HARTSELL FOR SOLICITOR.

THE TRIBUNE has previously lent its voice to the cause of its fellow townsman, Mr. L. T. Hartsell, in his candidacy for Solicitor should Mr. Webb be made Judge to succeed Judge Hoke. We like always to speak a good word concerning one of our own, but especially should that one be a friend in whom we have implicit confidence and possessing to our mind the necessary qualifications for the place to which he aspires. These we know our townsman does possess, in the highest degree, and we say again that we trust that Governor Aycock will see fit to name Mr. Hartsell as Mr. Webb's successor. The first consideration, the one paramount, is of course that of fitness. Here we believe that a knowledge of the law and temperament should count—a combination of knowledge of law, temperament, good sense and sound judgment. This combination is Mr. Hartsell's. His party service is a consideration—none deserve more on this ground, though it is a secondary consideration. Cabarrus Democracy, Cabarrus citizenship and the city of Concord lend the highest endorsement to this appointment. These things are worthy of consideration. We believe the district would nominate Mr. Hartsell if such were in order and we believe the district would be pleased with his appointment. We acknowledge that he is a close friend of ours, but we speak without bias and honestly when we say that we believe he is worthy and well qualified in every way for the appointment.

SENATOR SIMMONS.

THE TRIBUNE cordially welcomes Senator Simmons to Cabarrus and assure him of kindly feelings on behalf of the people of the county. For the champion of Democracy in North Carolina and our present senior Senator Concord and Cabarrus have nothing but the best feelings for the man and absolute confidence in his ability and integrity as a senator and a loyal representative of the State in the Senate. Senator Simmons is justly entitled to our confidence and admiration. He is as Senator giving ample evidence of his worth and fulfilling in the highest measure the high expectation of his many friends and warm supporters. It is gratifying to North Carolinians to note his standing in Washington and the magnificent stand he is taking for the party of his native State and the Nation. THE TRIBUNE has always been strong in its admiration for Mr. Simmons, and we can say that this does not lose one iota as he develops into a strong and useful Senator, reflecting great credit on his State as he takes rank with the leaders of the Nation.

The claim agents of the political parties are earning their salary these days. Their job is short lived and much work must be crowded into a short space.

RECOLLECTIONS AND LIFE OF GENERAL LEE.

In this book, just from the press of Doubleday, Page & Co., by the son, R. E. Lee, we have a beautiful picture of the man. We have his life, history tells us of him and his part in the great struggle as well as of his other life work, but this work gives a look behind the scene and shows the great man in his simplicity as he was to his family and friends. There is nothing of war, but all of Lee, who loved his home and family, his friends and his country, who had time to give to these, stands out through the pages of this book as in no other.

The words of the husband to the wife, the father to the son, the brother to the sister and the friend to the friend is what is condensed into the volume along with a son's recollections of a kind, indulgent father, bringing the reader into closer relation with the man as he was in the splendid years of his life.

These letters were many of them written from the tent, on the march and under the smoke from the strife of war. They tell of what came to a pure mind as under such surrounding, he thought of home and loved ones. They tell of the unselfish love, the true devotion and the earnest patriotism ever foremost with a splendid man. They give us a close look into the every character of Lee, the Lee we honor, the Lee our fathers followed and the Lee of splendid manhood on field and in the home. These letters and recollections form a book which makes a valuable addition to any library. One who loves the name of Lee will appreciate the book in the fullest.

RUSSIA AGAIN.

Russia has put her foot into it again, and by the wanton incident of Friday night has all England aroused. The burden of the excuse so far seems to be that in the dark the Russian ships thought the vessels were war vessels from Japan and would sink them at once and forever. This great blundering nation sees the almond eyed by day and by night. Their dreams are feverish and their anxiety always alert. They must live in mortal terror of the Japs, and when this incident occurred they say to the world that they thought it surely must have been the Japs. The formal note from England must surely bring a quick apology, for Russia fighting Japan has no time for other disputes. It does Russia no good, this unwarranted firing on fishing boats, and the outcome will be another humiliation for that people.

JUDGE ALLEN.

Judge W. R. Allen, who holds court here this week, is one of the ablest men on the bench in the State. He gives ample evidence of his fitness for the bench, both in knowledge of the law and in ability to handle the courts. His charge on yesterday was one of the wisest and best ever heard in Concord. Under such men the courts of North Carolina cannot but be respected and cannot fail in their highest purpose in executing the laws of the State to our credit and benefit.

Concord has as her guest tonight Mr. C. J. Harris, the Republican candidate for Governor, who speaks tonight on political issues.

Public Speaking.

STRONG CAMPAIGN SPEECH.

Senior Senator, F. M. Simmons, Delivers a Strong Speech to the Democracy of Cabarrus Today—State and National Issues Ably Discussed

United States Senator, F. M. Simmons, delivered a strong and telling speech on the issues in the present campaign today, dealing with both National and State questions in a strong, masterly manner. Beginning in the quiet manner characteristic of the man Mr. Simmons spoke of National question by a pleasing reference to the man named by the Democrats for the presidency and contrasted Judge Parker with President Roosevelt, his opponent. He mentioned in strong terms of denunciation of the extravagance and groft which characterize the present administration and told of the unkind and uncomplimentary things Mr. Roosevelt has said of so many people, to wit: toe farmer, the Quaker, the laborer and the Southern people.

Speaking of the extravagance of the administration reference was made to the fact that it cost over $700,000,000 to run the government while the army and navy cost more than England, France or Germany though each one of these maintained armies of several hundred thousand.

Bringing this home the Senator told that North Carolina's proportional part would be $20,000,000 over ten times as much as the State under Governor Aycock costs. Contrasting the candidates Mr. Simmons said that if Roosevelt is elected he "will not be a friend of yours or the friend of this part of the country." It would mean a re-opening of such measures as the South has settled. On the other hand if Parker is elected the South and the Southern people will have a friend at the White House.

After discussing these things, the two men, and for what they personally represent to the people of the South, the speaker passed to issues, the tariff, Republican prosperity and other questions. Coming to State issues Mr. Simmons spoke briefly of the present administration, answering Republican charges and showing the magnificent manner in which affairs have been handled.

All in all the speech was a strong one and shows the Senator a student of affairs and a close observer of events.
