

Carroll Gives Up ABC Post

Dr. Dudley D. Carroll of Chapel Hill, who a month ago was named by the joint county Boards of Commissioners and Education as the first Chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control board, has asked to be relieved of the chairmanship. He recommended in his letter to the Board of Commissioners that Remus J. Smith Sr. of Hillsboro, who has served as acting chairman, be appointed as chairman. Dr. Carroll, 73, was a patient at Memorial Hospital at the time of his appointment and shortly thereafter revealed to friends that he would not serve as chairman. His illness has resulted in some delay in getting the ABC program set up in the Chapel Hill area. He indicated he would continue to serve as a member of the board. He was appointed to the chairmanship for a three year term and Smith was named a member for two years. Action on Dr. Carroll's recommendation will have to be taken by the joint appointing boards and they are expected to meet on the first Monday in April on the matter.

The matter of additional compensation for Acting Chairman Smith during the first few months of the Board's activities was discussed by the Commissioners Monday. Smith, it was said, has had to devote a considerable amount of time to getting the program underway and it was proposed by Commissioner Clarence D. Jones that he be compensated in accordance with its worth. This is a matter, it was concluded, which the joint appointing boards would have to handle at their first Monday meeting also.

Establishment Of Plumbing Code Proposed

Establishment of a minimum standard plumbing code for Orange County and employment of a County Plumbing Inspector were proposed to the County Commissioners Monday by T. H. and Ben Yates, operators of plumbing businesses in Chapel Hill and Carrboro.

Accompanying the proposal were endorsements of the town managers of both Chapel Hill and Carrboro.

Under present state law, a county board of health can adopt minimum standards for installation of plumbing systems for protection of health. The sponsors suggested that the County Commissioners ask the legislature to include Orange under the general law on plumbing inspection, first passed in 1953 and now including 12 counties. Once included in the act, this county could then proceed to adopt the minimum standards and employ a plumbing inspector to enforce them.

Reaction to the proposal by board members appeared mixed and the consensus of the discussion was that they were not ready to act on the matter at this time. The matter was referred to the county attorney for study and recommendation.

New Affidavit Hikes Listings Of Inventories

The County Commissioners acceded to the requests of organized merchants Monday and adopted a policy of assessment of business inventories for taxes at 70% of their wholesale cost.

The action came after Tax Supervisor Sam Gattis told the Board that a new system of listing inventories installed this year, which brought vigorous protests from the merchant groups, had raised mercantile inventory listings this year about 30% higher than last year.

The system was nothing more than separate listings of inventories on sworn statements, which included information from the firm's last State Income Tax. The Form specified that inventories would be listed and taxable at cost value, which requirement has been in effect since 1954 but generally treated loosely and with a lack of uniformity by merchants prior to institution of the separate sworn statement.

In Orange County real property is assessed at 70% of its current market value. Prior to the institution of the new system merchants listed inventories with varying degrees of accuracy and in many cases assumed the 30% deduction should apply. When the new forms were mailed to merchants in early January, they squawked hard and loud and delegations from Chapel Hill and Hillsboro associations appeared before the Board asking for a change in policy to assure equality. They charged that taxing inventories at 100% of cost value was unfair. Monday's policy declaration was the answer to their plea.

While merchant listings are still incomplete, Tax Supervisor Gattis told the Commissioners inventory listings of some 70 businesses in Chapel Hill township this year was $980,000 as compared to $712,000 for the same firms last year. For some 50 firms in Hillsboro township, inventory listings totalled $459,000 this year as compared to $356,000 last year.

In the future a determined effort will be made to see that inventories are listed accurately and State Income Tax records will be checked to assure that merchants are complying, Gattis said.

A recent statewide survey has shown that real property in Orange County is taxed at a higher percentage of its true market value than in any other county of the State.

"If we can get accurate listing of business inventories, the county will not suffer at 70% taxation of the wholesale cost," said Gattis.

N. C. Disaster Victims Aided By Red Cross

"$129,365 was spent by the Red Cross in disasters in North Carolina in 1958," Remus J. Smith, Jr., Chairman of the Orange County Chapter told a group of Campaign volunteers at a progress meeting at the Colonial Inn Monday night.

"This represents approximately $1,000 each from the hundred twenty-odd chapters in North Carolina," Smith continued. "This was given as emergency relief and rehabilitation. It was given, as from your hands when you made your contribution last year, to provide shelter, food, and clothing to the victims of the hurricane and to square them away for a new start with their homes or business.

"We are fortunate that none of these disaster funds were needed in our own community. We are fortunate in that we are giving rather than receiving. Let's hope that it will always be that way."

Remus Smith presided at the informal meeting in the absence of Campaign Chairman Allen Watkins, hospitalized for a few days.

Umstead Reports

Assembly Cool To Veto Power For Governors

By JOHN W. UMSTEAD

The highlight from the legislative standpoint during the past week was the Governor's message to a joint session of the Assembly. This message was in regard to the proposed State Constitution that is being submitted to the Assembly by a special Constitution Commission headed by Victor S. Bryant, of Durham. In his message he also discussed the report of the Bell Commission in regard to court reform in N. C.

The Constitution Commission report, and that of the Bell Commission differ basically in regard to the control of court procedure in N. C. The Constitution Commission recommends that rules of court procedure remain with the General Assembly, while the Bell Commission recommends that all regulation should be made by the Supreme Court.

It is a well-known fact that the Supreme Court is made up largely of men who have not only practiced law in the Superior Courts of the State but who have held the position of Solicitor and Superior Court Judge before being named to the Supreme Court. This being true it would seem that they know more about the necessary rules of procedure in all the courts of the state than do the members of the Legislature. There is a difference of opinion on this question, even among the lawyers. For my part I shall assume, unless convinced otherwise, that the Supreme Court knows better how to make these regulations concerning our court system than anyone else and that the power should be given them. Two of the Governor's recommendations met with cool reception on the part of the membership of the Assembly. His recommendations that the veto power be given the Governor has almost unanimous opposition. At the present time the Governor can exercise great power through his control of the budget and the making of appointments. A large majority of the membership of both branches of the General Assembly think that this is sufficient power for the Governor and will, without any question, turn down this recommendation. The second recommendation referred to is that to give the Governor a 2nd term if the people should elect him. This has more support than the veto suggestion, but in my opinion a majority of the Assembly are also opposed to this recommendation.

The recommendation of the Constitution Commission as to reappointment has large support from Legislators from the Piedmont area but very little support from the small counties in the east and west. The suggestion that the number of the members of the Senate be increased to 60 has had very little discussion and this suggestion might be adopted. The above are only a few of the controversial questions brought up in connection with the revised constitution to be submitted to the people for adoption. Discussion of all these matters will take lots of time and there are many members of the
