The police shortly after the line began to move ordered the crowd to disperse. The working men refused to obey the order and the police charged them. When order was restored it was found that two workmen had been killed and many injured, the remainder of the marchers scattering in all directions.

BRYAN COMMENTS ON SPEECH OF HALDANE.

With War Minister of Briton He Dines and Talks of that Statesman's Scheme.

London, July 13.—Mr Bryan today dined with War Minister Haldane and the two statesmen discussed more completely the project advanced by Haldane in the House of Commons yesterday for a reduction of armament in the plan outlined for the British government re-organization, a subject in which Mr Bryan has long been much interested in. He said, "I listened with great interest to Haldane's speech and I believe the scheme he advanced may mark a new era in a general reduction in armament. I am opposed to any increase in the fighting strength of the American army, or any other nation. What is wanted is an application of an organization of forces on a basis of efficiency and economy. I cannot say whether the United States will follow the example set by Haldane, but hope the scheme will go a long way towards bringing peace to the world."
