite good, inasmuch as fair weather earlier has made for a good breeding season.

Appeal For Courtesy
In an appeal to local hunters to be a credit to their outdoor sport, Mr. Logan emphasized that all should make it a point to secure permission to hunt on the property owner's land before starting out. "We owe the land owner every courtesy and respect we can show him."

After all, we're out there only at his discretion, and are his guest. And when we leave I hope we'll all go by and thank him for a pleasant day."

Mr. Logan noted that in the past there have been instances of groups of teen-age boys going hunting in this area. He cautioned that by state law the only way that boys under 16 can legally hunt is with their father if he holds a license or by taking their father's license, if he sees fit, or with a guardian.

Squirrels Close Jan. 1
The general season in this section will continue through Feb. 10, though the squirrel season will close Jan. 1.

All hunters were reminded by the game protector to secure the necessary hunting licenses at authorized outlets in hunting supplies stores throughout the county.

Today Is Holiday With Varied Activities On Tap

Today will be a holiday for most Orange County residents. It will also be a day for special religious services, family turkey dinners, football contests and just plain rest for the weary.

Thanksgiving means a two-day holiday for the public schools for all Orange County students and teachers and for many boys and girls attending colleges and universities. County and city schools closed yesterday to reopen Monday morning, as did the University. There will be a one-day holiday for most business firms, as well as other public institutions such as banks, post offices, government offices. The majority will observe the day at home around traditional Thanksgiving dinners as families gather from far and wide. Others will take advantage of the holiday for hunting or other recreational activity.

In Hillsboro a Thanksgiving Union service was held last night at the Methodist Church with the Rev. Bruce Cresson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, speaking. Churches of all denominations participated in the service. Thanksgiving Day as always will mark the opening of the hunting season for most game animals and birds and many Orange County hunters are expected to take to the woods for game. An excellent sports menu has been arranged in the form of the Duke-Carolina Freshman game at Kenan Stadium for the benefit of the Cerebral Palsy Foundation at 2 o'clock. Then there will be a college and professional football game by radio and television for those who do not wish to leave home.
