Wise dog knows his own doctor...

READY TO TROT AGAIN. — 'Kipper,' canine guardian of the three girls in Mrs. Caroline Mullis' family in Chapel Hill, is a most unusual dog . . . Seen above with 12-year-old Deane Mullis at Dr. L. L. Vine's Animal Hospital, he's ready to trot again . . . after a week's convalescence . . .

. . . It seems that 'Kipper' was missing from his home last week . . . The family checked in vain with friends and police for the six-year-old Cocker Spaniel . . . No one had seen him.

—No one except Dr. Vine . . . The veterinarian found 'Kipper' at the doorstep of his Hospital when he came to open up one morning . . . The dog proffered a lame forepaw — cut between the toes . . . And his independence in coming by himself for treatment was rewarded with prompt care from his family doctor.

ONCE BEFORE IN HIS RE-collection, Dr. L. L. Vine notes, a "patient" or "boarder" has found its way to his animal hospital un-aided. Last time was a number of years ago when the Jim Phipps' big French poodle "Sparky" turned up there at the beginning of one weekend. The Phipps' customarily boarded the dog there when they left town. On this particular weekend the dog saw them pack up and leave without taking him to the boarding kennel. He didn't realize one of the Phipps' daughters would be a home to keep him, so took off on his own. —Wise dog knew where to find his fodder. (ouch!)

SHEPPARD STRUDWICK, Hillsboro native who plays the second lead in the Broadway production of "Only In America," got only a "mild ribbing" from the critics when the show opened last weekend, according to Charlotte Observer writer Kays Gary, who was on hand for the opening. He said Strudwick told him beforehand "I've had some good ones but believe me, this one is it . . . It means that much to me. I believe in this play." Gary continued: "Most ignored the still lean and handsome talented veteran of many a hit. This was the unkindest cut of all. What courage it takes to be an actor? I didn't even have enough to go see him after the reviews."

MEMORIES—IN ADDITION TO worldly goods—went up in smoke on Monday night. Mrs. Marvin Cheek looked on as her old home place burned to the ground. The Cheeks reared a large family in the home which was rented to the Alfredo Juliens.

TOMFOOLERY WAS SWAPPED between UNC and Duke campuses on Tuesday night. Several Chapel Hillians were to be tried yesterday in Durham for painting up the Duke status. And local police nabbed seven Dukies about 10 p.m. as they sped around the Carolina campus, car lights doused, and tossing beer cans out the windows. Six passengers were charged with littering the public streets, and the driver with reckless driving and driving without lights. Over 150 beer cans were still left in the back seat of the car. Some other Duke students were arrested for paint splashing behind downtown stores.

REINDEER MEAT FROM Alaska—commercial-type reindeer, not Rudolphs—was shipped in by air last weekend for the Ranch House in Chapel Hill. Diners reported it to be very tender and (More PEALINGS on Page 12)
