

Orange Peelings

suspended roads terms in Recorder's Court day before yesterday for charges of tampering with autos. Patrolman James Farrell reported that he saw the pair ransacking and damaging autos parked on Raleigh St. by the coed dormitories one night recently. —No explanation of how come. The police recovered a woman's coat from the defendants, but can't find the owner of it.

REPORTING TO THE N. C. Advisory Committee on Civil Rights recently, Orange County Board of Elections Chairman Sam Latta stated that in the four years since he's held this post there has been "only one case where a Negro has been refused the privilege of registering due to the fact that the applicant could not read or even write his own name. We have followed a very liberal policy in Orange County and have allowed all persons applying to register except the case above stated."

AMONG THE NUMEROUS matters of old business brought before the School Board was one regarding payment of a $144 legal advertising bill to the Chapel Hill Weekly. The Board agreed to pay it out of the contingency fund if the Superintendent's query of the state attorney general brought a favorable reply. One Board member sounded a jocular note of caution: "I don't know if you ought to let 'em know you have the money. If you have the money and ask a legal opinion it tends to push the legal opinion that way," said Dr. Jones. One of his fellow Board members quickly scored a verbal touche: "Do medical opinions work that way?" he thrust.
