

Blazing house claims two lives; sheriff is checking for arson

—Story on Page 2

Orange
Peelings

The News

of orange county

—Chapel Hill, Hillsboro, Carrboro—Between and Beyond—

VOL. 69, NO. 42

HILLSBORO AND CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1961

24 PAGES

Magic moment...

ORANGE COUNTY SHERIFF
Buck Knight is still hoping to be able to obtain direct telephone service from his office to Chapel Hill. But a stumbling block has apparently been reached with the Morris Telephone Co. in Hillsboro. Cost of the line, which would put a Chapel Hill telephone in the Hillsboro office, is $95 a month. Law enforcement officers want the 'phone put in so that citizens throughout the county will be able to call the sheriff without having to go through long-distance.

THE TRIAL OF THE "WHAMMY" in Chapel Hill last week went all right, according to patrolmen who worked with the radar speed calculator. If it's approved for purchase by the Town Board, police expect to use it on certain streets where speeding has become particularly prevalent. Congestion is such on local streets, they point out, that it's nigh impossible to catch a speeder by using a patrol car.

CLAUDIA CANNADY, Manager of the Chapel Hill Western Union office, may be leaving imminently for transfer to the Nashville, Tenn., office. A local native and mainstay in civic causes, she'll be departing after 14 years with WU. She's interested in Nashville because of her penchant for helping young musical artists—some of whom are now on the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville.

IF CURRENT AVERAGES HOLD out, the $1.5 million that Orange County will borrow through selling bonds next month will cost it $788,000—or 52 per cent of the principal. This is calculating the sale at four per cent, which is the rate of many similar issues this season, and figuring a 24-year repayment cycle. While some people oppose all bond borrowing as un-economical, it's a fact that in recent years building costs have been going up faster than the cost of the money that's borrowed. Also—the people who use bond-built schools are those who pay for 'em, since the re-payment of the loan is spread through the life of the school.

PRESIDENT—THEN 'DR.' KENNEDY—The President of the United States stands confidently poised an instant before University Dean J. L. Godfrey dropped the academic cape over his shoulders, making him an honorary doctor of laws. More than 35,000 persons were present in Kenan Stadium last Thursday for the President's speech and the awarding of the honorary degree to him. At the left—University Chancellor Aycock and (center) President Friday.—News Photo

Circulation Today

7,407

99 PCT. DISTRIBUTED IN ORANGE COUNTY

Petitions drawn for governor, boards in power line controversy

—Story on Page 2

TOWN IS SUED FOR UP-ZONING

—Story on Page 3