

Carrboro commissioners discuss plans for new municipal building

The Carrboro Commissioners Tuesday night discussed the possible cost of remodeling the old Carrboro School as a municipal building.

When definite estimates for the job can be calculated on the basis of the town engineer's estimates, the figure will be added to the $30,000 the town bid for the building, and the total put up for a municipal bond referendum, according to Mayor R. B. Todd.

90 days for vote

He noted the election would have to be held within 90 days of last Sept. 15 when the Town's high bid for the property became final. It has been previously estimated that the bond issue would run around $50,000.

Also at Tuesday's meeting a delegation of merchants appeared to ask that police service be provided for the town between 1 and 7 a.m.—which are at present off-duty hours for the town policemen. Mayor Todd said the Board planned to "try to work something out."

Residents of Crest St. in the Knolls Development asked the municipality to assume maintenance of that portion of their street which is in town. They agreed to circulate a petition dedicating an addition eight feet of land on each side of the street as right-of-way.

The commissioners discussed a survey of annexation possibilities for the town currently being made through the Institute of Government by William Holdford.

Game switched to Oxford . . .

Rain forces delay in stadium opening

Rain yesterday postponed completion of the lights installation at Hillsboro's new football stadium at Orange Speedway.

Thus, for the third time this year, the high school gridgers have had to transfer home games to their opponent's field.

Construction of concrete stands and preparation of the field has been completed for some time.

Plans now call for opening the new field and the home season with Oxford High here next Friday night, October 23.

Presbyterian dedication Sunday to feature preacher to Harvard

The Rev. George Buttrick, preacher to Harvard University, will be here for dedication services of the recently-completed student center and educational wing of the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church this Sunday.

The 5 p.m. program to be held in the Fellowship Hall of the $375,000 building will be preceded by an open house affair beginning at 3 o'clock.

Dr. Buttrick will also preach at the morning worship services for the church at 11 a.m. in Hill Hall and give an address on "The Church and the University" at 7:30 p.m., also in Hill Hall.

'No real deceit seen' . . .

Welfare funds repaid in duel benefit case

Charges against two elderly welfare recipients in Chapel Hill have been not proessed in the Chapel Hill Recorder's Court following repayment in full of about $2,200.

Orange County Welfare Superintendent Mrs. Jane Parker said "I don't think there was any real deliberate deceit involved in the case. Rather it seemed to be a matter that they didn't understand."

The situation was uncovered after it was found that the recipients, Robert Cole and a relative, Lena McDougald Cole, were receiving social security funds as well as old age assistance through the County Welfare Department.

Welfare benefits were halted in July, Mrs. Parker said, and the funds were repaid in full recently. Following this Chapel Hill Recorder's Court Solicitor recommended a nol pros in the case. This was allowed by Judge William S. Stewart.

Mrs. Parker said this was not the only instance in which duplicate benefits had been discovered in the County. She noted that the Welfare Department was checking up closely on such possibilities through personal inquiries and investigation of social security and unemployment benefit records. "Almost all persons are very truthful in reporting their resources," she said.

At the dedication service the new building will be presented to the congregation by Ralph T. Marshall, Chairman of the Building Council. Church minister the Rev. Vance Barron will give the acceptance.

Also participating in the dedicatory program will be the Rev. Harold J. Dudley, Raleigh, Executive Secretary of the Synod of North Carolina and President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University.

Dr. Buttrick, a native of England, has been minister of the Madison Ave. Presbyterian Church in New York City. Since 1955 he has been Professor of Christian Morals and Preacher to the University at Harvard.

Hillsboro was scheduled to open the home season here Friday night under the lights of their new stadium in a contest with Oxford Orphanage and homecoming festivities were planned to coincide. The game has been re-scheduled for tonight (Thursday) at the Orphanage.

Camco Construction Company of Sanford, the contractor, was originally delayed in beginning its work by the last hurricane with swept through South Carolina. However, installation work began Monday and would have been completed by Friday had not rain halted all work yesterday.

Hillsboro advertising unpaid taxes for 1958

The Hillsboro board of commissioners last week voted to begin advertising unpaid 1958 taxes today and conduct delinquent tax sales on Saturday, November 7.

In another action the board opened bids and awarded contract for purchase of a new International pickup truck to Orange Farm Equipment Company for $1254.79.

Development

In all there are nine such areas covering 66 of the 100 counties. The area development movement began in 1950, now contains over 800 communities.

Begins with family

According to John Crawford of State College, who has been active in other areas in this field, area development begins with the family who strives to increase its income, moves then into the community which wants to grow stronger and make improvements, then into the county which has resources to be developed, then into the area where work and progress is made which would be denied to the individual county, and then, finally, to the state where agencies are available for additional help.

In some areas communities within the counties compete for prizes in community development and the entire area works together in promoting the area as a suitable place for industry, a good place in which to live, and its recreational and tourist facilities.

Auto assault, shooting culprit being sought

Law enforcement officers were today tracking down a driver who allegedly attempted to run over a University student and then shot at him with a pistol.

The assault was reported by Kole Kortner, who told officers that a 1955 model Bel Air Chevrolet bore down on him on the campus near his dormitory late last Friday night. As it passed him, he said he hit the car with his umbrella, knocking off the Bel Air medallion on the side of the car, and possibly breaking a window.

A moment later, he declared, the auto halted and backed up, and somebody fired four or five pistol shots at him, then drove off.

About an hour later the student reported he saw the car drive by him again at a high rate of speed near Cobb dormitory.

Police today said they were making some progress in tracking down the owner of the fugitive car.

Exchangeites going to Roxboro tomorrow

Exchangeites of Chapel Hill and Roxboro will meet jointly tomorrow evening there before the Chapel Hill High-Roxboro football game.

It will be the third year for the annual meeting of the two clubs, according to President George Spransy of the local group.

Spransy also announced that an Exchangeites Club was being formed for wives of the Club members.
