A STATE HIGHWAY CREW, making test borings for rock on Smith Level Road Monday morning, struck the main line of the Carrboro sewer system, rupturing the 10-inch pipe. Carrboro town workmen spent most of the rest of the day stopping the flow, but managed to get it fixed up before nightfall and without having to interrupt customer service anywhere along the line.

PROPRIETOR T. P. SMITH at the Gen. Sherman Restaurant put on a spread to rival an old-time covered dish supper in setting up the buffet dinner for the Democratic party banquet at his place last Friday night. The chow line wound around four sides of a serving table, measuring about 10 feet on a side, and affording the least of gourmands unusual temptation to gorge himself. Of the $10 cost of each ticket for the supper, it is reported, only $2.25 went for the food bargain.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING Appeals began coming in the mail this week... brightly colored catalogues from mail order houses in New England and the midwest, all featuring a new line of Yuletide oddments in an effort to get first jump on the season... By this token, can spring be far behind?!!

THE NEWS CERTAINLY doesn't intend to become party to UNC Press accusations of breaking release dates on reviews for its "Businessman in the Statehouse," the new Luther Hodges book that'll be out Oct. 6. But it should be cryptically safe enough to report that the book contains one chapter in particular in which this new citizen of Orange County (Hodges) makes some extraordinarily sharply critical inferences about his dealings as governor with another distinguished citizen of the Land of Orange.

WORK HAS BEEN STARTED on an elaborate system of traffic channelization in the Eastgate Shopping Center parking area. It'll separate sidewalk from street, from parking space in the central sector. Along the line of traffic news from that corner, it should be clarified that a report of a child's having been fatally injured in an accident there last Saturday is erroneous. Officers state that a child did run into the side of a car in the second row of the south side parking area. But the victim's injury was not serious.

LET'S CORRECT ANOTHER story, too. Gov. Sanford will not speak in Memorial Hall tomorrow night (Friday) as earlier planned and announced. This was to have been a speech to the UNC sophomore class, but was called off. He will speak on the UNC campus tonight in a private address to the Morehead scholarship recipients. But after his three education rallies in the high schools on Friday he's now scheduled to return to Raleigh.

MUTUAL ADMIRATION — An air of mutual admiration envelops Chapel Hill's Mrs. George Nicholson of Chapel Hill and Secretary of State Thad Eure, both the toast of last Friday's county-wide Democratic party fund-raising banquet. Mrs. Nicholson was announced as the Sixth District candidate for North Carolina's Democratic Woman of the Year and was presented a brooch as a token award for having been chosen county nominee for this honor. The silver-tongued Secretary of State provided the campaign rallying cry for the 150 party faithful who attended the evening's political talkfest.
