A PATRIOTIC DUTY.

"A farmer went into a bank in my town the other day and told the cas-hler he wanted to open an account.
Then he pulled an old handkerchief from his pocket, slowly untied the knots and pulled out a lot of gold coin.
"There," he said to the cashier, is eighty dollars in gold. I reckon you folks need it more'n I do."
"Incidents like these," continued B. E. Teague, of Burlington, in the course of a conversation yesterday afternoon, "are indicative of the general feeling regarding the stability of the banks in our section.
"I believe that the same sentiment prevails wherever clearing house certificates have been issued. Business men want to stand by their own institutions as a matter of protection for themselves, and it is very evident that the day has passed when active distrust is a factor in financial matters.—Greensboro Industrial News.
There is the secret of the mildness of the present situation. There is confidence and all are helping to pass the point of stringency and aid in restoring normal conditions. If every man who has a dollar would put it in the bank the total sum would help wonderfully. When such times come it is the patriotic duty of all good citizens to freely offer assistance, just as much as it is a patriotic duty for one to volunteer in times of national danger, or threatening war. Why should anyone desire to draw money out of a bank at such times is beyond understanding. It is not excuse enough that fear is felt for the money.
There is not the slightest danger and it is such times that the financial institutions need help. At times when their vaults are busting with money and they are seeking loans and investments, they do not need such, but when there is recognized a stringency in currency, when ready spot is needed and hard to get, then is when every man who claims to love his country and hold dear the best institutions of the land should come to the rescue and deposit every dollar he has and can get day by day. Every dollar drawn from circulation hurts that much, every dollar put into circulation helps that much. The highest type of citizenship must recognize a duty here and cannot afford to shirk that duty.

In the New York World the following letter appears:
"Some thing less than a month ago I shipped from a little station less than two hundred miles from New York some household goods, via D-L-long W-air RR.
"Since then I have spent a small fortune in telephoning and writing to officials of that road, but so far can get no trace, sign or semblance of the goods or car. This has caused me great inconvenience. Is Roosevelt to blame? If so, I shall refuse to vote for him."
This is signed by C. T. Clements and one wonders of this special humorist is one of the Mark Twain Clements.

Of course Tom Johnson is being talked of for President, but Tom ran for governor of Ohio a few years ago and the result might indicate much.

Concord business men say they do not see the difference, that trade is just as good as ever.

A LAST WORD.

The Tribune makes a last appeal to the people of this city and county to increase the subscription to the Jackson Manual Training and Industrial School. The directors meet on the 18th at Greensboro to take final action on the matter of a location for the school. We should increase our subscription by several hundred dollars and there remains sufficient time to add much to the subscription. Much can be done in these several days of grace. We want the school and yet have the time to make an attractive offer. Every one who has not yet subscribed should do so at once and those who will increase have another opportunity. We should not allow this matter to pass us, certainly not at the present subscription. Make it larger.

A belated subscriber placed a ten dollar subscription to the Training School fund yesterday. The 18th is the day that the matter comes up for a decision.

According to a report Anna Gould is again married. Her experience with Boni was not sufficient. But then it is her affair altogether.

A Cabarrus Man Gives His Recollection of the Weston Trip.

Editor Tribune:
Sir:—Will you allow me to give my recollections of Weston, the pedestrian? I was seventeen years old and my recollections are clear.

It has been published in the papers that some Northern men had wagered a large sum of money that the hostilities of the South were such that a man could not carry openly and unprotected a United States flag from New Orleans to Washington City. Mr. Weston was selected a man suitable to carry out the undertaking if it could be done. It was published daily what progress he was making and was known the day before about what time he would arrive at the Concord station. My recollection is that it was Sunday morning. I was there to see him. I was standing on the corner, where the national bank now stands, when he turned the corner at the Fetzer Drug store stand. Mr.
Weston had been met at the depot by some Concord citizens and was brought up town in a hack. I think Mr. Jim Parks was in the hack, and one or two others, I do not now recall. Weston was dressed in blue knee pants. I do not think he wore a coat, but a blue overshirt or sweater.
He had his flag staff with the lower end resting on the bottom of the hack, with his hand about the middle of the staff. There was not breeze enough to carry the flag and it hung down over his hand. He remained in Concord a short while and was taken back to the depot to continue his journey. I have not thought of this for thirty years, but this is my recollection. I do not know why I think Mr. Parks was in the hack, perhaps some one in Concord will recollect who were in the vehicle with him.

GEO. C. GOODMAN.

Increase in Postoffice Receipts.
Many cities and towns of the State are giving out information concerning the increase in postoffice receipts for the month of October just past, and none of them, except Concord has been more than $300. For the month of October 1907 the receipts at this office amounted to $307.05 over the same period in 1906. If the other eleven months of the year make a similar showing the increased business in one year will amount to nearly $4, 000. This greatly increased postal receipts shows that a great volume of business is carried on in our city, and that the business interests are growing.

"IN GOD WE TRUST"—NO LONGER?

A dispatch from Washington, D. C., states that the new issue of ten dollar gold coins, just out, does not bear the inscription, "In God We Trust." It is intimated that all new coins will be devoid of this phrase that our christian forefathers deemed appropriate. The dispatch states further that it is not known who is the instigator of this "reform."

Through the decades past, from the time when devoid of all save hope and trust in the Almighty, our ancient forefathers constructed the foundation of this mighty republic, down to the present age, when persecutions and hardships are forgotten in the happy realization of splendid achievement, the coin of the republic has reflected mute testimony to the great Director and Overseer who has guided out footsteps and crowned our efforts with success.

Are we, then, unworthy sons of those venerable sires who built this nation through ineffable sacrifice, and christened it with their life's blood—those dauntless heroes, refugees from religious persecution, who came here to build a nation where they might worship freely the God of the Universe—our own flesh and blood—are we to thus irreverently disown one of the most sacred means they employed for proclaiming to the world the great center of their trust, and hope of their destiny?

Through years past millions of United States coins have gone forth on their devious journeyings through the world, carrying each, its own mattress from one mighty nation that trusted God. Does this new innovation mean that we have passed that stage where we owe allegiance to the God of our fathers? Have we found a new creature in whom to place our united trust? Have we strayed so far from the paths our fathers set that the insignia is no longer expressive of the sentiment of our people?
Will the agent who has effected this digression from our course tell us his reasons for so doing, and from whence came his authority?

We take the act as a direct insult to the sacred memory of the past.
We do not believe it is sanctioned by the rank and file of our citizenship.
We firmly believe there is still in the hearts of American citizens as much reverence and respect for religion as there was when the little band of pa-triotists landed at Plymouth and offered their first prayer to God.

The craven and disrespectful soul who has wrought this change has disregarded the wishes of four citizens, as he has insulted the memory of our Christian fathers.

It is the place of those in all states who still worship and trust in God to rise in a body and demand the source of this innovation, and see that no time is lost in having the inscription restored.—Charlotte News.

A FINE POULTRY FARM.

The Remarkable Achievement of a Charlotte Poultryman Who Won 20 Prizes with 24 Birds at the Jamestown Exposition.

"The poultry journals of the country are commenting at length on the achievement of Mr. George E. Price, of this city, who recently captured 20 prizes besides several special awards, on the 24 birds which he had entered at the Jamestown Exposition.
Mr. Price is proprietor of the Blue Blood Poultry Farm, which is situated on the old St. Catharine gold mine place, one mile southwest of the city.
One of the prizes won at the Jametown Exposition was a splendid silver cup, valued at $100, which was offered by the Corno Mill Company, of St. Louis, Mo., for the best display of any one variety of fowls. This cup was won by a fine string of beautiful lakenwelders, of which Mr. Price has made a specialty. Among the other prizes were for first and fourth silver wyandotte pullets; second buff orpington cockerel; first, second, and third lakenwelder cock; first, second, and third lakenwelder cockerel; first, second and third lakenwelder hen; first, second, third, fourth and fifth lakenwelder pullet, and first pen old fowls and second pen young fowls.
This record has seldom been equaled in the poultry annals of the country.
The Blue Blood Poultry Farm is fenced in with wire netting, the different breeds being assigned and kept in different runs. The poultry houses are models of their kind, being light, airy, dry and thoroughly sanitary.
The birds are allowed the proper freedom and their every want is carefully attended to. The following varieties are represented: Barred Plymouth rocks, white Plymouth rocks, silver wyandottes, buff orpingtons, lakenwelders and anconas.—Charlotte Observer.

After we have heard a wears. After we have read a letter, it doesn't make so much differ-

But as we see the man

Cured of Bright's Disease.

Mr. Robert O. Burke, Elmora, N.

dropsy and my eyesight was so impaired I could scarcely see one of
