Dairy show sponsors thanked for donations

Hugh Wilson, representing the Orange Junior Dairy Show Committee, has asked that the following business firm sponsors of the recent Four-H dairy show be publicly thanked for their donations toward the cost of this project:

University National Bank, Village Pharmacy, Bank of Chapel Hill, Colonial Drug Co., Sloan Drug Co., Belk-Leggett-Horton Co., Chapel Hill Weekly, Bennett and Blockside, Farmer's Exchange, Long Meadow Farms, Durham Dairy Products, Forrest and Forrest, Andrews-Riggsbee Tractor Co., News of Orange County, Orange Farm Equipment Co., Hume Claytor, Walker Milling Co., and the American and Curtis Breeders Services.

LAND OF ORANGE

By Quentin Patterson
Soil Conservation Service
Ponds have been laid out recently Zollie Andrews, J. E. McBroom, J. W. Kirk and Sons and A. G. Crawford, Orange Grove, and for M. M. Cole and Donald Hue Oakley, Cedar Grove. Some of them will store water for livestock, others for irrigation, and some will serve both purposes as well as fish production and recreation.

Interest in ponds as part of soil and water conservation systems is increasing again. During the first seven months of 1961, 35 ponds have been laid out by the Soil Conservation Service. On 24 of these, ACP assistance has been allotted for storage of water for livestock or irrigation.

Ponds were checked out recently for W. E. Pope, and O. K. Blalock, Cedar Grove, and C. E. Atkins, Carr. Built according to specifications furnished by the Soil Conservation Service, these ponds are designed to handle safely the heaviest rains of a fifty year period. The ASC Committee had previously approved these ponds and the ACP will share about 1/2 of the costs as a permanent conservation measure.

With the approach of fall, it is time to begin thinking about establishing conservation cropping systems. A conservation cropping system is one that will hold soil losses down to the three or four tons per acre annual average during the rotation that is as much as most of our fields can afford.

On tobacco land, 20 pounds fescue mixed and seeded with small grain will begin a profitable rotation. In addition to its soil conserving value, it will mean better use of irrigation water or rainfall when the field is next in tobacco. The reduction of nematodes and disease are other benefits.

EYEBANK CANISTER DONATED

The Carrboro Lions Club has donated two metal canisters for shipping fresh eye transplants to Memorial Hospital in Chapel

Hill at a recent meeting. The refrigerating canisters will be used by the hospital to send re-usable parts of human eyes to the Eye Bank for Restoring Sight in Winston Salem or to other hospitals.
