County School Board 'agrees in principle' on consolidation issue

The County Board of Education drafted its long-awaited and much discussed consolidation plans for junior and senior high schools of the county system Monday and set up a series of hearings to secure public opinion.

Although agreement has been reached "in principle," final action will await conclusion of the hearings scheduled as follows:

- (1) Feb. 11, Hillsboro High School
- (2) Feb. 14, Efland Elementary School
- (3) Feb. 25, Aycock High School
- (4) Feb. 28, Caldwell Elementary School

All meetings are at 7:30 p. m. The school reshuffling results from construction of Orange High School, scheduled for opening next fall.

Under the proposed plan, the county's white schools will be moved closer to the elementary, junior high, senior high or 6-3-3 plan of school organization.

Orange High School will serve grades 10 through 12. The present Hillsboro High School will become a junior high, serving grades five through nine. West Hillsboro, Efland and Aycock schools will become elementary schools serving grades one through six. Caldwell school will be eliminated, and Cameron Park will serve grades one through five. In addition, school districts and their committees will be reorganized as follows:

Orange District No. 1 — to be composed of Orange Junior and Senior High schools, covering all the territory in the county except that of the Chapel Hill School District.

Hillsboro District No. 2 — to be composed of Cameron Park and West Hillsboro. This is the current Hillsboro District No. 1 and part of Caldwell District.

Efland District No. 3 — to be composed of Efland and Efland Cheeks. This is the current Efland District No. 2.

Aycock District No. 4 — to be composed of Aycock and Cedar Grove. This is the present Ay-

(Continued from Page 2) Planning and Zoning Commission would be increased with the appointment of additional members by the Board of County Commissioners to represent the outlying area.

The Town Zoning Commission, when it is established, is expected to utilize the data maps already prepared for the area under the recent unsuccessful county zoning proposal.

Sentiment is considered generally in favor of zoning within the municipality and some areas surrounding.

Authorized the sale of the Haskins Grove (Damascus) school site;

Referred for further investigation a request for the sale of the old Efland Negro School;

Asked the State Highway Commission to pave two entrances and a parking lot at the Orange High School.

Denied two applications for transfer of students from Aycock to Alamance County schools and approved one from Durham to this county;

Agreed to a study leading to the enlargement of the West Hillsboro School attendance district upon presentation of a request from Prin. Carston Wagner and Advisory Committeeman Hurley Dickey;

Asked Rep. Umstead to include Orange County in the provisions of General Statute 115-70 allowing for an increase of District Committeemen from five to nine;

NASA's Spacemobile will be in Chapel Hill from this Saturday, Feb. 9 through Feb. 14.

During its visit the Spacemobile's accompanying lecturer will give three demonstrations the first day, two every day thereafter, at the Morehead Planetarium. Anybody who is confused about space and what is going on up there is invited to come to a Spacemobile demonstration to have his - puzzlement straightened out.

The Spacemobile is only a specially - designed panel truck, but it packs a lot of equipment and a lot more information.

Essentially, it is a space science lecture - demonstration which travels around the country (there are actually several separate Spacemobiles) authoritatively informing Americans on the space science and exploration activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Spacemobiles carry electronic and mechanical devices with which a lecturer demonstrates scientific principles, and shows how these principles are applied in current programs and projects for the peaceful utilization and exploration of space.

The demonstration is presented indoors, free of charge. The Spacemobile's flexibility and versatility make it usable not only in its continuing program in elementary and high schools throughout the United States, but also in colleges and universities to assist NASA lecturers participating in space and science institutes, seminars, and aerospace education workshops. Spacemobile demonstrations will be given at the Morehead Planetarium at 10 a. m., and at
