THE HURRICANE - FORCE gusts of early last Saturday afternoon caused damage in various places around the county. Among places hit were Maultsby-Perry Tire Co., Carrboro, where a large window was broken; and a number of houses along Goldston Ave. in Carrboro, where shingles were blown off. Mrs. Ed Lanier, walking on a downtown street in Durham, narrowly escaped serious injury when she was blown down.

TWO POLICEMEN HAD quite a time Monday afternoon breaking open the safe which burglars stole from Long Meadow Farms Dairy Bar last Friday. The robbers gave up their effort after beating up the strong box. Police Chief W. D. Blake and Sgt. W. F. Hester were little better as yeggmen, but finally got it open after 45 minutes work. The $200 contents of the damaged box had to be removed and the combination lock had been damaged beyond repair.

"I SUGGEST YOU FIND yourself a $25 mule." This was the admonition of Superior Court Judge Heman Clark in Hillsboro this week as he revoked a defendant's driver's license for five years.

BOOTLEGGERS ARE AS CLOSE to being the vanishing Orange Countians this month as they probably have ever been. The Orange County ABC enforcement staff has been unable to make a single arrest or capture a drop of whiskey despite having put in what Chief Burch Compton terms their "hardest month of working and watching."

DISCUSSING THE STATE DE-partment of Labor's apprenticeship program, in one of his many local asides during his speech here Tuesday night, Commissioner Frank Crane noted another Hillsboro "first." He said John Berry, pioneer Hillsboro builder who designed several of the community's now historic structures, was the first man who ever undertook to put up a complete building with brick.

REDBOOK MAGAZINE'S March issue mentions Chapel Hill in an article about a northern family's vacation in North Carolina. "We took a day out to visit the close triangle of university towns—Raleigh, Durham, and Chapel Hill," the article said. "The gardens and Gothic perfection of Duke, the grace of the University of North Carolina's red brick and the contemporary sparkle of the State College provide sharp contrasts, but together they seemed to us to embody the best of the New South."

Top athlete - and his coach...

JEFF THOMAS AWARD RECIPIENT — Former UNC basketball star Ray Stanley, now living in Chapel Hill and working in public accounting, was presented the Jeff Thomas Memorial Award as Carolina's outstanding athlete last year, according to vote of the Tar Heel coaches. He's seen above with Coach Frank McGuire during the half-time presentation ceremonies at the Tuesday evening benefit game at Woollen Gym in which the Carolina all-stars defeated Lennie Rosenbluth's squad of Rosie's All-Stars, on which Stanley plays. A memorial to the late Chapel Hill soda shop operator who was an ardent sports fan, the trophy was presented by Whid Powell.
