Economical Dress Is Miss Trowbridge's Topic At Buckhorn

Miss Jessie Trowbridge gave a demonstration on "Well - Dressed at Small Cash" last Friday afternoon to the Buckhorn Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. Warren Holmes. The meeting was opened by all standing and singing "Oh! Susanna," followed by a devotional reading from 2 Peter 3-8 verses by Mrs. Blanche Sykes. The group had met for two night meetings and made 178 cancer dressing which were given to Miss Trowbridge. Mrs. Charles Holmes gave a report on "Caring for the Lawn." She stressed that now is the time to fertilize and spray for weeds and onions. Mrs. James Bradshaw, in reporting on "Gardens," said that this is one of the projects that was chosen by the Grange for the Rural Progress Program and that in order to stimulate more entrance in the project some of the seed stores in and around the community are donating some prizes for the best gardens in the community. In her demonstration Miss Trowbridge said a person should first check the clothing they now have. To do this, clothing should be in three categories: 1—ready to wear as it is; 2—needing repairs, hem changes or something new added; and 3—the third group you might as well give away. A very important fact to know is how much money can be spent on the items listed under what is needed. Studies show that 8 to 15 per cent of the family income is allotted for clothes. In planning the wardrobe Miss Trowbridge said there should be the suit, the best dress, general wear, work clothes, party togs, sleeping garments, undergarments and accessories. The hostess served cookies, coffee and ice cream during the social hour.

Mrs. Pender Participates In Conference

Educational supervisors and administrators from coast to coast, about 3,500 strong, attended the 14th annual conference of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, March 1-5 in Cincinnati, Ohio. Among those taking part in the meeting was Mrs. Irene Pender, Supervisor of Orange County Schools. "Action of Curriculum Issues," theme of the conference, was reflected during the five-day sessions in clinics, workshops and assemblies devoted to the study of crucial aspects of issues such as educational television, adequate financial support of in-service education, promotion and reporting, modern languages, science and mathematics, and the self-contained classroom. Specialists reported on the association's cooperative action program for curriculum improvement that has been in progress during the past year, state by state. Educational leaders from the United States and overseas examined significant research findings and promising practices in selected subject matter areas. In the thinking of ASCD members it is more important now than ever that "Schools help children understand and practice democracy in a world context." Conference guests toured Greater Cincinnati's public and private schools and visited the city's centers of business and culture. A feature of the conference was the extensive exhibits of teaching aids and curriculum materials.
