Main street of yore...

OLD DAYS IN CHAPEL HILL—The above scene on E. Franklin St. in Chapel Hill, taken in 1892, has been enlarged by Wootten-Moulton Studio and hung as a photo mural in the Newly-redecorated Chapel Hill Town Hall courtroom. Taken from a point about in front of the Village Apartments of today, looking westward up the street, records in the North Carolina Collection at the University Library show that the photo, made by 'Photographer Foster' of Richmond, Va., was given to University President Kemp P. Battle.

Young man's fancy...

STATE REVENUE COMMISSIONER William Johnson, newly-appointed superior court judge to succeed the late Clawson Williams, was in Hillsborough late yesterday to confer with his colleague-to-be Judge Raymond Mallard. Mr. Johnson, a native of Harnett County, is, by the way, a nephew of Paul Green of Chapel Hill.

THE PREVIOUSLY - STRICT enforcement of the ban on talking, eating, reading, etc., in Judge Raymond Mallard's Superior courtroom at Hillsborough has been slightly relaxed this week as the un-contested cases were put before the bench. But woe betide the citizen in the courtroom who may feel that the Judge has in fact forgotten about the rules he ordered posted on the courtroom door. From his vantage point on the bench the Judge sees much that he does not immediately comment upon, but files in his memory for convenient recollection at an appropriate later date.

FURTHER ANENT THE CIVIL rights cases, trials have been held before Juvenile Court Judge Edwin Lynch to date for six juvenile defendants arrested in the Chapel Hill demonstrations. All were un-contested cases and all were placed on probation.

WHEN TWO MEN CAME IN- to his Chapel Hill service station to rob him on Monday night proprietor Eben Merritt said he didn't catch on at first. He said he grabbed the man's wrist, pushed the pistol away from him. "I had the gun pointing west, away from me. I held it there for about 10 seconds, and then I noticed the little fella. He said 'This is a real robbery.' I said 'Pardon me, I didn't know it was real.' After firing a shot into the counter to prove how real it all was the men grabbed about $150 from the cash register and fled. As of yesterday they had not been caught.

KEMP NYE, OWNER OF CHEZ Kemp in Chapel Hill, said he was putting bars across the back windows of his shop in an attempt to prevent any future robberies. Burglars broke into his place Sunday night and took an estimated $18,000 worth of oriental jade and ivory objects of art and classical music records.

SUSAN SEES THE SEASON—One of Chapel Hill Senior High School's gifts to the young man's fancy is Susan Alexander, a senior student and Sweetheart Queen at the School this year. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Sydenham B. Alexander, she's seen amidst the fresh-flowering scenery in the University's Coker Arboretum.
