Advance Beauty Wins Miss Mocksville Crown

ALICE SUSAN ELLIS

Miss Alice Susan Ellis, 18, was crowned Miss Mocksville of 1965 at the beauty pageant Saturday night.

Miss Linda Mae Caudle, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Caudle of Mocksville, Rt. 2, came in second; Miss Patricia Lou Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Davis of Advance, was third; and Miss Peggy Sanford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Sanford of Mocksville, was fourth.

Miss Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ellis of Advance, is a blue-eyed blonde about five feet five inches tall and weighing about 115 pounds.

Miss Ellis gave an interpretative ballet number for her talent. She was one of eight contestants in the event held at the Mocksville School auditorium. She received her crown from Miss Dianne Hendricks, Miss Mocksville of 1965.

Miss Ellis will represent Mocksville in the state beauty pageant to be held next summer.

Miss Jeanne Flinn Swanner of Graham, the 1964 Miss North Carolina, was mistress of ceremonies. She was assisted by Miss Penny Clark of Sanford, the current Miss North Carolina.

The new Miss Mocksville is a 1965 graduate of Davie County High School where she was a majorette for two years and a member of the National Honor Society.

Miss Ellis will enter the North Carolina School of the Performing Arts in Winston-Salem this fall. She attended the Governor's School in Winston-Salem in 1963 and was an assistant in the dance department there this summer. She also was in summer stock at the Tanglewood Barr Theater at Clemmons in the summer of 1964.

Raleigh, N. C. July -- (Special) -- Farmers in this area were reminded today that children under 16 years of age are permitted to work on farms only outside school hours, under federal law.

This word came from Mrs. Pauline Horton, field office supervisor of the Raleigh-West office of the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, U. S. Department of Labor. She said the Fair Labor Standards Act prohibits minors under 16 from working in agriculture during school hours for the school district where they live while working. This applies to children of migratory workers as well as local children.

"The place for children is in school, not in the fields," Mrs. Horton added. "Today's children will grow up in the world which demands more education and better skills. Schools now will open the door to opportunity in the future."

Mrs. Horton pointed out that the 16-year age minimum does not apply to children who work on the home farm for their parents or guardians. She also said the Act places no restrictions on farm work by minors 16 years old or over.

Compliance with the Fair Labor Standards Act does not excuse noncompliance with State or local laws. "The Wage and Hour Office in Raleigh will be glad to answer any questions about the Fair Labor Standards Act," Mrs. Horton added. The address is Room 203, 320 South Salisbury Street, Raleigh, N. C.

New Picnic Parking Area

No parking will be allowed this year during the week of the Masonic Picnic on the west side of U. S. 158 (North Main Street) from Eaton's Funeral Home to Cemetery Street.

Robert Hendricks, General Manager for the 85th Annual Masonic picnic, announced Wednesday that town and state officials have agreed to enforce parking regulations in the key areas to facilitate the movement of traffic.

Mr. Hendricks announced also that no parking would be allowed on Hemlock Street at all and no parking would be allowed on either side of Poplar Street to the ice plant. "Ample parking under the supervision of the Davie County Rescue Squad is being provided."

An additional parking area for anyone attending the Masonic Picnic next week will be supervised by the Davie County Rescue Squad in the area from Davie Lumber Company to the Mocksville Ice Plant on Railroad Street. A small admission will be charged and this money will go towards projects of the Rescue Squad. The lower gate at the grounds will be open this year for the first time so that anyone who uses this parking space can enter there at any time. Entrance to this parking area can be made from all streets.

Heart Fund Has Gain Over '64 Of 19% - Record

Greensboro -- Receipts of the 1965 Heart Fund campaign in North Carolina totaled more than $651,000, Mrs. J. Spencer Love, of Greensboro, state chairman of drive, reports.

These returns, which do not include bequest income, represent a 19 percent increase over the 1964 campaign tally of more than $547,000. Receipts of the annual fund-raising effort of the North Carolina Heart Association and its local chapters and divisions were less than $200,000 in 1955 but have climbed steadily each year since that time.

Heart Fund receipts this year exceeded receipts of any other voluntary health agency in North Carolina. This year's Heart Fund gain represents the second largest campaign in the United States, with only California Heart Association showing a larger increase over 1964.

Final national receipts of the American Heart Association, of which the state organizations are affiliates, are expected to top $34-million this year.

Qualified Students Can Still Get Into A College Or University

Greensboro, N. C. -- "A good classroom teaching and qualified student still can get into a college or university," said Allen E. Kivett, director of admissions at Greensboro College. Kivett said that when people look below the surface, the so-called shortage of space in college is not as critical as it might appear. "In many cases," he emphasized, "students must be willing to accept a school other than their original choice."

Greensboro College, in a recent report by the Associated Press, was named as the only exception in North Carolina to the crowded situation. Kivett told the wire service, when asked, that GC has 40 spaces for male students. During the two days after the article appeared, he received queries from more than 40 interested young men. "A few of these," he said, "may qualify for admission to GC."

At Greensboro the admissions committee places weight on the predicted grade point average for entering freshmen. This average indicates the probable level of academic achievement and is based on College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB) test scores given and on the student's high school academic record. The high school record is the most important, according to Kivett.

The only other college of relative size in North Carolina that uses the grade point average system is Davidson College.

In using the grade point predictions, GC is trying to match the quality of male students with that of incoming women students. Of the female students entering this year, 53 per cent come from the top 20 per cent of their graduating classes. Ten of these were valedictorians. Against such competition, the male student whose grade point prediction is not high enough cannot be expected to survive academically.

"Qualifications for different schools vary," Kivett said. "The level of difficulty in the classroom also varies from school to school," he added, "and since Greensboro College places a primary emphasis on high standards, this means that it is one of the contributing factors as far as our present shortage is concerned."

So far this year, GC has received many more applications than a year ago. Of a total of some 700 freshmen and transfer applications, 368 were accepted and could be admitted if they chose to come to Greensboro. Only 230 actually will arrive on the GC campus in September when the college opens its fall semester. There were 168 male applications of which 39 per cent were accepted.

Most of the high school students who applied were making multiple applications to see which colleges would admit them. This is a common practice, said Kivett, and directors of admissions take it into consideration when estimating probable enrollment. "To compare the total number of applications at all colleges with the number of men and women finally admitted gives a dark and altogether false picture of the actual situation," he said. "We feel sure," he added, "that the 138 who were accepted at GC but did not come will appear at other schools in the fall."

The female enrollment at Greensboro was filled early in the spring and many still are on the waiting list and will be notified of their acceptance should vacancies occur before September.

Since becoming coeducational in 1954, GC has steadily increased its male enrollment. Dean Elmer L. Puryear, in appraising the situation said that the men have taken prominent positions of leadership on the campus. "More important," he said, "they are proving themselves equal to the standards that we are committing to maintain in the classroom." He pointed to the fact that GC is in the process of raising the money to build another classroom building which will give the liberal arts college the classroom space and facilities it needs. "We also have one of the finest faculties that can be employed and are expanding it steadily," he said.
