Lively Times.

On last Saturday Mr. N. Glen Williams took offence at Mr. Cicero Ogburn and piled him up with a cane for which he was bound over to court in a bond of $200 by Mayor Eaton.

On Monday Mr. Williams remonstrated with Mr. Walter Dalton by breaking a cane over his head. Mr. Dalton came back and set a mark on our Cousin Glen, just below the left eye. Walter was fined $2.00, and Glen was bound over to court under $100.

Late Tuesday morning we came up out of the basement and was glad to find that no bones had been broken, and that the atmosphere had cleared up enough to justify an attempt at exercising around the court house green again.

Seriously, we do not see any occasion for people who ought to be good friends throwing themselves out of balance over small matters.

Captain Mathes dead.

Capt. Geo. M. Mathes, for years the owner and editor of the Western Sentinel of this place, died at his home near Turkey Creek, Fla., June 7th, aged 67 years. Capt. Mathes was a native of Sevier county, Tenn. He located in Winston after the close of the war, and it was under his tutelage that the Editor of the GUIDE grew into young manhood. In fact the owners of Stewarts' Printing House, were known as "Mathes' Boys." He had his faults, and suffered much on account of them, causing others to suffer also. But there was a deep under current of good in him, and to us he was a friend, if not a benefactor.

He leaves a wife, Mrs. Lena Mathes, and two sons. His wife is reported to be one of the best school teachers in the State of Florida.

The Ladies Aid Society of the West Bend Baptist church will give a picnic on the church grounds Saturday, July 28th. Dinner 25 cents. Lawn party at night. All are cordially invited.

The older woman, the girl's stess laughed as if something caused her but tenderly too for she loved the girl. "Why couldn't she enjoy her work stand most?" she asked. "It what she was put into the world to do."

"But the kind of work," the girl protested—"just common hoking and dish-washing! She might have thoughts above it." "What would you think of a ighthouse keeper who had thoughts above cleaning lamps?" "Oh but thats different!" the girl said quickly. "Thats a mat-
