A LETTER FROM THEIR NEW GRANDDAUGHTER

Below is a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Howard from their new baby granddaughter in Tampa, Florida.

Monday, October 10.

Dear Grandpa and Grandma,

My mommy tells me my favorite North Carolina grandpa has been sick. This makes me sad. I don't want him to be sick. He must be well and happy and always play with me when I'm there. I do hope you are better, Grandpa, and please do just what the good doctor says because this is how you stay well to play with me.

You think all I want to do now is to play. Playing is very much fun to me. I can't write yet, you know. So I will tell my mother what to say and she writes. But I don't understand why she can't play at the same time. My mother and daddy play with me lots. They know what I like. Daddy whistles my favorite song and I laugh. That makes them laugh. They also blow a soft little breeze over my face. I like this. They talk to me all the time. It makes them smile when I try to talk back. I really don't think they can understand what I say.

I guess I'll have to learn to talk their funny words so they can understand me but I make much sense to me. I wonder if you would understand me. I like for them to hold my hands. (I can hold my head up all by myself) Then I can rock back and forth. I can even jump when someone holds me. I can pull my hair now. My mommy is afraid I'll pull it out and become bald -- she's silly sometimes.

I'm so aware of everything. I watch television. I watch everything that happens. I like bright colors and patterns. I even have some pretty colored things that fly over my bed. I can kick and they fly faster. They are so pretty. Daddy calls them flutter-bies but I heard someone say flutter-flies. I sometimes wonder about these grown-ups. But best of all, I like to ride in our car. My daddy knows this especially. I go lots of places, to my grandmas, to the police station, to the laundromat and sometimes just around nowhere especially.

Yesterday they bought me something: four pairs of cotton flannel pajamas, all pretty colors, yellow, blue, pink. Someone had a sale somewhere. I heard. They often buy me things on sale. There's one thing wrong with these pajamas, they have feet in them. I would like to know, how do they expect me to see my toes. Mommy says it is to keep my toes warm when the weather gets cold, but I don't believe there is cold weather here. I sleep through the night almost all the time now. I decided to stop waking during the night. They were always too sleepy to play so why wake up. So I have early breakfast with them. For breakfast I have cereal, my good bottle of Simlac and flouride drops which are supposed to make my teeth strong. I have lots of teeth, but I don't want to show them to anyone yet. They're all mine. I'm getting lots of good food to eat. I eat carrots (my favorite) sweet potatoes, squash, corn, peas, green beans, something called mixed garden vegetables with spinach which turned my spoon black and made my mother sad, but she got it almost back to normal. She says she forgot about the oxalic acid in the spinach. What is she feeding me? I also eat applesauce, bananas with pineapple. I saw a jar of peaches. I bet they are good too. Yesterday I cried because daddy wouldn't give me any of his popcorn. Says I'm too little. But it smelled so good. Someday I'll be big enough for Coke!

My daddy studies a lot. He's in school you know, but only for one more week. Yesterday he worked all day drawing a picture, they called it a diagram of a crime scene. To me, a picture. Poor daddy, he was so tired. He had ruler and pencils. Everything to scale, whatever that means. Mommy went to church and sang in the choir but I stayed home and slept like a good baby. That's what people say-- I'm a good baby. All babies are good -- it's just parents and how good they are. I'm happy with mine. I know

THE OLD ORDER PASSES

In the natural course of things whole generations of people pass on. The grave takes its harvest and leaves open ground for a new generation. But in those who pass there were qualities of mind and heart, and deeds of what they were and accomplished, and as example to the oncoming generation. Cooleeemee, as have other places, has experienced the loss of many of its older citizens within the past few years. Not all of them, though greatly missed, can be mentioned here; but we can select certain of them as representative of all, and pay our tribute to the men and women of high character, whose lives have blessed our community.

We feel that it is most fitting to write here about Richard E. Everhardt, whose recent passing left a void in our community, and many sorrowing hearts. A heart attack, while he was serving at his service station proved fatal. But death found him where he would have preferred, at his place of work. He was a faithful member of the Methodist Church, and sang in the choir. He must have sung many times: "Work for the night is coming when man works no more." And his whole life was so devoted to an high sense of responsibility, that when the night did come he could go to his rest in peace. And truly, his works will follow him in influence, and he will long be held in affectionate memory by those who knew him.

It was a great tribute to him that children could go to him to get toys and bicycles mended. Children are keen in their observation of people, and often more sensible of worth, and wiser in evaluation than adults.

He rendered fine service to his church, to the fraternal orders to which he belonged, and helped to promote community enterprises, such as baseball, and other community projects. The world in which he lived, moved, and worked, is better and richer because he passed along, and gave to it a man's heart that was filled with love for God and his fellowmen.

Burlington Dedicates New Plant In Rutherford County; Names Facility For J. C. Cowan, Jr.

Caroleen, N. C. Oct. 25-- Burlington Industries dedicated its newest manufacturing plant today, naming the $7.5 million facility near here for J. C. Cowan, Jr., a native of Rutherford County and vice chairman of the company's board of directors.

Burlington President Chas. F. Myers, Jr. noted that the J. C. Cowan plant is the sixth new plant the textile company is completing in N. C. this year. He unveiled a dedicatory plaque citing Cowan's 35 years of "distinguished service to the company and its employees" and described the facility as a fitting tribute to Cowan's "leadership, astute business judgment, dedication to service and his abiding interest in people."

Myers also unveiled a portrait of Cowan painted by John King, III, son of the superintendent of Burlington's Caroleen plant. The portrait will hang in the new plant.

In recounting Burlington's growth in North Carolina, Myers said, "As sizeable as our plant investments may be, our investment in North Carolina people is a source of greater pride to us." Burlington employs 35,000 people at 73 North Carolina plants.

Henry M. Leslie of New York City, president of Burlington's Leslie, Catlin Division which operates the new plant, said the facility "is a multi-million dollar dream come true."

He pointed out that the plant incorporates some of the most modern advances in the textile industry, including an automatic doffing system and a unique under-floor return air system for air conditioning and lint collection.

The fully air-conditioned plant manufactures cotton and cotton-synthetic blended fabrics for the apparel industry. It contains 250,000 square feet of floor space and employs some 175 people at this point.

Rutherford County civic, business and industrial leaders and their wives attended the brief dedication ceremony and later toured the new plant.

Burlington's board of directors also met at the plant and participated in the dedication. Directors of Fabricato, a Burlington partner in Colombia, South America, who are vice

Girl Scout News

Following are events of the Cooking School in Salisbury attended by the Girl Scouts of Cooleeemee. The instructor was Mrs. Neita S. Frank, Home Service Department of Duke Power Company.

October 11:

The girls learned several different kitchen utensils and their uses. Discussed the four basic food groups, and had to plan 4 menus using them. They learned to measure dry, liquid, and solid ingredients and how to clean a stove.

October 18:

Mrs. Frank discussed several cooking and food terms. How to clean up as you go along, and how to store food, and how to set a table for eating a meal.

The girls baked cakes at home and also found the history of their favorite food or spice.

October 25:

The big day! The girls cooked and served a complete meal.

Menu:

25 minute spaghetti tossed salad with French dressing
Garlic French Butter bread
Peanut Butter Brownies
Punch

The meal was delicious and they wish to express thanks to the mothers for providing transportation.

After the cleaning up on October 25, the Troop gave Mrs. Frank a box of home made fudge, made by Shelia Kibling and Linda Lee Mills. Those receiving Cook Badges were:

Burlington Reports Record Sales And Earnings For Fiscal Year

Greensboro, N. C. -- October 25, 1966 -- Burlington Industries, Inc., today reported record sales and earnings for its fiscal year, ended October 1.

Consolidated net sales were $1,371,608,000, an increase of 4.4% over 1965. On a comparable basis, with adjustments for sales in fiscal 1965 by three divisions which were liquidated or sold last year, 1966 sales were approximately 10 per cent ahead of a year ago.

Net earnings for the year were $77,094,000, equal to $3.86 per share on 25,178,000 common shares outstanding on October 1. For the previous year, net earnings were $68,613,000, or $2.76 per share.

Sales for the company's final quarter (three months ended October 1) were $329,653,000, compared to sales of $331,447,000 for the period last year. Net earnings for the quarter were $16,579,000, equal to 64 cents per share, compared to earnings of $18,043,000 or 71 cents per share for the period a year ago.

Charles F. Myers, Jr., President, commented that fourth quarter earnings were adversely affected by several factors. "Principal among these were reductions in raw material prices, particularly polyester fibers, which occurred near the close of the quarter. In addition, expenses incurred through start-up of a record number of new facilities were at their high in the quarter. Margins and volume were affected by the tight money market, which caused many customers to reduce inventories and forward commitments. Finally, substantially increased imports of fabrics and yarns also had an influence on margins and volume."

Results for 1966 are subject to confirmation by the company's auditors.

A regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents per share, payable December 1 to shareholders of record November 4, was declared by the Burlington Board of Directors, which met at the company's new J. C. Cowan plant, dedicated in ceremonies today at the site near Caroleen, North Carolina. Earlier in the day the directors toured the William G. Lord finishing plant now nearing completion at Cramerton, North Carolina.

Mrs. Gladys May of Main Street is in the Rowan Hospital undergoing surgery.
