At the Alumni commencement luncheon Monday in Lenoir Hall, the toastmaster will be Alumni president Kenneth C. Royal, '14, of New York City and Goldsboro. Golden anniversary certificates will be awarded to the Class of 1910 at that time. Other business at the luncheon will include induction of Alumni officers for the Senior Class, installation of general Alumni Association officers for 1960-61, and announcement of annual Alumni contributions raised.

T. C. Moore Jr. wins top NROTC unit honors; commissioning ceremonies set tomorrow

Rear Admiral Kenmore M. McManes, USN, Commandant of the Sixth Naval District and Commander, U. S. Naval Base, Charleston, S. C., will deliver commissions in the U. S. Navy Marine Corps to graduates of the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps Unit of the University next Monday at 4 p.m. in the Forest Theater.

Admiral McManes, a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy in 1922, is also a law school graduate of George Washington University in 1937. The Admiral served throughout World War II in submarines.

The NROTC Unit will commission 44 officers, 38 of them in the Navy and six in the Marine Corps. Supply Corps commissions will go to 14 of the Navy officers and they will be ordered to further training at the Navy Supply Corps School, Athens, Georgia.

A feature of the ceremonies will be the presentation of a Navy Officers Sword to the Honor Midshipman graduate. The award is based on outstanding achievement in scholastic, professional and leadership endeavors. The presentation will be made by Victor S. Bryant of Durham who is President of the newly formed Triangle Council of the Navy League of the United States, the donor of the sword.

The first annual award will be made to Midshipman Captain Theodore Carlton Moore, Jr. Moore served as Midshipman Battalion Commander of the NROTC Unit and during his college career has received numerous honors and awards for his outstanding leadership and aptitude for the Naval Service.

He is a superior student and was elected to membership in the nation's highest scholastic society, Phi Beta Kappa, in his junior year. More recently he was recognized with a research grant from the National Science Foundation. Moore, a native Tar Heel, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Moore of Chapel Hill.

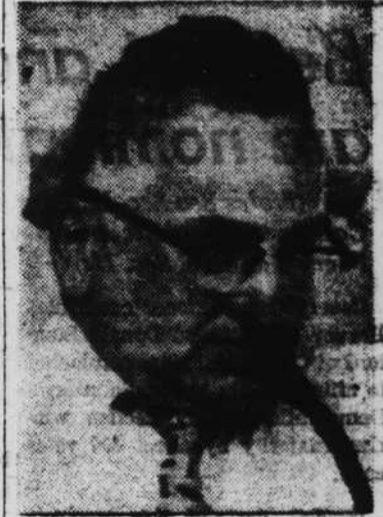

Harry Golden to be speaker at Hillsboro

Best-seller author, Harry Golden, celebrated Editor of the Carolina Israelite, will deliver the commencement address at Hillsboro High School tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Author of "Only In America" and "For Two Cents Plain," two volumes which graced the nation's best-seller lists at the same time, Golden achieved fame as a writer of essays and pithy comment in the monthly newspaper he began principally for Jewish readers. Its popularity has spread to a wide circulation of readers in all walks of life, however, and Golden has become one of the nation's best known humorists.

He will be introduced by Linda Efland, a member of the graduating class.

Seventy-three seniors will receive diplomas.
