Orange Peelings

A BIG TRAILWAYS BUS WITH "Stansbury for Governor" banners plastered all over the sides and front was parked on courthouse square all Tuesday morning. As it turned out later the vehicle had been chartered by a class of Durham school children on a sightseeing tour. They'd put the banners on beforehand, and had the driver take them out to their candidate's corner grocery in West Hillsborough for a soft drink before they left Historic Hillsborough.

N. C. NATIONAL BANK WAS low bidder and purchased $45,000 in Chapel Hill Town Hall improvement bonds this week with a bid of 2.9 per cent interest on the nine-year issue. N.C.N.B. was also low bidder on a companion $180,000 sewer bond issue but lost out on a technicality.

THIS COMING SATURDAY will be Armed Forces Day in Chapel Hill according to an official proclamation with five "whereas" clauses as issued this week by Mayor Sandy McClamroch. No special events, in addition to the public notice, were announced in connection with this statement.

JUST LIKE A TINY SNOW-ball gathers volume, a small weak spot in the surface treatment on the first block of Hillsborough St. in Chapel Hill grew to monumental proportions in the 90-degree heat last Thursday. Great patches of the syrupy surface were pulled up by the wheels of autos. Town officials noted that the street was paved last year by the State Highway Commission with surface treatment process, over local protest. The Town strongly prefers the asphalt plant mix surface, with which it has had no trouble. When the street is re-surfaced, they say, it will be with the latter material.

ANOTHER NOTE FROM MUNICIPAL officials in Chapel Hill: Please, they ask all householders, don't pile trash in the gutters to be picked up by sanitation crews. It washes into storm drains during the rainy weather and clogs both pipes and storm drain grills.

CANDIDATES SPEAKING AT the League of Women Voters-sponsored candidates forum last night were gently but firmly notified of the expiration of the three-minute time limit on their speeches. The woman acting as timer sat watch-in-hand on the front row of the auditorium and tinkled a dinner bell to signify the limit for each speaker. All but two of the dozen candidates on the stage went the limit. Some were cut off literally in mid-sentence and just prior to climactic punch lines. But all accepted the "gong" with good graces.
