

Chest drive reports 12 pct. of goal in; appeal ends Mon.

The 1962 Chapel Hill Community Chest-Red Cross fund appeal for $55,000 stood at 12 per cent of its goal, according to a mid-week report here yesterday.

Drive Chairman George Coxhead said the reports were about what he expected for this stage of the eight-agency appeal, which is scheduled to continue through next Monday. A survey of contributions to date showed they were averaging more than combined gifts had in the past for the Chest and Red Cross separately. These two campaigns are combined for the first time this year.

Yesterday's report showed a total of $6,708 received a date—most of it in cash. Chairman Coxhead singled out the Chemstrand firm for commendation on the basis of its $1,557 gift for local employees, as compared to about half of this sum last year.

This year's objective is about 20 per cent higher than that for 1961. It includes agency budgets as follows: Red Cross—$10,900; Association for Aging, $150; Boy Scouts, $6,718; Girl Scouts—$3,820; Holmes Day Nursery—$4,450; Humane Society—$700; Recreation Commission—$17,526; Y-Teens—$1,981; and for a Community Council study of community needs—$2,700.

First farm-city wk. program is Nov. 17

Orange County's first observance of National Farm-City Week will be here on Friday, Nov. 17. The national observance begins on Nov. 17 and ends on Thanksgiving, Nov. 23.

Following a planning meeting held in the Orange County Courthouse Monday night, Reid Roberts, Orange County Farm-City Week chairman, said the local observance will be held in the Cameron Park School here at 7:30 p. m. Nov. 17.

The program will include one speech on urban interests in the county and one on the agricultural side of Orange County life.

On hand for Monday night's meeting were representatives of various civic groups and agricultural groups in the county, including various local granges.

From these groups, chairmen were named for the various committees making arrangements for the observance. They are Quentin Patterson, publicity; Ed Barnes, program; and Reid Roberts and Fred Claytor, speaker. Decorations will be arranged by the Hillsboro Garden Club and Orange County home demonstration clubs. The Pomona Grange and other granges in the county will provide refreshments.

Dr. Charles Maddry is awarded Exchangeites' golden deeds book

Dr. Charles Maddry, who chopped wood for 10 cents an hour to earn money to attend the University of North Carolina, was honored by the Hillsboro Exchange Club last Thursday night as its 1961 choice for the Book of Golden Deeds.

Dr. Maddry was described by G. C. McBane in his presentation as an Orange County native who later became one of the great world leaders of the Baptist denomination during his service as executive secretary of the Foreign Missions Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

A resident of Hillsboro since 1951 when he returned after retirement to fill out an interim pastorate in the church in which he began his career 50 years earlier, Dr. Maddry was born three miles north of Chapel Hill April 10, 1876.

"He is a great leader and a great man. It is his type that has made this country strong," said Mr. McBane in his citation which included many anecdotes from the career of the noted Baptist minister.

He was described as a builder throughout his life. Dr. Maddry's work in building schools, homes, hospitals and colleges around the world was cited by Mr. McBane, who noted also that he had been honored with four doctorate degrees by colleges and universities, including his own alma mater, UNC, Wake Forest, Baylor, and Stetson.

In 1901, according to McBane, Dr. Maddry was elected Orange County Superintendent of Schools while still a student at UNC. He remained out of school during 1902, but went back in 1903 while serving as county school superintendent and pastor of five churches.

He won oratory honors as a UNC senior while speaking on the deplorable condition of public schools of the county and succeeding in awaking the people to the needs of the time, according to McBane's citation. Later in his reminiscences, Dr. Maddry noted there were 53 white schools and 24 Negro schools in Orange County during 1902 and the highest salary paid was $30 per month for a 2½ month term.

Dr. Maddry served as secretary of the Baptist Foreign Missions board from 1932 until 1949. After retirement, when the local Baptist church lost its pastor, Dr. Maddry returned to Hillsboro to bring warring factions together and to launch and complete other huge building program before beginning a second retirement a few years ago.

Pool project pending; decision due in week

The Chapel Hill Exchange Club's membership campaign for a local swimming pool project stood at a little over the half-way mark this week as the pre-announced Nov. 1 deadline for the drive passed.

A spokesman for the group said that 160 persons had signed pledges for $150 apiece toward construction of the projected $45,000 pool. A goal of $300 memberships had been set. The memberships to date would bring in $24,000. Herb Holland, co-chairman of the campaign, said the non-profit corporation's directors would meet within a week to decide upon one of three courses of action: (1) Construction of a smaller pool; (2) proceed with construction as planned by borrowing money as necessary while additional memberships are obtained; or (3) abandon the drive and refund all cash and pledges.

FLAGS FOR PACK 828

Cub Scout Pack 828, sponsored by Aldersgate Methodist Church, met Thursday evening, October 26, in the church fellowship room. Cubmaster Fred Hawkins presided. In celebration of United Nations week the boys marched into the meeting, each carrying a flag he had made. Halloween night the flags were used again in the UNICEF parade at Eastgate Shopping Center.
