VOL. 71, NO. 35

HILLSBORO AND CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 29, 1963

28 PAGES

ABOUT 41 CHAPEL HILLIANS braved early hours to join the civil rights march on Washington Wednesday. They left from the bus station in a chartered vehicle at 2:15 a. m., expecting to arrive in the Capital about 8 a. m. Police, guarding the quiet of the early morning hours, saw them off.

THREE YOUTHS, ALL LESS than 15-years old, on French leave from Murdoch Training School in Butner broke into Jake's Sunoco station late Tuesday night. They apparently hoofed it from Butner to Durham where they allegedly stole three bicycles, which they rode to Chapel Hill. At the gas station near Eastgate, they got some beer, candies and ice cream.

THE ISSUE OF TOP ECHE-lon salary increases is indeed a matter of imminent concern for University officials at this time, as noted in press reports this week. Gov. Sanford has declared that some significant raises need to be given to faculty and administrators at the higher levels. And the salary of the Chancellor at Chapel Hill is of particular concern. But the point here is that the job itself carry a salary that will be attractive to the successor to Chancellor Aycock next year. President Friday is expected to name a committee by the middle of next month to recommend a person as Aycock's successor.

LOW BID OF $351,925.19 WAS submitted by C. C. Mangum, Inc., a Raleigh contractor, for construction of the new access road into Hillsboro from Interstate 85. Bids were opened Tuesday and are subject to final approval by the Highway Commission on Sept. 5. In official jargon, the description of the project in a press release from the Commission: "1.129 miles relocation of SR 1009 from a point just north of I-85, south of Hillsboro, thence in a northerly direction to a point south of Margaret Lane in Hillsboro."

JAYCEES IN HILLSBORO will be operating the equipment in the Health Department mobile unit for their first-sponsored event, a free Chest X-Ray Clinic, this coming Saturday in Hillsboro. The new Jaycees will get a quickie course of instruction at the HD tomorrow and then set up shop at the corner of King and Churton Sts. from 9 to 5. They hope you'll come.
