

Howard E. Thompson gets schools head post

Howard Elliott Thompson will succeed Dr. Joseph Johnston as Chapel Hill Superintendent of Schools on July 1.

Dr. Johnston, who announced his resignation in March, will join the State Department of Public Instruction Aug. 1.

Mr. Thompson, Principal of Wilkes Central High School in North Wilkesboro since 1953, was the School Board's top choice.

Chairman Dr. J. Kempton Jones stated the Board felt fortunate in securing Mr. Thompson because of his broad experience in school planning and construction. Chapel Hill, currently constructing a new elementary school, plans renovation of another in June, and building of a new junior high and high school, as well as an addition to the Estes Hill Elementary.

During Mr. Thompson's tenure at North Wilkesboro, a large school construction program was completed there.

Mr. Thompson attended Albany Academy in Albany, N. Y., Central High School in Syracuse, Penn State University, Springfield College at Springfield, Mass. (B.S. 1938), Ohio State University (M.A. 1940), and the University of North Carolina (Ph.D. 1952). His doctoral dissertation was on schoolhouse planning.

A commander in the USNR, Mr. Thompson has taught at Springfield College, Cedarville College in Ohio, Missouri State Teachers College, Western Carolina College and at Appalachian State Teachers College. He has had public school teaching experience at Bethlehem Central Schools in Delmar, N. Y., and at Plattsburg, N. Y.

Members of the Methodist Church, the Thompsons have a daughter, Toni, who will be a senior next year in the UNC School of Nursing, and a son, Scott, who will be in the 10th grade. Mrs. Thompson is a graduate of Miami University, Miami, Ohio.

HOWARD E. THOMPSON

Ruth F. Shaw to give Finger painting show

Ruth Faison Shaw will give an exhibition of her finger painting this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, from 1 to 6 p. m. in the garden of her home on Estes Drive.

A special panel of pictures by children will also be shown. "The important thing about finger painting is the concept of spontaneous creation," the artist stated. Many of these artists feel this is a major part of their approach. Finger painting preceded Pollacks painting without a brush.

The public is invited to view the display.

Mrs. Foster is wed to Prof. A. R. Coleman

Mrs. George H. (Louise Hudson) Foster, of 16 Flemington Road, Glen Lennox, and Prof. Almand Rouse Coleman, of the Graduate School of Business Administration of the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, were married on Monday, May 21, in the Church of the Holy Family, by the rector, the Rev. Loren Mead.

The couple, with their respective children, plan to make Charlottesville, Va. their home after Mrs. Coleman completes a program of medical technology in the Department of Pathology of the UNC Medical School.

Mrs. Waterbury writes recipe for good clown

"What makes a good clown? Who were some of the famous clowns? Why do clowns often wear wigs?" These and other questions are answered in an article entitled "The Story of Clowns," by Dorothy R. Waterbury of Chapel Hill in the June 1962 issue of "Grade Teacher," a magazine widely used by teachers as a resource for materials at all grade levels.

"The Story of Clowns" briefly touches upon the early appearances of clowns in Greek and Roman plays and reviews their part in later English and American drama, down to modern times. Among celebrated American clowns, past and present, occur such names as Fred Stone, Joe E. Brown, Red Skelton and the inimitable Emmet Kelly.

During the current year "Grade Teacher" has published the following stories by Dorothy R. Waterbury: "Whistling Felipe," based on a setting in the Canary Islands; "The Hole in the Tulip Tree," a North Carolina Story; "A Surprising Jump," an incident in Greece; "Tamache's Treasure," relates to life on the Island of Trinidad.

It is available at the Wilson Library of the University.

Look upon every day as the whole of life, not merely as a section; and enjoy and improve the present without wishing, through haste, to rush on to another.

—Jean Paul Richter

A wrong motive involves defeat. —Mary Baker Eddy

Man is not made for defeat. —Ernest Hemingway

MY SINCERE THANKS

For The Support Given Me By The People Of Orange County In The Democratic Primary

THOMAS D. COOPER JR. DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE

DISTRICT 10-A SOLICITOR

MORE READING FOR LESS MONEY

You've heard a lot about the rare books at the Intimate. In this advertisement we want to talk about the plain good reading your spare change will buy in our Old Book Corner.

97c SHELF. Here's a batch of good old non-fiction books — not first editions, but sound good copies of titles of real value for amusement or scholarship. If a book doesn't sell in three months here, it moves down to the 72c SHELF. Here you'll find good non-fiction, in copies showing a bit more wear, plus, now and then, a used copy of a recent best seller. Any book that stays here for three months drops on down to the 38c SHELF. This is mostly fiction, including both recent book club titles and old time favorites that delighted your grandmother. If you find three that you like, we'll make it a dollar for the set. Come Treasure-Hunting Today!

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

119 East Franklin Street Chapel Hill Open Till 10 P.M.

TRAVELERS CHECKS

Don't take a chance on ruining your next vacation by losing your money or being unable to cash a check in a strange community. Take along loss-proof, good anywhere travelers checks from Central Carolina Bank.

ANOTHER REASON CENTRAL CAROLINA IS YOUR FULL SERVICE BANK IN CHAPEL HILL AND HILLSBORO