

Orange Pealings

THE TRADITIONAL OCT. 1 for mailing out county and local tax bills has been missed again this year because of the intricacies of the computer machinery which prepares the bills. County Administrator Sam Gattis went to Winston-Salem yesterday to have the bills prepared, and they're scheduled to be ready for mailing in Hillsboro and Chapel Hill early next week. Taxpayers were reminded that October payment discounts cannot be set back even though the statements are received at some date later than the first of that month—an issue that caused quite a public hassle last year.

SEVEN OF THE NINE granges in Orange County have received awards in the annual community service competition sponsored throughout the state by N. C. National Bank. They were the county-wide Pomona Grange, and Schley, Cedar Grove, New Hope, St. Mary's Buckhorn, Caldwell, and Orange Grove Granges. All were among the 127 across the state which received awards at the convention in Statesville this week. Each was given a $25 cash award except for Buckhorn and Caldwell, which won honorable mentions and $50 savings bonds. There are about 400 grangers in the locals units of Orange County.

MRS. BOB SATTERFIELD OF Hillsboro has been re-appointed to the State Personnel Council and Dr. Dan A. Martin of Chapel Hill, appointed to the State Examining Committee of Physical Therapists, by Gov. Sanford, it was revealed this week.

THE TAR HEELS HAD A rough afternoon against the traditional rivals, the Virginia Cavaliers, Saturday before last, but things were going great at the Chapel Hill area's ABC store insofar as sales were concerned. Officials noted last week that the Saturday sales were the heaviest for this day on record since the county system was installed — $12,700. A normal Saturday for the Chapel Hill store is $6,000 to $7,000.

WILL ORANGE COUNTY OR any of its governmental units get anything out of the $14 million in aid projects proposed by the North Carolina Fund this week? This remains to be seen, and no local officials contacted had any definite plans for project applications at this time. But it is known that a project for expanding vocational training at Chapel Hill High into the field of medical technology is under consideration at the state level, and could be a Fund-aided program.

FORTY-TWO CHAMBER OF Commerce leaders from Greensboro started off the day with a tour of Chapel Hill yesterday before going on to a luncheon in Durham and junket through Research Triangle Park. Steering committee members for the Chapel Hill Chamber were hosts to the group at an early coffee break, preceding a circuit of Kenan Stadium, the UNC computer area, and radio and TV department.

'... a hill to the south, overlooking the town.'

FIRST VIEW of Historic Hillsborough travelers from the South will receive when the new $350,000 link with I-85 is completed will be that shown above. Taken from the top of the bluff overlooking the town, the picture shows the recently cleared route which the new access will follow from the south end of Churton St., across the Eno River and to the top of the hill in front of Eno Lodge, the Clarence D. Jones home. The present bridge is shown just to the left of the center of the photograph. Historical information recently brought to light by Mrs. Alfred Engstrom indicates Cornwallis may have encamped his troops at this very site "overlooking the town." Having earlier been encamped near the present home of A. H. Graham, according to the records, Lord Cornwallis was said to have become worried about the safety of his troops and so moved them to "a hill immediately south of Hillsborough, overlooking the town." The embankment forming the base of the previous bridge across the Eno may be seen between the electric poles to the right of center.

Getting 'the treatment' . . .

IN BAD SHAPE—A fellow would have to be mighty badly injured to require all the first aid bandaging being applied by Scouts of Troop 450, Efland, to their patrol leader, Danny Sykes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lowe Sykes. The would-be doctors, seen at the Orange District 'Fireball' Camporee in Chapel Hill last weekend, are Gordon Brown (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Brown, and Eddie Shue, son of Mrs. Mildred Shue. B. M. Tuck is Scoutmaster of the troop. Photo by Bobby Cadmus
