

Manire given grant to Japan for next year

Dr. George Philip Manire, professor of bacteriology in the University School of Medicine, will take a year's leave of absence from UNC to conduct research at the Institute for Virus Research of Kyoto University in Japan, beginning July 1.

He has been awarded the Alan Gregg Travel Fellowship in Medical Education from the China Medical Board of New York for the year of study.

Dr. Manire's work will be in the institute's Department of Biophysics with Dr. Noboru Higashi, a distinguished scientist whose work is in Dr. Manire's field of interest.

While in Kyoto, an old city near Tokyo, Dr. Manire plans to continue his own virus studies begun at UNC and to work for proficiency in the new techniques developed by Dr. Higashi and his associates.

Dr. Manire will leave Chapel Hill for the Far East around July 1, his wife and two children accompanying him. Though most of his efforts will be confined to the research program at Kyoto, he hopes to visit Taiwan, Korea, and the Philippines, and to spend a short period participating in the teaching program in bacteriology in a medical school in one of the countries.

Dr. Manire, who joined the UNC medical faculty in 1950, holds the B.S. and M.S. degrees from North Texas State College, and the Ph.D. degree from the University of California. During the 1956 calendar year he held a Fulbright Research Scholarship grant for research at the Statens Serum Institut, in Copenhagen, a Danish biological production and research center.
