Burlington Industries Says Many Divisions Will Raise Wages

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 6, 1966 — Wage increases are being announced by many divisions of Burlington Industries, according to a statement today by President Charles F. Myers, Jr.

He said that amounts and effective dates would be established by management of Burlington's decentralized divisions, in keeping with the particular business situation in each type of operation. The Company, largest and most diversified textile manufacturer, has 120 plants in 15 states.

Mr. Myers indicated that some operations would make no increase at this time, as upward adjustments had been made in the last several months.

"Our policy continues to be one of maintaining wage rates on a divisional basis," Mr. Myers said. "In this way wages are related to the competitive situation in each specific segment of our business."

Youth Groups To Have Steer Show & Sale

Have you ever seen a steer show and sale? If you have not, you are in for a real treat. Can you remember something you made through hard work when you were a child? Do you recall how you nursed your project along anticipating the reward you would receive for your painstaking effort? Do you remember how proud you were of the finished project and how you "popped" your gallus straps when someone complimented you on a job well done? This is the state of mind you will witness at the Dixie Classic Fairgrounds Monday, May 23, 1966.

The girls and boys have been preparing their steers for months. The big pay-off will be the moment when they are in the ring showing their prize steers. As the crowd increases, one can see the tension mounting on the faces of the owners of the steers. You owe it to yourself to be a part of this thrilling experience; so, be at the Dixie Classic Fairgrounds Monday, May 23, 1966 at 8:30 to see yourself as you were a few years ago.

The newest Episcopal congregation in Winston-Salem has voted to build its first church home, a contemporary $100,000 building to overlook Reynolda Shopping Center.

The plans for St. Anne's Episcopal Church were released by the rector, the Rev. Downs C. Spittler. The congregation is a year old today.

Rev. D. C. Spittler is formerly of Cooleeemee.

The building will eventually have three units. The first, the $100,000 one, will be a Christian education building. The second unit will be a two-story church school building. The final unit will be the sanctuary.

Ground is expected to be broken for the first unit during the first week of July, and completion is expected within five months.

Lashmit, Brown and Pollock were the architects. The building contract has not yet been let.

The first unit is a multiuse building. It will include seven classrooms, offices for the rector and church secretary a vestibule, rest rooms and a three-way room which can be used for dining for worship or for meetings.

Connecting to this room is a small kitchen. When used for dining, it will seat 120 people. For worship it will accommodate 140 and for meetings 180.

The sanctuary end of the building will contain a portable altar, altar railing, communion table and furniture to permit the room to be converted for other uses.

Cushioned metal folding chairs and kneelers will be used when the room is set up for worship. An area will be set up for the choir and a portable organ.

All of the buildings will be of brick and vertical paneling. The two educational units will have mansard-type roofs with flat tops. The sanctuary roof will be a modified hip almost reaching the ground. The exposed beams on the interior of the sanctuary will continue to the ground outside.

Massive stained glass walls will fill the altar wall. The other end wall, at the entrance side, will also feature a wall of stained glass. The altar area will provide a vertical wood backdrop effect which will be interchangeable for events other than worship — such as drama, music and dance.

The sanctuary will seat 260 worshippers. It will have a vestibule and balcony. The church building will be built on a four-and-a-quarter-acre site at Fairlawn and Oakland drives. The land was presented to the congregation by the other three Episcopal congregations of the city.
